Dear Miss Tarbell,

allow me to thank you once more for your brillant biography of Lincoln, which you had the great kindness to present to me during my stay in America. It has greatly helped me to find my way in the thick woods of Lincolniana and in the many difficulties a foreigner must encounter in trying to write about this must dramatic phase of your history.

I am greatly indebted to you for telling my editor that you would not mind looking trough my manuscript. May I send you the first part, which has now been translated into English.[2] I am fully aware of the kindness, you so generousely bestow on a fellow writer, in giving him your time on a subject you yourself have masterfully handled.

Believe me most sincerely yours

Emil Ludwig
