COMMITTEE ON ATHLETICS ANNOUNCES NEW POLICY

College Athletics Will be Reduced to Strictly Amateur Basis.

On Sunday, May 10, the faculty committee on athletics at Allegheny College went on record as advocating a complete change in its athletic policy with the elimination of all financial assistance to men participating in varsity athletics. Formal announcement of this change was made in the Meadville morning paper on May 11.

This announcement was made only after the most careful investigation of athletic conditions in all of the schools in the vicinity of Meadville. The members of the committee have spent more than a year considering methods in other colleges, and after feeling fully satisfied with their conclusions, they announced their new policy recently.

The basis of the committee's report is that athletic publicity is far inferior to other forms of advertising and that athletics serve a definite purpose with their inclusion into the activities of a college. Athletics should exist for the majority of the students; hence the committee lays special emphasis on intramural sports.

In announcing the new policy, the faculty committee believes that it is accomplishing a definite purpose and that conditions will be far better when all athletic representatives are playing for their school rather than entering into a business undertaking. They feel that their conclusions are somewhat drastic for this section of the country, but the success in other districts assures them that everything will work out exceedingly well at Allegheny.

The Committee on Athletics and Gymnasium is composed of Professors Church and Lavely and Mr. Way, athletic director at Allegheny.

The complete policy as outlined by the committee follows:

1. We believe firmly in the value of athletics, both intramural and intercollegiate.

2. We believe that the main purposes of athletics in a college are (1) to develop the participants physically, and (2) to teach true sportsmanship. We believe that the publicity value of intercollegiate athletics has been greatly exaggerated, that publicity centering around the educational activities of the college is much more wholesome and desirable than athletic publicity, and that Allegheny College should strive to be known and judged by educational standards and achievements rather than by the number of athletic championships it can win.

3. We believe that athletics are beneficial in direct ratio to the number of participants in the various sports, and for this reason we plan a rapid and fully rounded expansion of our program of intramural athletics.

4. All intercollegiate athletics shall be on a strictly amateur basis, and no athlete shall receive financial aid, or compensation in any other form, in excess of the regular scholarships, loans, or employment which are given for scholastic excellence, financial need, or other legitimate reasons. We believe, however, that in case of an otherwise desirable student, athletic ability may properly be taken into account in the awarding of such regular aid.

5. All questions of athletic policy, schedules, eligibility, and all other phases of the athletic program shall be under the direct control of the faculty through a committee appointed by the president. In order that a large number of the members of the faculty may be kept in touch with the problems involved in the administration of an athletic program, this committee shall consist of five members, two permanent members from the department of physical education and athletics, and three additional faculty members who shall serve for three years and be ineligible for immediate reappointment, one being appointed annually. This committee shall elect its own chairman annually.

6. All coaches shall be members of the faculty, remaining at college for the entire academic year, and their compensation shall be no greater than that of other members of the faculty.

7. The college will undertake to support varsity teams and maintain intercollegiate competition in the so-called minor sports, such as tennis, swimming, cross country, wrestling, etc., as well as in the so-called major sports, football, basketball, and track. These teams shall compete so far as possible with teams from institutions conducting athletics on an amateur basis comparable to our own.

8. We recognize the difficulty of arranging such schedules, and are prepared to face the necessity of curtailment or even the abandoning of intercollegiate competition in any sport in which it is impracticable to arrange such competition.

9. Inasmuch as the college has already made schedules and entered into agreements for the year 1931-1932, this policy shall go into effect beginning with the fall of 1932.

MARGARET WOOD ELECTED ALLEGHENY MAY QUEEN

Selected from List of Eight Girls Nominated on Last Friday.

Margaret Wood was elected as May Queen for the year in chapel last Monday, May 11, as a result of a vote taken from the entire student body.

Eight girls were nominated for the position last Friday in chapel. The nominees were Margaret Wood, Ann Gilmore, Adele Ely, Ruth Farquhar, Alice Luther, Lorraine Weeks, Minnie White, and Louise Powers. Miss Wood will lead the May Day procession on May 20 with the Misses Gilmore, Ely, Farquhar, Luther, Weeks, and White acting as attendants.

The election was under the sponsorship of Miss Leroy, but due to her absence, Helen Ruth Goll presided over both the nominations and the elections.

The May Queen for this year is a member of the Senior class and is affiliated with Kappa Alpha Theta sorority.

Plans for the regular celebration are progressing rapidly under the joint cooperation of the Student Government and Omicron Epsilon Delta. Several new features are being planned for the day, and with each class rendering original songs and the novel lantern dance which will be held on the Library Hill.

Players Guild Will Offer Production of 'Ile' May 18 and 19

On Monday, May 18th, and Tuesday, May 19th, at four-thirty P. M., The Allegheny Playshop will present to the student body Eugene O'Neill's "Ile."

