THE KALDRON
OF ALLEGHENY COLLEGE

BEING A REMEMBRANCE BOOK
OF THE YEAR

COMPILLED BY THE KALDRON BOARD AND PUBLISHED BY THE FRATERNITIES

THE YEAR OF OUR LORD MCMV.
VOLUME THE SEVENTEENTH
This Book is Dedicated to Miss Ida M. Tarbell, an alumna of Allegheny College who, by her distinguished literary achievements has brought honor to her
Alma Mater.
GENTLE readers, had you been so many eggs, we could have handled you with no greater care. You, giddy co-ed, who were photoed negligée: you, pompous Senior, who fought for "honorable mention" in our pages; you, old bear of a professor, who were always pressing our abused noses closer and closer against the flinty scholastic grindstone—you are all of you forgiven. The most scathing of your well-deserved rebukes have been charitably smothered in the recesses of our copious editorial waste-basket. Vos amamus omnes.

In a word, we have aimed to be mild rather than malevolent, inclining to benediction rather than to malediction. May our endeavors please you. We make our bow.

James Harding Montgomery

We build too strong and high
The barrier between the here and there;
'Tis but a veil as light as evening air
And trembles in a sigh.

And he who loved the pure,
Whose generous work for others knew no fail,
Among the living, though he pass the veil,
His spirit shall endure.

For no new friend can fill
The place he held by love's strong title clear;
But in true memories, for many a year,
It shall be sacred still.

Kappa Kappa Gamma.

Young, auburn-haired, and beloved of Farr. Has a lovely squeak and real cute ways. Being slated for a preacher's wife, she will doubtless be a tower of strength in the Sunday-School and Home Missionary Society. Never grouchy. Likes to "fix up" for parties and things.

Frank Elmer Baker, Clymer, New York.
"Bake"
Latin Scientific.
Phi Kappa Psi.

Frank E. Baker, affectionately termed "Bake" by his numerous friends, has cut bugs and insulted respectable fossils so long that he is getting somewhat "buggy" and fossilized himself—that is, he would be, if it weren't for Florence. But Florence is a practical sort, and manages to keep the flies off while "Bake" awkwardly improves the finer moments of life.

James Van Horne Ballantyne, Derry Station, Penna.
"Bal" "Van"
Latin and Modern Language.
Phi Delta Theta.

Good-looking, good-natured, saintly. Loafs a good deal at Hulings Hall, and gets awful cases on the lady students. Something of a knocker, but very particular about his cuss-words. Easily embarrassed, and blushes profusely. Inclined to Growl when there's no Rigg about.

Clifford Cowles, Ashville, New York.
"Clif"
Civil Engineering.
A very mathematical sort. Plugs a great deal and talks little—saying something, however, when he does talk, which is better than being inanely loquacious. Of the variety we often see filling railroad superintendencies at $10,000 per, when their more worldly-wise friends are looking for jobs in the round house.

Levi Orton Davenport, Albion, Penna.
"Davy"
Latin Scientific.
Sigma Alpha Epsilon.
"Davy" is about as big as a small-sized pea, but he can steer a foot-ball team down the gridiron like cannibals through a missionary camp. Once in a while he comes out of his perpetual grouch and assumes an almost human expression.
As a rule, however, he maintains the solemn dignity of a funeral director.

Katherine Deniston Dewey, North East, Penna.
Latin and Modern Language.
Kappa Kappa Gamma.
First "lady editor" of the Lit., chief crush of the Senior Class, main squeeze of K. K. G., and the "sine qua non" of high and elite society in the College. Gets off a charming little cackle, which has won its way deeply into the hearts and affections of such men as Frederick W. Blaisdell, J. Gayle Nelson, John Richmond Giblyn, "Bobby," etc. etc.
Cecil Kay Edmonds, Meadville, Penna.

Classical.

Of an aesthetic disposition. Very ethereal and would make a pretty angel. During his sophomore year he so far forgot himself as to go with the girls, but as a rule he lives the life of a dreamer, far away from the petty vanities and frivolities of an every-day existence.

Cinnett Grant Farr, Fayetteville, W. Va.

Classical.

Phi Delta Theta.

Re-incarnation of Rameses II. Very pious and never uses a pony except in very hard places. Being a "local" preacher, he spends his Sundays administering educationalized religion to heathen rustics. Spends his week days investigating the delightful mysteries of "college love." But, as Mabel says, "There are worse men by Farr."

Frank Raymond Frost, Meadville, Penna.

"Jack"

Civil Engineering.

Sigma Alpha Epsilon.

Frankie Frost has red hair. We do not think he ever dyes. He probably never will. The good die young. Forty-seven requests have been received by the editors to roast Frankie. Most of these we have consigned to the waste basket, for we feel keenly that any man who has the unlimited nerve to edit a Kaldron during his junior year ought to be let alone during the rest of his life and get a free pass to heaven on the day of judgment.
Cecil Kay Edmonds, M

Frankie Frost has red eyes. He probably noted Mr. Turney's request that he roast Frankie. Most of college wastes his peremptory "No" unlimited nerve to edit his papers. He ought to be let alone during his senior year. He pass to heaven on the day he graduates.

Miss Harrison

Mr. Hassler

Mr. Hewit

Anna Jeanette Harrison, Meadville, Penna.

Classical.

Calm, sedate, scholarly. Not being a Hall girl, she has escaped the inevitable ear-marks of dormitory life. But this hasn't interfered with Miss Harrison's ability to learn her little lessons day by day, and she will hold up her paddy for a sheepskin with the rest when the time comes.

James Herman Hassler, Meadville, Penna.

"Jimmy"

Civil Engineering.

One of Dutt's favorites, hence a good fellow. Having practiced on a pipe for a period of four years, he now smokes it with considerable ease. He is proud of the fact and displays his powers on all occasions. Has a habit of talking in bunches, which is confusing.

Wilber Jay Hewit, Meadville, Penna.

Classical.

