Dear Mr. Wright:

When you were good enough to talk to me several weeks ago about Owen D. Young as a lawyer, you gave me a brief characterization or analysis which I want to use in my forthcoming book. Enclosed is a copy. Have you any changes that you would like made in what I have written? I think it is close to what you said to me, but if you can improve upon it nobody will be more grateful than I.

I have been delayed in various ways getting the book to the printer, but it is there now and I am hoping for my proofs in a very few days so that if you can ^{write} me promptly about the enclosed I shall appreciate it.

Very truly yours
