Dear Miss Rowley:

The last letter that you wrote me May 1st found me deeply humiliated by having to return to the hospital. I am out and beginning to take notice.

One thing I notice is that Dr. Schultz promises me a copy of the photograph of Carl Sandburg and himself. Tell him I shall remember what you say.

You speak of the delphinium named from Sandburg by Steichen. I knew him long before his delphinium days but it's years since I've seen him. Sandburg's wife is a sister of E. S.. She's famous as a successful breeder of goats.

Lincoln items come my way occasionally. I am having sent insured two that ought to be in your care. I have never paid much attention to coins. Have a few, however, packed away. The one I send is unusually interesting I think. I have told Mrs. Thompson that you would mark it as her gift and would put it in the proper place. Along with the coin I am sending a volume which I never saw until it was sent me by one of my former neighbors here, Mrs. Weld. It's probably not the earliest of the Lincoln Memorial Volumes, but it's very early as you see, '65. I inclose the name of the donor. Little by little we grow.

Greetings to you and the staff,

Affectionately,

P. S. I send these Lincoln items to you supposing that's the proper way. If you'd rather I'd send them to Miss H. to whom I suppose they are passed, let me know.