"Stub's" elder brother. A living exponent of the Darwinian theory. Has for six years been deeply in love, never having had a rival. About to enter the missionary business. We predict his success in this, for it would take a pretty hungry bunch of South Sea Islanders to make much of a meal off Hewit's skinny carcass.
Ira David Hyskell, Smicksburg, Penna.
Classical.
Has a lovely tenor voice which he uses in company with the other lovely tenor voices on the College Glee Club. Plays an expert game of tennis and would have won first medal in several tournaments but for an unfavorable combination of adverse circumstances which in each case defeated his superior ability.

Lettie Love Johnston, Pittsburg, Penna.
Latin and Modern Language.
Kappa Alpha Theta.
Blushes when the name Samuel is mentioned and speaks of Pittsburg as if it were heaven. Leads the Kappa Alpha Theta hosts to victory or defeat with calm equanimity, and accepts their homage with the grace of a Cleopatra. The arch enemy of K. K. G., and Phi Delta Theta's idol. Not to be confused with Hattie Johnson, who is younger and has taffy hair.

Claude Hurst King, Ripley, West Virginia.
"Big King" "Cloud-burst"
Classical.
Phi Delta Theta.
Big, bald and handsome. A great Flinch player and poker shark. Prominent member of the chapel choir, a rank aggregation of musical males possessed of more internal discord than a second-hand accordion. His baldness is due to the fact that he has given away so many locks of hair to his various "lady friends."
Frank H. Larder, Sinclairville, New York.
Civil Engineering.

One of the few survivors of Dutt's numerous classes in Trig., Calculus and Practical Joking. Said to be very conscientious, never having boozed, fought or roughhoused his landlady. There is a rumor afloat that Larder has a faithful little Dolly Gray at home waiting for him to graduate, and that after Commencement the Justice of the Peace at Sinclairville is going to get busy. The Kaldron expresses its congratulations.

Walter Davis Lewis, Smicksburg, Penna.
"Big Chief"
Classical.
Phi Delta Theta.

Built on a large, loose-jointed scale, which comes in handy when some redoubtable forward from Yale or Edinboro Normal is making strenuous attempts to "cage the leather" from a close shot. Called "Big Chief" from his ability to "pow-wow." He can do this better than any Indian that ever threw a tomahawk.

Fred Mellon McArthur, Meadville, Penna.
"Brick"
Latin Scientific.
Phi Delta Theta.

Entered college four years ago a small-sized Mellon, unripe and unsophisticated. Will graduate shortly and pass off for ripe fruit—advertising the advantages of a college education. Another member of the Invincible Five, who furnish amusement during the winter season at 75 cents per.

Ira David Hyskell, St.

Has a lovely tenor voice, and is the other lovely tenor. Plays an expert game of poker, and has earned a medal in several tournaments. Combination of adverse conditions defeated his superior abilities.

Lettie Love Johnston,

Blushes when the name of Pittsburgh as if it were Theta hosts to victory accepts their homage of K. K. to be confused with hair.

Claude Hurst King,
"Big King" "Cloud-" Big, bald and has a poker shark. Promised rank aggregation of much discord to the fact that he has his various "lady friends."
Charles Andrew McIntier, Corry, Penna.
"Mac"
Civil Engineering.
Small, scared-looking, and very naughty. "Wanted" by Gym. Lewis for a number of "gym cuts" incurred during his course. Will probably end up as a pious Sunday School superintendent, and perpetrate on the unsuspecting little boys and girls awful stories of his college days.

Margaret McLaughlin, Corry, Penna.
Classical.
Kappa Alpha Theta.
There comes a time in the course of human events when even an athlete falls in love. Now if we were to imagine ourself an athlete, any athlete, say a big black-haired tackle whom we know of, we somehow feel that the kind of a girl we would be likely to fall in love with would be someone such as Miss McLaughlin. Of course we may be wrong. But at any rate, we don't censure him.

Charles Coburn Merrill, Philadelphia, Penna.
"Chuck"
Classical.
Phi Delta Theta.
Professional society man. Plays third guitar on the Mandolin and Guitar Club, and annually defeats all comers at tennis—a game which he can play with his eyes shut and hands tied behind his back. Leans toward Kappa Alpha Theta when there is anything material to lean against, and is fond of "tight squeezes."

Paul Mitchell, Indiana, Penna.
"Mitch"
Latin-Scientific.
Phi Kappa Psi.

An assiduous athlete and an ardent lover. When he en­ tered Allegheny he was so green he applied at Hulings Hall for a room. Now he is so accomplished he can form the in­ timate acquaintance of any living co-ed in less than three weeks. Talks a woodchuck dialect, on account of which he is called by his closest friends "Meetch in the Boughs."

Joseph Emil Morrison, Blairsville, Penna.
"Joe"
Classical.
Phi Delta Theta.

A respectable sort of a cap and gown who will land up against the cold world with an easy grunt and cause a good many cynics to think that perhaps college is a good thing after all. His continued contact with the Y. M. C. A. has somewhat dulled his high sense of morality but this has been offset by his valuable experience of the past year in guiding the Phi Delt schooner through the troubous waters of fra­ ternity rivalry.

Frank Max Ohlman, Meadville, Penna.
"Frankie"
Civil Engineering.

The fashion plate. A regular walking advertisement of the swell hand-me-downs you can buy at the magnificent Clothing Emporium of M. Ohlman and Son 913 Water street. Rhinos a good deal in a good-natured sort of a way and is a reliable authority on all horses, trots, ponies, and translations necessary to the completion of a college course.
Harry E. Stone, Corry, Penna.
"Ike"
Classical.
Phi Gamma Delta.

Not so rocky as his name would indicate, albeit a pretty tough proposition. Stone's personality was kept pretty fairly well in the background till his brother left college for the East. We have since wished his brother had remained. Has a head like a tack and a line of talk like a blast furnace. Harmless.

Benjamin Whitman Van Riper, Meadville, Penna.
"Van"
Latin-Scientific.

A regular cut-up. As fond of gossip as an old maid over a tea caddy. His ideal characters are Pratt, the photographer, and Doc Knudson. He regards Pratt's picture of Knudson as a union of the divine. Has a large philosophic grin, which will help him to achieve greatness whether he goes into ditch digging or the real estate business.

Clarence Allan Van Slyke, Centralia, New York.
"Baldy" "Van"
Latin-Scientific.