This one-act drama created a sensation several years ago when it was first produced in the tiny Provincetown Theatre in Macdougal Alley, New York City. With "The Moon of the Caribbees," "Bound East for Cardiff," and other short plays, it marked the birth of a new genius in the American theatre. In "Ile" is revealed the sense of vital drama which has made O'Neill's later plays so great. The ingredients are starvation, mutiny, and madness, but the effect is anything but the mechanical stimulation of melodrama.

The present production is being given under the supervision of Miss Alice Huntington Spalding, Director of the Playshop Theatre, with two of Miss Spalding's students, members of the Players' Guild, in charge of the details.

It is hoped that the cast of "Ile" will remain unidentified by the student body until the curtain goes up on the Allegheny premiere. Suffice it to say that they are experienced amateurs and well drilled in their roles. The production staff is composed of technicians and artists.

All students and alumni are cordially invited to attend the presentations of "Ile." The only admission charge will be the skepticism brought to the Playshop and the appreciation left behind.

O. D. K. WILL ELECT OFFICERS TONIGHT

Tonight, Wednesday, May 13, the local chapter of Omicron Delta Kappa will convene at 8 o'clock. The meeting, to be held at the Alpha Chi Rho house, is to be devoted to the election of officers for the coming year. The retiring officials will be Warner White, president, and Robert Bates, secretary-treasurer.

ALBION SPEAKER WINS ORATORICAL CONTEST

James Hamilton Represents Allegheny in Meet on May 8.

On Saturday evening, May 8, James Hamilton returned from Albion College, at Albion, Michigan, where he represented Allegheny College in the annual contest of the Civic Oratorical League. Mr. Hamilton competed against speakers from four other schools: Western Reserve University, Wooster, Ohio Wesleyan, and Albion College.

First place, which carried a prize of thirty dollars, was awarded to Mr. Merrill Walls, the representative of Albion College. The oration which he delivered was entitled, "Belleau Wood." Craig Stockdale, the Wooster delegate, received second honors and an award of twenty dollars. Mr. Stockdale and Mr. Hamilton have long been close friends, and the contest took on a special interest because of this friendship. The winner of second place spoke on "The Decay of the City."

Allegheny's delegate delivered "The Road's End," the oration that won second prize for him in the annual Wakefield Contest. First prize in this meet was won by Howard Plate, and third was taken by William Roos. Under the revised rules of the contest, all

Iliff Theological School to Discard Bachelor Degree

Beginning with September 21st the Iliff Graduate School of Theology will discontinue giving the Bachelor degree in Theology. Students will enroll with the idea of taking the four year course, getting the Doctor of Theology degree. Those who find it necessary to drop out or who are unable to reach the quality of excellence required to obtain the Th.D. will take the Master of Theology degree.

Candidacy for the Doctor of Theology is made at the close of the third year, whereupon the faculty passes upon the merits of the students. Thus Iliff is trying to avoid the anomaly of the second Bachelor's degree, and at the same time strengthen the quality of work for the entire theological course.

In all four years of work for the degree no student may take more than 12 hours or 3 courses of four hours each. Each student is required to take practice work under expert supervision, this clinic work being a requirement for graduation.

Dean D. Shaw Duncan of the University of Denver will become professor of Church History at Iliff next year. Dr. Duncan holds the following degrees: Ph.B., Taylor University, Upland, Ind., 1900; A.B. 1901; A.M. 1904; LL.D. 1924; Ph.D. University of Denver, 1906; B.D., Iliff School of Theology, 1913. He has also studied at the United Free Church College, Glasgow, Scotland, and at Harvard University. He has been dean at the University of Denver since 1926 and will continue his duties there in addition to the work at Iliff.

With the program completely drawn up and the three candidates for the positions of alumni trustees nominated, letters containing this information were mailed to all alumni on Monday and Tuesday. This is the only direct announcement that will be sent to the alumni concerning events on the Commencement program. Three men are being considered for these positions, two of which are to be elected. The ballots which are being sent out contain a short biography of each man, and the essence of these ballots is printed herein:

Allegheny Singers to Travel to New Castle for Concert May 22

On Friday, May 22, the Allegheny Singers will make their fourth tour of the season when they will travel to New Castle to take part in a program arranged by the New Castle Valley District of the Masons. Following the concert a dance will be held as part of the program.

This will be the second trip on which only one town has been visited, the other two tours including concerts in several cities of Western Pennsylvania. About three weeks ago, the Singers traveled throughout the southwestern part of the state, ending in Pittsburgh, where they entertained at the annual alumni banquet of the Pittsburgh group. Sunday, April 26, the group filled a single engagement in the First Presbyterian Church of Titusville, and on May 3 they began a tour of the northwestern district. The New Castle trip will be the last tour of the season.

Representatives of Five Colleges Meet in Neighboring Town

Last Saturday the faculties of the "Big Five" colleges in western Pennsylvania convened for the purpose of discussing problems of mutual interest. The meeting took place at New Castle with the faculties of Allegheny, Thiel, Westminster, Grove City, and Geneva in attendance. Allegheny sent the largest delegation of the five there being twenty-five members of its faculty present at the sessions. Approximately one hundred professors and instructors were at the convention. Two sessions were held in the afternoon in the auditorium of New Castle High School. A representative of the State Board of Education addressed both sessions, talking on the state teachers' requirements. Following the main sessions, departmental meetings were held in which professors in the various departments discussed subjects of particular interest to those departments.

