Dear Miss Tarbell:

From inquiries which I have been making since receiving your letter with reference to Mr. Young's activities during the war, I am led to suggest the name of Mr. John Ellwood, Vice President of the National Broadcasting Company, whose office is at 711 Fifth Avenue, New York. Mr. Ellwood, I am informed, was Mr. Young's private secretary during the period of the war and is intimately familiar with all that Mr. Young did of consequence during that interval. I have every reason to believe that he will assist you to the utmost extent and regret that we did not have something more definite for you before this.

With best wishes,

Yours sincerely