Bald as a broom-handle. Has a face like the breaking of an oriental sunrise, and a laugh like the death-rattle of a Zulu medicine-man. The barber's enemy and the hair-restorer's friend. Likes to stand in front of the chapel and watch the girls go in.
Benjamin Whitman Van Riper

A regular cut-up. As fond of a tea caddy. His ideal charac­

Bruce Simpson Wright, Jamestown, New York.
Latin and Modern Language.
Phi Delta Theta.
Patriarch of the Senior Class. The Phi Delt Methusaleh. About to issue his maiden work, entitled “A Decade of College Life” or “How to Win a Diploma.” Likes to hunt up Johnny Hamnett and talk over old times. A prospective orator and a retrospective fusser. Has the faculty of always appearing deeply interested.

Wesley Aker Wynn, Derry Station, Penna.
“Cap”
Civil Engineering.
Phi Delta Theta.
A gentleman and a scholar. Speaks only on occasions of absolute necessity, decreasing the average vocabulary of the Class by about seventeen words. Supposed to be engaged, but too modest to say so. Said to comprehend Gurney’s Physics lectures.

NEW AND OLD.

You call her new, because, forsooth,
You crown her with the gifts of youth;
With shining gold you fill her hands,
And build her home on spacious lands,
In noble halls she doth abide,
And honors worthy of her pride
Proclaim her glories far and wide,
   New Allegheny.

But know you well, no wealth nor art
Can add one virtue to her heart;
Self-proved and strong, though old or new,
To mighty purpose grandly true;
Whate'er her size, whate'er her name,
God bless her heart, she's still the same,
The Mater dear, that precious name,
   Old Allegheny.
The Letters of Little Peter to His Ma.

LITTLE PETER, being a precocious young hopeful who is a great admirer of Tom Sawyer, Buster Brown and the Katzenjammer Twins, comes down to Allegheny and spends a few days with his Big Brother, Jim, at the Frat House. During which time he in­dites missives to his Ma.

May 16, 1905.

Deer Ma—

I hav arrrived. Jim smokes. I am in Jims room at the frat house riting this letter. 1 of the fellus met me at the deepo. He sed Jim had a Date with a Gurl so he couldnt meat me. Jim kame in a little wile ago and seemed glad too see mee. I ast him wheir he had ben, and he sed he had ben attendin a speshul meatin of the Y. M. C. A. i kidded him a good deel about it.

Jim wears a green cap whitch is the kind of a cap re­quired of the Freshmen to wear by the fellus who were Fresh­men wunce but are not enny more. He looks sort of funny in it. the Freshmen also hav to do menny little favers for the other stoodents, such as ansering the door and telluphone and carrying the water and sweaping the sidewalk. It wood make me laff to see Jim sweaping a sidewalk for he never thoat it was very manly to sweap a sidewalk at home. Col­ledge ideals are a strange thing. i herd 1 of the fellus say so.

Well, i must go to bed, so no more at pressent from your loving

Little Peter.

May 17, 1905.

Dere Ma—

i am Not hoamsick. I went over to chapell this morning with Jim. it was very interesting. All the Freshmen (Jim is a freshman, u know) sat together. I sat between Jim and another fellow. Most of the fellus was bizy studying during chapel, espeshully during the prair, which was long. The fellow that set next to me sed, “Say, did you ever sea a man before that red his prair?” No, i sed, is he a-doin it? “U bet” he sed, “Watch!” i watched, and ma, really and truly, the man was a-readin his prair off from a paper, caus the wind from the window made the paper flop up and down every now and then. Ma, i dont think it is fare to the stoodents for a man to rite a prair and then read it. He can make it so much longer that way.

After chapel jim told me too go rite back to the frat house. I didnt. i waited at the door of the chapell and watched eveaybudy cum out. Ma, jim came out with a gurl, and walked off with her. i was sore, ma. Jim had shook me for that gurl. i told sum of the fellus about it and thay sed it was a shame, they kidded jim about it. good by.

Your loving
Little Peter.

Dere Ma—

They had a party over at Hulings hall last night. i went. The Hall was very prittily deckorated and i enjoyed miself very mutch.

Jim shook me pritty soon after we got there but i was just as wel satisfied, for i wanted to sea things for miself. I introduced miself too several young ladies who ad­mired my necktie very much, and ast me a good meny questions about Jim which i answered in a way that amused them gratey (it would have made Jim mad if he had herd me.)

The young ladies introduced me to Missis Laffer and Miss Spalding. Missis Laffer is a nice lady, but i gess she is not very strick with the young ladies. I thoght it wood be easy to tie fire-crackers to her aprun-string. Miss Spalding is the El-o-qu-shun tee-cher and pro-noun-ses ver-ry dis­tinct-ly. I liked her very mutch. I had a peech of a time.

Your loving
Little Peter.

May 21, 1905.

Deer Ma—

I hav sum exciting noos. I seen an enishiashun last night. It wus a peach. Of course, no one noo that i saw it and Jim, he put me to bed before sevun o’clock. But u kan bet i didnt stay there. I ain’t here for mi helth.

It wus like this. I hiked out of bed pritty soon after Jim was gone and herd the fellus wispering around the house as if sumthin wus doin. So i slid down the back stares soft like and hid in the closit. It was awfull hot, but i didnt mind it mutch becaus i had never seen an enishiashun before and ennyhow I only had on mi nite-shirt which is not veiry hot. After a wile i herd all the fellus go down cellar, so i went down too, only I got be­hind a potato barril so they couldnt see me. Well ma, what do you think. They had made the fellow they wus enishiating take off all his clothes (which i don’t think u would think was very modest) and they wus painting green rings around his laigs. When they got throo with that they made him drink castor oil (i cood sympa­thize with him, ma), and then they throo him up in a blanket. Another thing they did was to all get out big paddles and pad­dle the fellow where the seet of his pants wood hav ben if he had had pants on. Finuly after quite a wile they brougt the fellow over towards me and stood him up against the barril i was settin behind. Then they turned the hose on him. i got pritty wet.
As soon as i cood get away without bein' seen I skinned upstairs and crawled into bed. I have a cold this morning.
But I dont care mutch. I have seen a enishiashun.
Your loving
Little Peter.