At six o'clock a dinner was served in the Castleton Hotel at New Castle. The principal speaker at the banquet was the Superintendent of the New Castle Schools. It is hoped to have these regularly. Although the date for the next meeting has not as yet been set, Dr. Ross extended an invitation to those present to hold the next meeting at Allegheny. It is believed that the invitation will be accepted.

Sally Pantall Injured en Route to Meadville Saturday Morning

While en route to Meadville last Saturday morning, Miss Sally Pantall, '29, was seriously injured when the car in which she was riding was crowded off the road and struck a pole. The car was driven by John McKay of Charleroi, Pennsylvania, a former student of Allegheny College. The other occupant of the car was Miss Murray, of Punxsutawney, Pa.

Immediately after the accident, Miss Pantall was taken to the Punxsutawney Hospital where X-rays revealed that she is suffering from concussion of the brain resulting from a fractured skull. Her condition is reported critical.

Miss Pantall attended Allegheny College from 1925 to 1929 when she was graduated. Following her graduation, she received a position as a teacher in the Punxsutawney High School. At the time of the accident, she was driving to Meadville where she planned to attend the Spring Party of the Kappa Alpha Theta sorority, of which she is a member.

INSURANCE PROVIDED FOR DEPAUW FACULTY

Approximately $275,000 of group life insurance has been provided for the employees and members of the faculty at DePauw University through a contract with the Equitable Life Assurance Society, it has been announced. The cost of the insurance will be shared by the university and those protected by it.

Miss Ida Preston Donates New Books to College Library

Marking one of the first gifts to the new addition to the Reis Library, Miss Ida Preston of Cleveland presented thirty books of fiction, biography, and some general subjects, all fresh and live books which the library committee was glad to receive. Miss Preston is a graduate from Allegheny College and is at the present time the secretary of the Cleveland Alumni Association.

Receipt of these boaks was acknowledged at a meeting of the Library Committee which was held on Monday, May 4. At this meeting, a report was made of the appropriations from the Carnegie Foundation fund and of the number of books purchased from this fund. Plans were made for next year's purchases.

Dean Schultz is Chairman of the Library Committee, and the other members are Professors McClean, Beiler, Woodring, Schafheitlin, and Chevret.

Mr. Porter, consulting architect for the library addition, has been in the East inspecting the installation of stacks in the libraries of Yale and Harvard. Yale has the same type of stacks that will be installed in the addition to the Allegheny Libray.

Article from 'Nation' Lauds Student Revolt at St. Lawrence U.

"At last a really significant student demonstration in one of our American institutions of higher learning, and our faith in the colleges is restored. The students of St. Lawrence University, incensed at the calling off of the upper-class 'paddling bee' for freshmen, presenting an ultimatum demanding the extension of time for parties until 2:30 a. m. and the abolition of a ruling 'forbidding the parking of girls on fraternity porches during the daytime,' and threatening, if these commands were not complied with, to call a strike 'against all extra-curricular activities.' Here are real issues and a threat of real action. Let those who despair of American students note the incident and take courage; for the spirit of Lexington and Bunker Hill is not dead. Consider a strike against all extra-curricular activities with the baseball season nearing its culmination and outdoor theatricals and Commencement festivities approaching! The blood in the snow at Valley Forge becomes pale pink by comparison, and Gandhi's non-resistance movement in India appears like a Sunday School picnic. Owen D. Young to the rescue! Let not this threatened sacrifice of our dauntless young heroes become a grisly reality!"

Drama Magazine Prints Pictures of 'Much Ado' Sets by Mr. Boettcher

Allegheny College and particularly the Student Playshop received some valuable and merited publicity in this month's issue of the "Drama and Little Theatre Magazine." In this issue is found a picture of the three sets used by the Playshop in its production of "Much Ado About Nothing" in the Playshop Theatre last spring. These sets were designed by Mr. Boettcher and have caused a good deal of comment in little theatre circles. It may be considered quite a distinction to receive such mention in a magazine of that type especially since there are so many schools in the country which sponsor little theatres.

Mr. Harold Ehrensperger, who recently paid a visit to the College, is a member of the board of advisors of the magazine, and it was through the good impression he received of the Student Playshop during his stay here that it recived the publicity that it did. Mr. Ehrensperger was very favorably impresed with the work that is being done at Allegheny and said that it ranked high in the little theatre movement among the colleges of the United States.

THE ATHLETIC POLICY

The faculty committee on athletics has announced a new and stringent policy regarding the conduct of athletic affairs at Allegheny. We must recognize and give credit for a bold and fearless step toward the abolition of athletic subsidation. Allegheny has set herself up as a pioneer in a movement that has rapidly been gaining a formidable impetus in the collegiate world.

