There are many people who will worry about the "dreadful" future. Who are really trying to develop their ideas but who do not understand the concept of progress. We are not looking for the quick fixes. We are looking for the long-term solutions. We are looking for the sustainable solutions. We are looking for the solutions that will make our world a better place. We are looking for the solutions that will make our world a more efficient place. Their reason is that if we do not act now, it will be too late. If we do not act now, it will be too late to prevent it from unfolding. As it unfolds, it will only get worse. The challenge is that this is not a simple task. We need to understand the issue and apply it in a sustainable way. We need to understand the permanence of our actions. We need to understand the consequences. We need to understand the implications. We need to understand the future.
