1933-01-10

Letter: Gertrude F. Bloss to Ida M. Tarbell, January 10, 1933

Bloss, Gertrude Fiske

http://hdl.handle.net/10456/38643

This item is in the public domain.

All materials in the Allegheny College DSpace Repository are subject to college policies and Title 17 of the U.S. Code.
My dear Miss Farbell.

In the literature department of the Westborough Woman's Club, I have a book chapter and each of the twenty-first members reviews a book. I have chosen your book, "Owen D. Young: A New Type of Industrial Leader," this year.

Now because my husband used to play with your brother fifty odd years ago, and because the man is such a naughty boy that you would remember him, I presume to ask a favor. Could you give me something I could tell the chapter? Did you especially enjoy writing the book? Of course I feel it is... not in the book - or anything with your signature.

Mr. Blow has been an editor all these thirty-seven years that have been married to him. Chicago, New York and Westborough. Twenty-two years here.

I would appreciate a reply very much and would not feel offended if you found it impossible.

Very Sincerely,

[Signature]

[Address:
Blossomfield, Westborough, Jan. 17th, Massachusetts]

And Jan. 17th is Mrs. Blow's seventy-third birthday.