The college will be criticized for its actions; in fact, it already has been. Havey Boyle, sports editor of the Pittsburgh Post-Gazette, saturated as he is with conventional and trite sports "lingo" quite naturally deplored the fact that Allegheny has announced a new athletic policy. Stained were his remarks with regret at the passing of a lot of good "copy."

Mr. Boyle, along with countless others, forgets that Allegheny College is an educational institution rather than a home for a good or a poor football team. And Allegheny prefers to be known as an educational institution. Her teams will be taken from the student body in the future and will not be composed of hired business men. She has taken a move which other colleges will do well to follow.

However, we shudder at the thought of eliminating intercollegiate athletics if necessary. We have established our point before, and all we say now is that Allegheny deserves congratulations for her significant move and should have the help of every Alleghenian in promoting her plans.

OREGON FLEES THE BOOGIE-MAN

According to the "New Republic" for April 29, a recent edition of the University of Oregon "Emerald" has been suppressed for presuming to extend a compliment to students who applauded when, during the presentation of the Russian film, "Ten Days That Shook the World," the picture of Lenin was flashed on the screen. Consternation broke out in faculty ranks when the newspaper editorially termed this "demonstration" a favorable sign, indicating an interest in world problems. Of course, it is impossible to say to what an extent the action of the Oregon publication was a swaggering gesture intended to make trouble. The situation as outlined in the "New Republic" seems, however, innocuous enough. While not necessarily seconding the opinion of the "Emerald's" editorial, one may well note the dangers inherent in the censorship assumed by Oregon's teaching staff.

A college paper ought to be the best place in the world for a young man to unburden himself even of his half-baked ideas. In fact, it is unwholesome to repress such thoughts: they become much more dangerous after fermentation. On the other hand, if the comment is just and reasonable, by what excuse do those whom we have always regarded as our intellectual leaders throw their hands to the sky in holy horror?

Above all, the campus is the last place where one would expect to discover the protective tactics made famous in legend by the ostrich. Again and again the ideas which have lifted humanity bodily and carried the sorry burden a little way along the road of progress, have been the offerings of university scholars, the product of clear-eyed study from a point of view at once the most aloof and comprehensive. In every country, in every generation, the advance guard of civilization has been recruited from the halls of institutions of higher learning; ununited, straggling, bickering as this van may have often appeared, it has nevertheless included the true pathfinders. And if the great problems of modern life drive the college howling to cover, to whom may we look for leadership?

A TRIBUTE

Last week the Allegheny Singers returned from the second tour of the year with no small amount of praise and glory being accredited to them for their accomplishments. As in the case of the first trip, letters and telegrams literally poured into Doctor Ross' office, each one affirming that the group of singers representing Allegheny College was one of the finest ever heard and that all members of the group demonstrated true Allegheny training by their excellent performances. And so at this time, the College takes the opportunity to congratulate the Allegheny Singers upon their success and express sincere appreciation for the impression left upon the audiences in the visited towns.

But no expression of thanks would be complete or correct without a tribute to Mr. Morten J. Luvaas, the faculty director, the man whose untiring efforts have been responsible for a group of untrained voices to become of such fine quality to merit innumerable commendations. Coming here as a regular member of the faculty in September, he immediately organized musical groups of all descriptions and was successful from the beginning. By injecting his personality into his work and by the organization of the Singers into an Allegheny College group, he secured cooperation in every endeavor. The students under his guidance then won recognition for their college from cities throughout the state.

In addition to making the Allegheny Singers a good advertisement, he developed a feeling among the various members of the group that will never be forgotten. He made the students feel that they were working for Allegheny College, and by the results of his endeavors, he made us prouder still of Allegheny. The students and teachers alike offer him this tribute and extend their appreciation to the splendid group of students who made his achievements possible.

The Thorn

Editor of The Campus:

As my college days are numbered, I should like to contribute a few general observations on our institution with the hope of having them acted upon or, at any rate, clearing my conscience of them. I was warned before coming to Allegheny that there were certain undesirable features which I would have to put up with, and I am afraid that I shall have to resort to the same cautioning of future students. I consider it a serious criticism of our school to have to do this. Although these evils seem to be recognized by everyone, not a hand has been raised in an effort to mitigate them. In fact, they have never even been clearly set forth in writing.

It is only proper to begin with the most fundamental constituent of the school, the student body. What is the matter with the student body? We may each ask ourselves. Are we degenerating? Of course not. How could that be possible when we rate better than Pitt, Westminster, Thiel, or . . . well, we are the best little college in the country. I do not know very much about other schools, but I do know from my contacts here that we are "pretty terrible," no matter how we rate in comparison with our sister colleges. To be blunt about it, we are prostituting scholarly learning, or any other kind of learning, for that matter. I am almost afraid to ask a question in class anymore for fear that my classmates will accuse me of meaning it. Refuse to leave with the class when the professor does not arrive on time and see if you are not stigmatized with that cruelly opprobrious appellation, "apple-shiner." As for actually engaging in an intelligent discussion with the professor (there being no classmate to take you up on that) you are considered an absolutely hopeless book-worm and introspect who belongs to another world. Of course, there are a few such persons in college today, but only about one in every hundred students, I should say. In other words, you are not supposed to cultivate the friendship of the faculty members as there could never be anything but a utilitarian purpose in it. Allow me to laud those courageous souls—and there are a few such—who have not allowed themselves to be submerged in this collegiate sophistry but are bearing the scourge and brand of their classmates. "May their tribe increase," is all I can offer as a proposed remedy.

