

most highly honored by your undertaking.
Please believe me, my dear Mrs. Leavitt,
Westford, Mass.
149 Nodurn Street,
Mrs. W. B. Leavitt,
of the suggestions and criticisms that it is you are giving to it. I should like to know something and that the book really justified the attention that to let me know how it is coming out, whether you feel as the do. If it is not too much trouble, I would like you of your own which will place out what I was not able to you will bring to it an amount of experience and wisdom that you are to give it. This I am sure, however, have hope that it is worth anywhere near the attention

Mrs. W. B. Leavitt,
147 Woburn Street,
West Woburn, Mass.
My dear Mrs. Leavitt:

Very sincerely yours

I have been away from New York for over five weeks and coming back I find in my accumulation of mail your letter of October 8th. I am so sorry that it should have lain so long unanswered.

Remember you and West Medford and Mrs. Hallowell, and the kindness of everybody to me? when I spoke there six years ago? Of course I do. I can shut my eyes now and see Mrs. Hallowell's charming and quaint home, and many of the interesting things in it.

You were having trouble over your elms when I was there, too, I remember, and I cannot tell you how many times as I have laboured over those on my own little farm in Connecticut there has flashed before my eyes the picture of the Hallowell home, and the elms on the lane and along the street.

I am quite overwhelmed with the honor you are doing my little book, "The Business of Being a Woman." I do hope that it will be useful to you, but I hardly digital images of the M. Tappan Collection, 1890-1944, Allegheny College Pelletier Library.

can hope that it is worth anywhere near the attention that you are to give it. This I am sure, however, you will bring to it an amount of experience and wisdom of your own which will piece out what I was not able to do. If it is not too much trouble, I would like you to let me know how it works out, whether you feel at the end that the book really justified the attention that you are giving to it. I should like to know something of the suggestions and criticisms that it may bring up.

Please believe me, my dear Mrs. Leavitt, I feel most highly honoured by your undertaking.

Very sincerely yours,

I have been away from New York for over five weeks and coming back I find in my accumulation of mail your letter of October 8th. I am so sorry that it should have lain so long unanswered.

Remember you and West Bedford and Mrs. Halliwell, and the kindness of everybody to whom I spoke there six years ago? Of course I do. I can shut my eyes now and see Mrs. Halliwell's charming and quaint home, and many of the interesting things in it.

You were having trouble over your elms when I was there, too. I remember, and I cannot tell you how many times as I have laboured over those on my own little farm in Connecticut there has flashed before my eyes the picture of the Halliwell home, and the elms on the lawn and along the street.

I am quite overwhelmed with the honor you are doing my little book, "The Business of Being a Woman." I do hope that it will be useful to you, but I hardly