Mr. H. S. Latham,
The Macmillan Company,
64 Fifth Avenue,
New York City.

Dear Mr. Latham:

I have your letter of March 29, asking me if anything has been done about the transfer of copyright on my books published by the McClure-Phillips Company.

No, I am sorry to say, nothing has; and I am afraid that I have mislaid the form that you sent me. Could you give me another? You see, I have been out of town practically all of the time since September and in some of my wanderings must have lost your letter and the enclosure. If you will forgive me and send me what you want signed, I will take the matter up promptly now. I think it can be done because both Mr. McClure and Mr. Phillips are in town.

Very truly yours,