Now, to give the girls a special paragraph in order to appease their appetite for attention: Far be it from me to attack the post-war standards of the fair sex; in fact, I thoroughly sympathize with them in so far as they mark that advancement which must take place according to the laws of history. I maintain that the girls have as much right to smoke, swear, drink, and "step out" as have the boys, but to make that their whole aim in life is rather ridiculous, to say the least. Also, if progress means that we have to offer inducements to girls to make them take up athletics, go for hikes, or think seriously, then I am not for it. Many boys complain that all they can get from the modern girl is "slapstick" performance. Perhaps we could become reconciled to the Hulingsites if it were not for the confounded (I suppose I should say artificial) social standards whereby the incoming girls lose their individuality in about two months after their arrival. What can be done with such an autocratic and aristocratic regime is beyond me. I would hesitate to recommend that any girl interested in maintaining her individuality choose Allegheny for her alma mater.

Now, to turn to that redoubtable body which has to contend with the above-mentioned facts and which no doubt appreciates and verifies my statements. Perhaps we would not need to go any further and simply concede that whatever discrepancies there may be between faculty and students are due to what has already been mentioned. No doubt they are to a considerable extent, but does that justify a professor's salary? Evidently not, for it is almost traditional that certain departments are antiquated or the courses offered are "duck soup." Then, too, one cannot fail to notice the standards of various departments. One has its courses carefully planned, does as much preparatory work as the student, perhaps more, and requires an indefinite amount of work from the student; another department may be the exact opposite of this. A professor has all that he can do to keep up in his field without engaging in a vast amount of extra-curricular duties which, in most cases, are remunerative.

What caused the non-frats to seek organization among themselves recently? The old question of protection, of course. Can you imagine a professor holding a prejudice against a student for not belonging to a fraternity? Perhaps this is more easily conceived in regard to exclusion from intra-mural athletics. And did you know that faculty members are subject to enthusiasm as their fraternity gatherings? All of this does not speak well for those independent individuals who refuse to undergo foolish initiations and endure fraternity life. It is beyond me to know why we need to put fraternity group pictures in the Kaldron and exclude the "nondescripts." It makes those who are left out feel as if they were not members of the school. The pictures in the Kaldron could serve as a very useful directory of the college if everyone were included and if the pictures were arranged according to classes or alphabetically. We cannot deal in terms of fraternities always and have any school spirit—or even deferred rushing.

Like all destructive criticism, mine is worthless without a remedy. I am not suggesting any because I fear that any radical change in the above would be detrimental to the existence of any small college, Allegheny included.

JOHN L. STEVENS.

Alleghe of Old

With the passing of time many changes are wrought, and many treasured memories are forgotten. In an effort to recall these old memories, traditions, this column is introduced to publish a series of articles dealing with the many phases of the school.

We have started with the Civil War because it was the beginning of the critical period in the history of the school and because after this conflict was the great and modern Allegheny to arise.

ALLEGHENY IN THE CIVIL WAR

To Allegheny, in the fifties had come boys from Mississippi, Louisiana, Tennessee, and Virginia; yet the college halls were free from sectional controversy. But the tension, after the firing on Fort Sumter, became accentuated beyond bounds. Rash words were spoken which resulted in an indignation meeting being held by the Northern students. An apology was demanded from the Southern students, but they refused and left the college.

On Saturday morning, April 20, the boys of Allegheny met at the Court House. A few addresses were made, but it was a time for action and they meant to take action. A call for volunteers was made and the first to sign was Alexander Ashley. This enrollment kept up until seventy-eight of Allegheny's daring sons had enlisted to become defenders of their school and Commonwealth.

On April twenty-fifth they were ordered to prepare for immediate departure. They encamped at the fair grounds and the townspeople subscribed $3,000 to fit them out. In this encampment the following officers were elected: Captain, Ira Thayer, Jr., of Buffalo, N. Y.; Scion B. Smith, of Alexandria, Tenn., first lieutenant; Oscar Henning, second lieutenant, and George H. Norris of Windsor, O., third lieutenant. They left on May 2, for Camp Wilkins, but the first call of President Lincoln for 75,000 men had been answered before they reached Pittsburgh. They were then placed in the Pennslyvania Reserve Corps, forming Company F, 9th Regiment. They returned to Meadville several days lated where they again went into camp.

