Dear Mr. Case:

Here is the second copy of the book ~~to~~ ~~cross~~ the publisher's threshold. I thought Mr. Young might like it at least I am sending it along autographed.

By the end of the week I am hoping to have copies for you - Miss Candler and Miss Morrison.

Reading the report in the Times this morning of the re-organization of the Labor Bank and the credit there given to Mr. Young I wonder if it would be possible to show in some detail just what his contribution was to this re-organization. It would be useful for the public to know what is involved in such an undertaking as this. I begin to feel that we must look to him for a much needed education in finance. Think it over and if it seems practical let me know, and of course you know that if the suggestion does not strike you favorably I shall not think of it again.

Very sincerely yours

Mr. Everitt Case