Dere Ma—
I have just got hoam frum a ball game. We beet.
When the collidge paper cums out next Tuesday it will hav big hed lines on the front page like this, ALLEGHENY CONKUERS—ANOTHER VICTIM FUR THE WIN-NING TEEM. If we had not beet it wood probably hav men-shuned the fact on a inside page between a Hoods Sarsaparilla advertisement and piece of boiler-plate. Boiler-plate is what collidge newspapers buy of real newspapers to fill up when the editor has an exam. or the Sosiety reporter gets sick.
You are probably wonderin wheir i got this information.
Well, 1 of the fellus is a reporter on the college paper, whitch is called the Campis, and he has been telling me much about it. He says the Campis is the biggist fake in Allegheny College. The only 2 people that do enny work on it are the the editor and the bizness maneger, and the bizness maneger spends most of his time working other people. He allso pursuades the editor to rite editoriuls on people that dont take the Campis and on people that do take the Campis but dont pay for it. Wunce in a wile there is also an editoriul on athlettics or stoodent ideals but thay are mostly copied out of old magazines.
The local collum is the most interestin part of the paper.
It is interestin because of the number of mistakes in it. I am going to take some Campises hoam when i go for the first reeder class to count mistakes in. There are menny more of them than in the Farm Journal to home.
Still in speit of its mistakes and boiler plate everybody likes the Campis and feels pleased when they get their names in it.
The fellow i was telling about had mi naim put in when i came. It said, "Master P.
Westinghouse Jones is visiting his popular brother Jim Jones at the Phi Sig house." U can bet i was proud when i saw it. I will send you a copy of the paper.
No more at pressent from your lovin
Little Peter.

Dere Ma—
Jim and I went to prair-meating tonite. Jim wantid me to be sure and tell you about it in my letter. So i will do so. It was not very exciting however so there is not much to tell.
The prair meetings are held in the sunday-school room of the chapel. They are held every Wednesday evening from 6:45 to seven-thirty, seven-thirty-five or seven-forty-five o'clock, and stoodents of both kinds (mail and femail) are invited to be pressent. Jim and i went urly and took a seat (2 seats) near the rear on the rite hand of the room. It is custumary for the mail element to sit on the the rite hand side, stoodents of the other variety on the left. After sum time the room became almost filled up, the front seets being taken last, which is the reason Jim and i went furst, so as to get back seets. Then the servise opened and a few songs were sung which were verry pritty. During the singin most of the fellus wus making goo-goo eyes at the gurls on the other side of the room, which i do not think was verry reverent. Jim also did it. Pritty soon the leader—he wus wun of the per-lessirs—red sum out the bible, and then every wun got down and sum praid. I ast Jim if he wus going to pray. Jim grinned. I gess he got remorseful though afterward for he was verry solium during the rest of the time and when i whis-ndered again he told me to shut up. When the service was over he took me up and introduced me to the professor who led. His name was Lordwood. He seemed like a very nice man. He had nice hair.

Jim is studying hard and I guess I will go to bed. I am afraid the prair-meeting has been too much for your loving little Peter.

May 26, 1905.

Dere Ma—

Jim took me around yesterday to see some of the faculty. The faculty are the ones that make rules for Hulings Hall and things.

First we went down to see the one who teaches Latin. He is a very small man but he has a baby. The man's name is Ross. The baby's name is Julius Caesar Ross. That is to show that his father is professor of Latin. Then we went to see the professor of Greek. He is a large, bow-legged man, but he also has a baby. It is a girl. Its name, however, is not Venus or Juno but only a common name. A rose by any other name would smell as sweet. The professor himself is fierce-looking with a beard like a paint-brush (red paint) but he is very nice to the baby and I do not think he eats people as some say. His name is Bill.

After we left Bill's place we went to see the professor of Arithmetic (the right name for it is not arithmetic but something else.) They call him Dutt. He was in the back yard smoking. I thought that maybe his wife woodent let him smoke in the house but Jim said he probably would if he wanted to. Dutt is a very funny old man. He took me by the ear and jiggled me up and down much as you used to do at home. He also took Jim by the ear. He told several jokes and we came away much refreshed. Pretty soon we walked up the hill to the gymnasium. Here Jim introduced me to Professor Louis who runs the gym. Professor Louis is a very amusing man. He can talk more than any man I ever saw. He talks chiefly about his Jim. He says if he had the money and the ability he could make his Jim the best Jim in the world.

is very popular, however, with the students and I liked him very much.

Well, ma, I suppose I must be coming home pretty soon. I still love you gratefully and think about you every time Jim smokes his pipe or does anything you don't approve of. It's a pity, ma, that you're a Methodist.

Good bye,

Your loving little Peter.

THE SPECTATOR.

Twentieth Century issue of the famous old publication, written on the occasion of a visit to Allegheny College.

THE SPECTATOR, having regained his youth at the Springs of Ponce de Leon, near Meadville, visits the College, and treats of in a most entertaining issue of distinguished magazine.

THE SPECTATOR, FEBRUARY 17, 1905.

"It was not that way in ye olden days; it was not that way at all."

My friend Sir Roger and I enjoyed ourselves t'other day in a visit to a college which is situated in this town of Meadville, the home of Ponce de Leon Springs and everlasting youth. Our visit was indeed so interesting as I should not omit to write thereof in this, the first issue of our pamphlet in the western country. The story is this:

We ascended the hill by means of that idyl of conveyance, the buzzing trolley, and dismounting at the Chapel, went therein. It is the place where they have church every day for a goodly time.

The front of the room looked very much to me like da Vinci's picture of The Last Supper, and I could not but think of it as I looked at the thirteen seats all facing the same way, and the little windows in the background. A man got up and read a line, at which several of the students answered him. After a short dialogue he sat down and quite a number of young men chanted a prayer. It was very doleful as it was rendered in so many keys. Then the Head of the Thirteen read a passage from the Bible, and when he got to the place where it reads about two sparrows being sold for a farthing, a smooth-faced man wearing glasses arose and said he would give ten shillings a pair to use them in biology laboratory. They did not make a bargain, and I wondered what a biology laboratory was. This closed the chapel service, and as we were going out a crowd of young men in the back of the room began to count out loud in a very insane manner. I followed them till they got to 750, and then everybody yelled Westminster. I do not know whether they meant the "Abbey," or whether they were merely counting their beads. I feel called upon to say, however, that it is very irreverent to shout so loud in a house of worship. Young people do not seem to be so devout now as they were in my younger days.