Governor Curtin, on May 24, accepted the College Company to serve for three years. But more than a fortnight of preparation ensued while the quota of the Company was filled by a score of men from the western part of Crawford county. But finally on the eleventh of June 1861, the Allegheny College Company, later known officially as Company I, 39th Regiment 10th Reserve, Pennsylvania Volunteers, gathered on the Campus for a farewell to the College which had nurtured and matured them. The climax of the farewell was the presentation by Miss Hattie Bain of a beautiful flag to the college company from the ladies of Meadville. The parting injunction of Allegheny's president was: "Come back with the flag, boys, or come back wrapped in its folds." That standard is one of the most precious treasures of the college today.

They departed for war on June 18 in a fleet of canal boats. This means of transportation was slow but it was sure, and after three days they reached their destination. This trip was one of triumph with each town trying to outdo every other one. They listened to many speeches and songs and met many pretty girls, who came on the boat at various places.

When they reached Pittsburgh they were given barracks in the buildings used as stables at tthe Allegheny County Fairgrounds. One of the boys wrote, "I never imagined that war could be like this. Conditions are terrible and almost unbearable. The fellows long for one of the good meals of old Allegheny and would give anything to be able to see it again. I guess some of the fellows are beginning to realize that they will never see the place again and that war is not as glorious as it is sometimes painted."

In March, 1862, the company left for Camp Wilkins and on arriving at that place were a sorry sight. But under the energetic efforts of the commandant things were soon changed. Here, too, Company I's ranks were augmented by transfers so as to make up its full quota of men, although none of the Allegheny men were transferred at this time, so that they might keep their identity. Alexander Ashley wrote at this time, "The Allegheny boys are all well and active."

On July 1, they moved twelve miles up the river to Camp Wright and on the eighteenth left for Cumberland, Md., but before this place was reached they were ordered to proceed to Har-

ALLIGATORS DEFEATED BY WESTMINSTER TRACK TEAM

Westminster Captures Eleven Firsts to Take 94-41 Victory.

Saturday at Montgomery field, Westminster's giant trackmen scored a decisive victory over Allegheny in both track and field events, running the final score up to 94-41.

The jamming of the starter's gun prevented a recall when a false start was made in the 100-yard dash, and consequently the Allegheny sprinters were left flat-footed as a trio of Westminster men dashed away to breast the tape together in 9.9 seconds.

On the cinder path Westminster won all but two of the races, the 440-yard run and the half-mile, which were won by Captain Smith and Rockey respectively, while in the field Gregg won the pole vault, Kerr took the javelin, and Boetcker tied for first in the broad jump for Allegheny.

The work of the Allegheny trackmen in general surpassed that of the previous meet, but Westminster's squad also exceeded their best efforts in several departments, and were too good for Allegheny's best.

The summary of the meet follows:

Track Events

100 yard dash—Peresenyl, Hamer and McCall, of Westminster, tied. Time, 9.9.

220 yard dash—Peresenyl, Westminster; Hamer, Westminster; Boetcker, Allegheny. Time, 23.

440 yard run—Smith, Allegheny; Harper, Westminster; Beers, Allegheny. Time, 53.7.

880 yard run—Rockey, Allegheny; Burry, Westminster; Gregg, Allegheny. Time, 2:05.2.

Mile run—Burry, Smalley and Cales, Westminster, tied. Time, 4:46.

Two mile run—Smalley, Westminster; Worral, Allegheny; Burton, Westminster. Time, 10:16.

120 high hurdles—Brownlee, Westminster; Conn, Allegheny; Siljander, Westminster. Time, 16 seconds.

120 low hurdles—Brownlee, Westminster; Peresenyl, Westminster; Conn and Boetcker, Allegheny, tied. Time, 13 seconds.

Field Events

Shot put—Hamas, Fuller, and Cleland, Westminster. Distance, 39 feet 6 inches.

Discus—Brownlee, of Westminster; March, Allegheny; Fuller, Westminster. Distance, 120 feet 6 inches.

Pole vault—Gregg, of Allegheny; Yourd, Westminster; Poole and Beighley, Allegheny, tied. Height, 11 feet.

High jump — Park, Westminster; Yourd, Westminster; Conn, Allegheny. Height, 5 feet, 9 inches.

Javelin—Kerr, Allegheny; Siljander, Westminster; Boetcker, Allegheny. Distance, 170 feet 3 1-2 inches.

Hammer—Brownlee, Westminster; Peresenyl, Westminster; March, Allegheny. Distance, 137 feet 4 inches.

Broad jump—Boetcker, Allegheny, and Siljander, Westminster, tied for first; Peresenyl, Westminster. Distance, 20 feet, 6 inches.

TRACK TEAM WILL MEET GROVE CITY SATURDAY

Result of Opponent's Meet With Geneva Indicates Close Contest.

The Campus received a letter from the athletic editor of the Collegian, Grove City's newspaper, which contained some valuable information regarding the Allegheny-Grove City meet on Saturday. In the letter the results of Grove City's meets with Geneva and Westminster are given, but it will suffice to give only the first places taken by the Grove City men and the time made in the events to compare the strength of Allegheny and Grove City.

