

February 21, 1931.

Mr. Frank H. Towsley,
Dills and Towsley,
Pershing Square Building,
New York City, N.Y.

My dear Mr. Towsley:

Your letter of February 12th has just reached me here in Arizona. I hoped before leaving New York to write you, but my correspondence was so heavy that I put aside everything that was not imperative.

No, I had not forgotten you, nor lost your address, but I had not yet taken up Mr. Young's life as a lawyer, other things having crowded that out. I have been reconsidering it; my attack on that part of his life.

As soon as I am back in New York which will not be until April, and have leisure, I will drop you a note and we will have another talk if you still wish to.

Regretting that there should have been so much delay, believe me,

Very truly yours,

INTRO