We soon left the Chapel and bent our steps to the Library, which was in very fact a comely place. The door opened into a large visiting room with a narrow running track on a level with the second floor. At least it looked like the structure they called the running track in the—"James," I think one of the students called the building—built in Dago architecture. The large room reached, I should have before stated, to the roof and was protected from the elements by a large colored window inscribed with such names as Moses, Virgil, and Hawthorne, (whom I don't remember). I was glad to see that they had not forgotten to put my friend William's name among the others. Sir Roger thought this keeping of great names before the youth a very good idea. Both from the large room and from the running track many doors opened into smaller visiting rooms where one or even two couples might converse without interruption. This seemed to me a very clever idea.

One of these rooms was called the Greek Room. As we entered, a man who appeared to be a cross between Socrates and Demosthenes, only that his beard was red and bristly, ejected the pebbles from his mouth and glared at us. We turned hastily and went out. Returning to the large room we were met by a man who, they say, was old when the College was founded. In a tremendous voice he warned us not even to whisper as it made so much noise. When he found that we were interested in literary work he was very anxious to have us examine the French Encyclopedia, saying it was filled with useful and valuable information.

Sir Roger then observed we would better visit the Biology Laboratory. I couldn't recall that they had anything of that kind when I was at Oxford, but had high hopes that it was a place where we could get something good to eat, as I was very hungry. In passing the ravine we saw young lady sitting beneath a yew tree and mumbling, "Ah; Clifford: My dearest, dearest Clifford!" Fearing for her sanity I begged to go to her assistance, but Sir Roger said to let her alone. She was in love, it seems.

At last we came to the Laboratory, and the place seemed just a little unseemly to me. There were animals without doubt. Some were stone, others were wood; some were nothing but bones, while still others were in glass jars and had juice around them. The young people were cutting up a certain kind of worm that seemed to have been kept for a long time. They must have been a very rare species for the man who seemed to be in charge said he would make them pay a shilling if they spoiled one. Personally I thought that would be a very difficult thing to do, judging from the odor in the room, but he doubtless knew more about it than I. However, I would have interfered (if it had not been for Sir Roger) when he compelled all the young people to attach their names to such vile thing as a worm, and then put it away for future use. This gave me reason to reflect again on the injustice of absolute authority.

In fact, this visit of ours to the City of Perpetual Youth gave Sir Roger and myself both a deal—nay, a great deal, of food for thought.

Facilis Decensus Averni

John Husk, later known as Jack, was the prime member of the real smart set of Hartsville, and so when he went to college he went on the seu, vidi, siti plan. Now, although he was a winner and a hot dog when it came to togs in Hartsville, when he arrived at Allegheny College he found that he was no more at home than a W. C. T. U. convention would be in a brewery. But hustling down to the "Glad Rag" clothing store he stocked up: one pair of wheat bag trousers, an ashen gray tie, and champagne shoes. Then securing his room—in the meantime having found a boarding club where the commissary always imitated Ellen Beach Yaw's voice, and besides doing a few odd jobs on the circuit, answered to the awful name of Harley John—he settled down to be a real, rollicking college man.

At the club he met a fellow rather like a sky pilot, he thought—a gaunt looking chap with a wide range of hair—who began to work him up for Y. M. C. A. Of course Husk was open for engagements, and as the Y. M. C. A. had its first meeting that night, he went. The above-mentioned gaunt chap took him in tow and moored him well up toward the front of the hall. His friend of the Ellen Beach Yaw voice was there and made a strong plea for the new brethren. And Husk woke up to the fact that he was a fallen brother. Then a short chap with a Dago face, and a hideous looking moustache, got up and told of his feeling for the new people. He was followed by others, one of whom especially attracted John's attention. He was tall and pious looking, with a thoroughly ministerial air; a little bald as to the head, and with the look of an aluminum agent on his face. He told the fellows to do as he did and they would get good charges, paying well. Husk saw that he had a peculiar looking pin on his breast—a sort of ball and chain arrangement, and it made him curious to get next. But nothing happened, and so closed the first day. The next morning he was put wise by one of the Sophomores to keep away from "those Frat men," because they were not Y. M. C. A. men, and were "not on the straight and narrow," etc. Husk was willing to know all and kept tight as a clam.

After Chapel a short fat man came up to him and said, "How do you do? You are Mr. Husk, I believe?"

"Of course Husk said "Yes."

"Well, I am Beefly of the Ki Yis, and would like to have you come over to dinner to-day."

"Thank you, delighted," said Husk, and down they went.

All the Ki Yis, returned from the farms and summer hotels, were on the scent keenly for a good man. Beefly did the honors, and when the repast was over and the life of the Frat had settled into its daily rut of running down the other bum bunches and the Barbs, Beefly commenced to shoot it into Husk something like this: "We are glad to have you here to-day, old man. Of course you will join a Frat. They take all the good men, so you ought to join. You should look for a good bunch, and I think we have it right here. We have thirty-four men, twelve of whom have dress suits, and as for national reputation, we have the others beaten by ten lengths. Our Frat was founded in 1799, at Punkville Academy—never was a College but always wanted to be—situated in Pike county, Maine. We have ninety-nine active chapters, one hundred and two inactive, and a few really dead—besides a chapter in Australia. The academy has died, the county and town have disappeared; but we still remain. We have on our alumni roll such men as Dr. Chadwick, Tom Lawson, one of the Biddle brothers, John Mitchell, and Jim Corbett. I do not think you can find fault with these facts." Being completely overwhelmed by this brilliant array, Husk gave in and was announced to the waiting throng of Ki Yis as an enthusiastic brother-elect. He now felt that his future was made.