In the Westminster meet, Pusch took first place in the hundred-yard dash with a time of :10.4. This is the time made by Boetcker against W. & J. Kammer took first place in the 440 with a time of :53.3, which is .1 better than the time made by Smith against W. & J. In the pole vault Whitehill tied for first with a vault of 11 feet. Pusch took first in the shot put with a distance of 39 feet 9 inches, which is more than a foot better than the winning throw at W. & J. In the discus, Grove City took first and second. Alexander first with a throw of 123 feet 3 inches, and Pusch was second. Connor was first in the high jump with 6 feet, 1 3-4 inches, which is 7 3-4 inches better than the winning jump at W. & J. McCloskey took the hammer throw with 141 feet 2 inches, and Pusch took third in this event.

In the Geneva meet, Pusch tied for first in the hundred yard dash with a time of :10.2. Pusch and Critchfield took first and second respectively in the shot put, Pusch throwing the weight 40 feet 1 inch. In the hammer throw McCloskey again took first, this time with a throw of 147 feet 11 inches. This completely eclipses the 113 foot throw of Umberger of W. & J., which took first place in the Allegheny W. & J. meet.

The probable entry list is as follows:

100 yard dash—Pusch, Daugherty, Graham.

Hurdles—Reeves and Graham.

220 yard dash—Pusch and Reeves.

440 yard dash—Kammer and Cross.

880 yard dash—Provinsky and Lobuono.

1 mile—Bradburn and Atwell.

2 mile—Cross and Hart.

Shot put—Pusch, McCloskey, and Critchfield.

Discus—Alexander, Pusch, Plance or Huston.

Hammer—Pusch, Critchfield, and Plance.

Pole vault—Day, Whitehill, and Masso.

High jump—Connors and Carnahan.

Broad jump—Daugherty, Pusch, and Whitehill.

Javelin—Alexander and Gregory.

risburg. There they were mustered into the Union Army for three years' service. This took place July 21st and the following day they started for Washington by way of Baltimore.

The troops bivouacked on the common on the south of the city. Here they spent the night and on the following day left for Washington, which place was reached on the twenty-fifth. Here they camped and paraded until October 10th. It was while they were camped here that they were presented with a beautiful silk flag by Governor Curtin.

On October 10, Company I with the Reserves' regiment, was ordered across the Potomac into Virginia to assist in keeping "all quiet along the Potomac." Their baptism of fire came on December 10 at the battle of Dranesville. The Federal loss was eight killed and sixty-four wounded, though none of the Company I boys figured in the casualties.

Early in March, 1862, the company was transferred to Fredericksburgh where Colonel McCalmont resigned and was succeeded by Lieutenant Colonel Kirk as head of the regiment. Now Company I was thrown forward as skirmishers to hold the left bank of the Chickahominy River, and Gaines Mills, where the college company received its first scourging and was greatly reduced in numbers.

Here the troops were drawn up so that the Allegheny Company was on the left, and where the firing from the enemies' guns was terrific. Many fell here. Then the order came to charge and in this charge Company I lost six killed, three missing, and seventeen wounded. Those killed were King, Wright, J. W. Wikoff, Church, Bole, and Pier. Sergeant Hollister was one of the most severely wounded, it being necessary to amputate his arm.

The Company engaged in several other battles on following days but owing to the state of its personnel was used as reserves. They fought in the Second Battle of Bull Run and in this fight they suffered severe casualties.

Crossing into Maryland they opened the battle of Antietam. It fell to the lot of the College boys to help in the special detail made by General Hooker to prevent the enemy from turning the fight flank of the Union Army. In this battle Colonel Warner was severely wounded and Captain Ayer of Company I was promoted to be Major of the regiment.

On December thirteenth the Tenth joined in the attack of Fredericksburgh and suffered heavy loss. Before cover was reached Edward Henderson, W. S. Rose, and Dick Wilson of Company I were captured and sent to Libby prison. While the reserves were recuperating the battle of Chancellorsville was fought, the only engagement of the Army of the Potomac in which the Alegheny company had no part.

After being mustered to full strength they received word to hasten to Gettysburg. For the first time since their muster in as a reserve corps for the defense of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, after nearly three years of service, the Allegheny College boys were to have a chance to defend their own state from the invasion of the enemy. They reached the field on July second and went into battle that night. Driving the enemy before them they took the low ground between Round Top and Little Round Top and they held this front until the end of the battle. In this battle John H. Stuntz, '65, was injured and made an invalid for life.

After several minor engagements the Company took part in the battle of the Wilderness and it was during this campaign that Colonel Ayer was badly wounded.

As the remnants of the Allegheny Company were drawn up in front of Bethesda Church, on May 30th, after crosing the Pamunkey, orders came from Washington to the corps headquarters, relieving the troops from further service, as the three year period of enlistment had expired. This order was in the hands of Capt. E. H. Henderson, '63, the A. A. G. of the Third brigade, at the precise moment that a large force of the enemy delivered an attack. The troops that were to take the place of the Pennsylvania men had not yet arrived. Captain Henderson kept the order of the Secretary of War in his pocket and the command to advance was given. It was the kind of a decision that Allegheny knows her true sons will ever make. The Reserves were at first driven back but were able to secure a favorable position behind a stone wall and soon had the enemy in route.

