Saturday, February 7 - 1931.

My dear Miss Tarbell,

Your beautiful letter of January 1914 - was forwarded to me here.

I am so glad you love your doves.

The pretty things it has pleased you to say of me in connection with Anne Rutledge, send a gentle glow into my heart.

I think last year,
I must have over looked Collier, for upon the approach of February 12th or thereabouts, I usually scan the papers and journals for Lincoln items.

I certainly shall be happy to have a copy from your hand, if you will be so good.

Ever long, you will be here in Tucson, and I deem it a happy coincidence, that it will be mine to listen to your voice once more, since I am told, by registering at the University that outsiders may attend your lectures. I am going over

Today to register, I have just-read your lark Billy Brown story in the last issue of Collier. Dear, dear, what joys have been yours - so many personal contacts with those who knew Mr.
Lincoln.

As a result-of-a visit to the Woman's Club last week, I met Mrs Uda McCornick - a loyal friend of yours, therefore of mine also.

In response to an invitation, I dined with her on Thursday evening - she is a superior woman with a charming personality. We talked of your the end of her forthcoming work.

I had the Kedroff Quartet from Petrograd, last night.

One could imagine he was listening to a beautifully tuned instrument, so perfectly did their voices blend.

When I was in Moscow before the Great War, my Esperanto friends took me to all the large synagogues to hear the music.

I thought the voices ^{came} ~~went~~ from Heaven, strange note, I think there can be no more exquisite music in Heaven than I heard there. It has been a living memory to me ever since.

With my love to you and hoping soon to see you, I am Sincerely yours,
Jane E. Hamand