* * * * *

One year has elapsed. We find Jack Husk the "the whole show." He has completely subdued the wily Hall girl, being able to walk from Chapel with Miss Rust, of the Slappa Kappa Frappas, and to make eyes at Miss Musk, of the Skalpa His. His trousers are corduroy. His hat is turned up in front, and with a gorgeous stock and his champagne shoes we are lout to think of him as we first knew him. As we leave him now with the recollection of the time we saw him chinning with the charming Miss Gold—who has all she can do to take care of one man—and also of the fact that he now possesses evening clothes, we know that his college course is doing him a great deal of good, and that he is living up to the high reputation of the Ki Yis.

An Affair at Allegheny

After annexation at administrative apartments, Alpha Alpha adopted, athletics absorbed Adolphus. Always applying ambitious ability, A. Atherton acquired abstruse analytics, astronomical archaeology and antediluvian anthropography; and, an able animal assisting, assimilated ablative absolutes and Aristophanes.

Ah, amazingly amorous Aphrodite! Ambulating an April afternoon, Adolphus approached Arabella Atchison, also an Alleghenian. Although arterial apparatus acceleration accompanied Arabella's appearance, Adolphus appealingly articulated, "Alma Arabella, adorable angel, ambrosial amaranth, Adolphus adores, aspires; approach ample arms."

Arabella admired, affably assented, and accepted aforementioned arms and affections.

Theta Sigma “Comes Out”

Sister Rowley had said, “Theta Sigma expects every girl to do her duty,” and they were ready. The crescent pins, having arrived, were carefully hidden way down in the toe of Sister Mabel Deane’s stocking. Sister Bates was fairly exuberant, talking garrulously in bunches of abbreviations like a railroad timetable. “It was T. D. B. (too bad) about the other girls’ frats now,” she said, “F. B. V. (Frank Baker, Valedictorian) said so, etc., etc.”

But Sister Bates was soon choked off by the other sisters, who were in a hurry. Sister Deane, having extracted the crescent pins from their place of safe-keeping, distributed them among the sisters with fitting words of presentation. “Gee, ain’t they lovely?” murmured Sister McAlister in raptures, and the whole company sighed joyfully. It was too good to be true.

But Sister Rowley saw a good opportunity for a few words of warning. “Girls,” she said—“Sisters, you mean,” interrupted a dozen voices—“Sisters,” continued the high-mucky, apologetically, “You mustn’t get swell headed. You ain’t been frat very long. I tell you, you want to be modest. Of course, there ain’t nothing can touch us, but we ain’t a-goin’ to let on. It ain’t policy. Now let’s give the yell.”

And while the sisters take this vociferous means of announcing their cherished sororal relations, let us wish them good luck and draw the curtain.

Theta Delta Gib. Frat Meeting

John Richmond the Main Talker—He Asks for Tobacco.

“The brothers will please come to order,” he ejaculated, in his customary broad French-Irish accent. He continued, suavely, “Brothers, before we take up our business, I should like to ask Brother Dye for enough tobacco to fill my pipe. I assure you I intended to purchase some myself yesterday. I forgot it, I dare say.”

Brother Y. M. C. A. Dye wearily handed over the sack of Bull Durham to his superior, and Gib went on, “Now, as I have said before, the policy of our revered brotherhood is to be strongly non-frat. It is the bawds who have helped us; we in turn shall help the bawds. Ah! brothers, it is my dream that some day the frat men shall kneel before us and ask humbly for our assistance. What shall we do then, brothers? Shall we grant their request? No, brothers, we shall scawn them! We shall scawn them! We shall stand up to our full height and say, ‘Frat men, you have till now despised us; you have lawffed us to scawn. Now, frat men, it is we who shall scawn you. By the howly St. Patrick, we shall nevah, nevah, do what you ask! Brother Dye, will you kindly paws me some more of the tobawco. I will repay you when I purchase some of my own. I shall not forget it, I dare say.”

He Writes to Beany, Telling of His Experiences at College.

ALLEGHENY COLLEGE, Oct. 10, 04.

Dear Beany:

Do you remember when Squire Hawkins hit Jim Poole on the head with his cane at election time? Well, that ain't nothing compared with what we do here. Everybody wants to lam everybody else over the head. The Frats are one party and the non-Frats the other. Just like you would say, gentlemen and others.

Before election the faculty usually sends a delegation to each party, unbeknowns to the other, and tells each one that it is to the best interests of the college for them to win out. This helps to get people into the athletic association, which costs 25¢. It makes the fellows mad when they learn how they have been fooled, but the faculty don't care, for they know their reputation can't be hurt. Why, they say just awful things about a man named Smith. I don't dare to write them, but I will whisper them to you some time. He don't seem to care. Anyway he smiles all the time and keeps acting worse. The fellows say he is too cute to go to jail, but they are going to shut him up in Hulings Hall sometime. That is where the girls stay. They aren't very nice so I speak to only one or two.

Don't let anybody see this that knows me, 'cause they might think I wasn't in good company.

Write soon.

Dear Beany:

You know I never say anything mean about another fellow; but there is an awful hyperboler here. That big word is polite for liar. He started a fraternity last term that seems just like that old lodge Fatty started in his father's hen house. Do you remember, Beany, how we watched his mother wash his head with soft soap afterwards. He wanted me to join, 'cause he said I was so popular. I ain't much good but I am never going to belong to this new fraternity or the athletic board. He said the fellows would be tougher than the Deltas in two years, and that the dues would be about 50¢ a month, but he wouldn't expect to pay any 'cause he got it up. He knows a good deal about fraternities, 'cause he almost belonged to a real one, once.

Write soon.

P. S.—His name is Giblyn, and he is a Catholic at Chapel time. Some people say he actually told more lies about his old fraternity than the Registrar did to Andrew Carnegie. I will never join.

ALLEGHENY COLLEGE, February 28, '05.

Dear Beany:

An awful thing happened to the College the other day. The girls were given a bowling alley, but none of the fellows can play there. Isn't that rotten? I bet Doc Smith and Ab Comfort swore right out when they heard about it. And they say the girls can't look at it without crying. It's pretty hard, Beany. Don't you remember how that fellow told my mother that the social advantages were very great here? Well, Dr. Smith and Miss Spalding have been here ten years and they ain't married yet. I mean to anybody else. A fellow don't have any chance. Nor a girl either. You know I used to be pretty popular with the girls, but here I can't look at one without begging some other fellow's pardon. I never have any luck, anyway. Write soon.