Such was the last engagement of the Allegheny College Volunteers. When it was over they furled their battle flags and bade farewell to the army. On May 31st they started for Pittsburgh and on June 11. 1864, were mustered out. A few of the survivors reenlisted and became a part of Company K. 191st Pensylvania Volunteers. In the three years of the war Company I suffered the following casualties: killed and mortally wounded, 26; wounded, 36; died, 8; discharged for disability, 25. Prof. S. P. Bates, in the official "History of Pennsylvania Volunteers," writes: "This brave body of men, the Tenth Regiment, which had fought in nearly every battle in which the army of the Potomac had been engaged, was not excelled in valor by any other organization of the division.

And thus Company I of the Tenth Regiment of the Union Army of the United States of America conducted itself in the Civil War.

PHI GAMS AND PHI PSIS ENGAGE IN TITLE GAME

Winners in Mushball League Meet for Championship Yesterday.

Defeating Phi Delta Theta and Delta Tau Delta by decisive scores, Phi Gamma Delta won the championship of League B in the intramural mushball league and earned the right to meet Phi Kappa Psi, winners of League A, for the intramural championship in that sport yesterday afternoon.

The score of the Phi Delt-Phi Gam game was 10 to 1, the winners fathoming Lewis, the pitcher for the Phi Delts, early in the game and then ending the game in the fifth inning after an eight-run lead had been secured. The Delt game proved much more interesting, with Beighly in good form for the Delts, but the Phi Gams finally drew away from their opponents to establish a 14 to 6 score.

In League A, the Phi Psis scored victories over all of its opponents to clinch the lead last week. Their victims included Beta Upsilon, Beta Kappa, and Alpha Chi Rho.

Both teams are strong in every department. The championship game was staged yesterday afternoon, but The Campus went to press too early to learn the results.

This afternoon at six o'clock, Delta Tau Delta and Alpha Chi Rho will battle for the third position in the competition, each one losing but one game during the season. With the playoff of the championship games, the mushball competition will be over for the year.

Syracuse University Sends Questionnaire to Personell Workers

The opinions of personnel men representing several of the largest organizations in the United States on what they expect of the college graduates they employ have been uncovered recently through a questionnaire sent out by Syracuse University. Some of the conclusions of employers are as follows:

Too many college seniors expect to be sold a job after graduation, rather than attempting to sell themselves to prospective employers.

Employers are seeking the individual for his personal qualities rather than for the training he has received during four years of college.

Universities which develop character, personality and qualities of leadership in their students are doing a far more important job than those which specialize exclusively in academic training.

The old uncertainty in the minds of employers as to the relative value of a liberal arts or a business training still remains, judging from the fact that replies to the Syracuse questionnaire were almost equally divided between a general cultural course and the more specialized type of study. Several expressed the desire to see more arts courses given with the business and technical subjects.

That Donald B. Watt, Syracuse University personnel director, was right when he advised members of last year's senior class that they must be "smooth" in order to appeal to prospective employers, is shown by the fact that several of the replies rated personal appearance very high in their list of desirable factors.

Phi Psis and Chi Rhos Win Initial Baseball Contests

Inter-fraternity baseball got off to a good start last Wednesday. Interest is high and competition is keen; a successful season should be the result. In league A, Alpha Chi Rho had a fairly easy time disposing of Beta Upsilon by a score of 10 to 4. The game itself was not intersting, but it showed that the Chi Rhos will be a strong contender for the championship. Friday's contest between Beta Kappa and Sigma Alpha Epsilon was cancelled. In league B, Phi Kappa Psi played a consistent game to shut out Phi Delta Theta 6 to 0. Hoffman, pitching for the Phi Psis, allowed only two hits. This fray pointed out that the Phi Psis have a good team in the field. Rain brought about the cancelling of the game between Phi Gamma Delta and Delta Tau Delta.

ORATION CONTEST

three prize-winners are eligible for participation in the Civic meet, and in a later contest, Hamilton was selected as Allegheny's representative.

Allegheny's failure to place in the contest was due in a large measure to the greater attention given by its opponents in the contest to forensics, in connection with law departments. Albion College has fifty undergraduates in forensic activities. Local chances, however, will be considerably greater next year since the talented speakers in the recent competition were all seniors, graduating in June.

The Civic Oratorical League is one of the oldest of its kind, and Allegheny is one of the charter members. The contests are held annually at each of its member schools in rotation. Allegheny's turn to play host comes next year, when the annual meet will be staged under the College forensic department.

The contest on Friday evening was preceded by the elaborate formal banquet of Delta Sigma Rho, national forensic fraternity, the sponsors of the event. Guests included prominent newspapermen, Congressmen, noted educators, the contestants, and their coaches, among whom was Hamilton's mentor, Dr. Robert E. Brown, a trustee of Allegheny College.
