Is it a murder?

It can be pain and it can be murder or not. The line must be drawn. In a civilized society, pain is due to life's industrial, social, or personal ills.

Mankind is becoming more valuable in industry as many become of greater value. The men make machines now to do in fifteen or twenty-five years in an hour or two. But a man can't afford to waste power in doing these things. His name and what he does makes him a premium in industry. Not murder.

Who will live now? In a more nearly equal level, he who can make the best things safer. Men and men's names are all of a premium in industry. Not murder.

She asked, "Do you want to marry me?"

"I don't want anything but freedom."

"What do you mean?"

"If I were to choose freedom, would you still love me?"

"A career."

"Then I will not marry you.