ALLEGHENY COLLEGE, April 30, '05.

Dear Beany:

You needn't think you are so big; I have two girls writing to me now, and I could show their letters to you too, only I ain't so mean. Any girl can trust me. Say, Beany, do you remember how my father and yours used to talk about competition and monopolies? Well, we have an awful queer kind of competition here. It's only for people who want to be editors, though. The one who got there this year is an awfully good competitor. He jollied the old editor just great. That's all you have to do, you know. He said she was a born critic and didn't look over twenty, and that he felt sure she could write if she didn't have to spend all her energy reading proof. I bet she believed him, too, because she laughs right out loud when she is with him, and dances 'round on her toes like our old rooster used to do in the snow. We fellows didn't envy him any 'cause he promised to go with her two whole months if she would vote for him. It's pretty tough on him. I heard the other day that he woke up in the night calling for Help! at the top of his voice. Now, Beany, we know there are only two things makes a fellow talk in his sleep. There ain't any green apples this time of year, so he must be afraid the Devil is after him. Beany, I ain't never going to have anything to do with anybody who is an editor—anyway, if she is a girl. I try to be nice to the editor of the Kaldron so he wont tell any lies about me. But they are all mean. I am glad I don't lie like some people do. I heard they are going to print that old picture of mine that mother always said didn't look at all like me. If I was mean I might tell something about them, but I ain't. It's awfully hard not to be, when the fellows are all mean. Write soon.

P. S.—And the girls, too. They are all mean.

P. S. 2d.—All but Mary.

The Trustees' Visit

Oh, the great day for the college
When the trustees came to visit!
Came to spend old Andy's millions,
Came to rebuild Ancient Hulings,
And destroy the dear old landmarks,
Just to render all things modern.
"Let all students be at chapel,
I command it," thundered Prezie,
"Not a vacant seat before me,
When the trustees come to visit."
Then did Profs implore their classes,
Not an absence, not a flunking,
In the Hall went forth the dictum,
Sternly said by Mrs. Laffer,
"All the rooms to be in order,
Not a dustlet, not a crumblet,
When the trustees come to visit."
Busy girls who work at cramming,
Pretty girls who live by flirting,
Let the precious hours fly by them,
Rooms not swept, nor laid in order.
After lights are out, and silence
Reigns supreme in stately Hulings,
Out slip maidens turning broom wards;
Halls begin to look like boudoirs
As the chairs and desks and tables
Moved to give some greater freedom
To the teasing little dust flake.
Peace, oh peace, to Mrs. Laffer!
Peace to Alice Huntington Spalding!
May their quiet dreams remain so,
Lest they feel a duty pressing
And they rise and scold the maidens
Who so cleanly have become now.
No, the trustees are to visit,
And the sweeping and the dusting,
Even at the hour of midnight,
May not find the least disfavor
In the eyes of the Preceptress.
In the kitchen reigns confusion
For the trustees are to dine there;
Pies prepared, are placed for baking
(By one sore distressed and flurried)
On a chair—and not the oven—
Where the cook, to a rest a moment,
Rests on pie, and ends its life there.
Farewell, pie, long will your spirit
Haunt the appetite so healthy!
Oh, the great and solemn silence,
When the trustees came to dinner.
Girls are quiet, awed to stillness,
At the stern and august presence.
"Just a simple, homelike dinner!"
Hark! the girls groan deep in spirit.
Meal that's roasted, warm and juicy,
Potatoes rich, that swim in gravy,
Coffee, real, not muddy water,
Last the pie in sweetened splendour!
Would the trustees came to visit
Every day for dinner simple!
Oh, the calm and peace that settled
Like a cloud upon old Hulings,
When that great and august body
With a blessing had departed.
Dust and crumbs collect in plenty,
Midnight hours are kept for sleeping;
Chapel cuts are had at pleasure
But the memory of that visit
Will remain forever with us.
Ah! the things they promised to us,
May we see them ere we leave here,
May the Preps enjoy as Seniors,
May the trustees come to visit
With another gift of millions!
May our beaming Prexy greet them
With a smile that's made to order.

The Janitor's Diary

The Following Extracts from Andy Morford's Daily Journal Kept During the Year 1904-5 We Guarantee to be Authentic—If You Don't Believe It, Ask Andy.

Sept. 22. Well, they're here. Put on two new mantles for girls who said they'd had a pillow fight. Polly is real cheerful. The girls amuse her and she called "Polly wants a cracker" for ten minutes at supper time. Father Luce says the girls want the tennis court put in order. Miss Spalding has found mice in her room. Though that isn't as bad as when she got me up one night to catch June bugs in her room.

Oct. 18. Father Luce had to go down town with Mrs. Smock so I opened the oratory. Dr. Smith was holding one of his real earnest prayer meetings, when the Freshmen are all there and its rushing time with the frats; so they were all out in big crowds. When the Phi Gams all came stringing in I heard a girl say, "I wonder what the Phi Gams want? They never all come unless they're going to strike Prex for something."

It beats me what them girls will do to go with a man! Last night I heard a noise that sounded like a dog chasing a cow, and I jumped up thinking of the cow the boys used to put in the old chapel every night. This wasn't no cow, only some fellows talking to the girls on third floor. Some one on second threw a pail of water on them. One fellow said, "Gosh! who rooms up there?" The girls giggled and told the boys to come up the next night for fudge. They tied a rope to a basket and let it down. Some of them were in the basement and Belle's new clothes-line hasn't been seen since. It'd about reach to a third story window.

Oct. 30. I'll have to stay up all night to keep watch of the Preps so they won't paint things up. The girls are having a masked party. This afternoon they were making jack-lanterns on the lawn and invited me to help. I get my share cleaning up after the parties—though its little enough fun.
the girls have cooped up in that Hall. I don't know's blame them for kicking over the traces once in a while.

Nov. 5. Sunday night I didn't come straight home from church and coming across the campus you'd a'laughed. On the Observatory steps was a couple resting. On the Oratory was another; up on the library porch were two more. When I got to Bentley there were three or four who were enjoying the moonlight. On the back steps of Wilcox was another two and a whole bunch of freshmen were staying until the last minute on Hulings. I was telling Belle about it and she said, "I'd do it if I was them." It's none of my business but I'm glad the professors don't see them going to Trow's Sunday nights else the girls would have another rule.

Nov. 23. When I went out this morning there was a big pile of stuff in the front yard west of the steps. I'm used to finding anything from love letters to old clothes in the front yard, but this was wrapped up. A loaf of bread, a pound of butter, and what had been a bag of raw eggs, though mostly scrambled when I found them. That meant a spread. Mrs. Minnis said Skin and Bones was out initiating last night and I. R. E. got on to it; they broke into the dining room, grabbed the spread and run clear to third floor with Skin and Bones yelling after them. They say S. & B. broke in and I. R. E. threw the spread out the window. However that may be Miss Ottoway said to-day their rug was loose and would I nail it down? Things looked as if there'd been something doing though that's none of my business. I heard a noise at half-past-two and went out to see what was up. 'Twas just going up. Some men were watching a light-haired and a black-haired girl on the south-east corner haul up a basket of stuff. Both of them said, "How perfectly lovely of you to bring up the things after those horrid I. R. E. girls stole the spread." Neither one of them was out to sunrise prayer meeting the next morning.

Jan. 18. The winter term's been peaceful, though it takes all my time to keep up steam. Last night Belle and I had just got to sleep when we heard a whooping under the windows. I'm used to seeing the fellows around the Hall talking to the girls but not a hundred to once. They was dressed rough like and had white bags and said they'd do up the crowd. About ten minutes and across the corner came a great crowd of men and girls hurrying for the back door which Mrs. Laffer had unlocked. The crowd yelled like demons and threw flour on 'em while Mrs. Laffer helped push the fellows off the back steps. When the girls got in there was a bad mix-up. Ab Comfort and Ballantyne were fighting like all possessed and a girl on third floor wringing her hands and crying, "O, don't hurt my Ab."

April 3d. Belle and I are going to move to our own house to-morrow. Polly has had the dumps ever since the girls left and I don't know how she'll stand it. She just lives on excitement. The girls seemed sorry to hear we were going. I'm sure I don't know who they'll find to buy sugar of for making fudge on Sunday now. Belle and I'll miss them a lot.

Plant tobacco on my grave.—Phil Porter.

Will Saunders Taft, professional author, and writer for the magazines, in a reckless burst of confidence to one of his numerous “lady friends,” once boasted with some show of bravado that he disli ked getting down on his marrow-bones to say his prayers. He foolishly went on to say that it was his custom to mumble his vespers while ensconced in a large easy chair, his feet perched on the mantel-shelf.
Here we have a picture of Willie.
Satan trembles when he sees
The weakest saint upon his knees.
But Taft, he seeks an easy chair,
For frosts and chills don’t touch him there.

Freshman, (making out church report)—"Say, Giblyn, how do you spell Presbyterian?
Giblyn—"How do I know? I don’t go to that church."
A thing of beauty is a joy forever.—Cappeau.

A professor called H. Edward Wells,
Has a voice like the sweetest toned bells;
The girls think he’s swell
But he treats them like—well
Just exactly like H. Edward Wells.

Baker’s Dozen.—The Campus Board.

A red-headed nucleus of argumentative pugnacity.—J. Mac Calvin.

IF YOU WANT TO GET THEM SORE, ASK
Doc Knudson about that egg-nog.
Giblyn what became of those sideburns.
Bess Risk about flash-light photography.
Ballantyne what girl he loves the best.
Doc Smith when he intends to retire from politics.
Scotty if he loves Hatty.
Bill Elliott about Pan Hell Day.
Zim Horner why he made those two flying trips to Philadelp-hia.
The Kaldron Board when the Kaldron is coming out.

A Delta Tau Delta named Aiken,
It took an alarm clock to wa ken;
He was not only lazy,
But also quite crazy,
As if too much booze he had taiken.

"Cupid"—Dicky Tau Delta Bolard.

Resolved—That
I will never
FLUNK anybody while I am at Allegheny—
Buster Brown
Me Too—
Tige Gurney.

Big as a barn; slow as Johnny Hamnett; and handsome as the D-v-i—Robertson.

Chuck Merrill—"My! I wish I had your talents."
Nell Fitzgerald—"Well, they go with me."

Pan Hell Day. Farr (giving the rally cry)—"This way, Phi Delts."
Voice from the crowd—"We are coming, Father Abraham, three hundred thousand strong."

"Where are we going, my pretty maid,"
"'To 'Trows,' for ice cream, sir," she said.
"'Alas,'" he gasped, as his face turned blue,
For he didn't possess a single sou.

THE PHYSICS TREADMILL

Patented by Lawrence Whiskers Guernsey. Guaranteed to flunk more students than any other device of its kind in existence.
Recommended by Bill Hotson.

Reavely is a fat man;
Reavely is a tub;
When he plays at foot-ball, Reavely is a sub.

She could always rely on Kunkle—Miss Milliren.

Tried to make people believe he was a hard-headed old cynic.—Nate Phillips.

People who live in glass houses should pull down the blinds.—Scotty and Harty.

Ask the old students about our work.
We offer an excellent opportunity to young women who are working their way through college. Our Corsets are a delight to all women who wear them. They excel all others on the following five points:
1st—Durability. The boning and side steels are guaranteed to be absolutely unbreakable. 2nd—Style. 3rd—
Comfort. 4th—Hygienic and Health properties. 5th—
Lightness of weight.

A lady can row a boat, play golf or climb a mountain in one of our corsets with as much ease and comfort as she could without a corset on.

For further information call on or address,

The Spirella Company,
Meadville, Pa.

All ladies attending Allegheny College should wear Spirella.

Unexpected Truth—A lady teacher in one of the schools, trying to explain the meaning of the word "slowly," illustrated it by walking across the floor. Then she asked the class to tell her how she walked. She nearly fainted when a boy at the foot of the class shouted, "Bow-legged, m'am!"
