Mr. Isaac R. Diller,
214 1/2 South Sixth St.,
Springfield, Ill.

Dear Mr. Diller:

How good of you to write me about the slip in regard to Col. Hardin! It was a slip in the making up, and will be corrected in the book. I cannot tell you how grateful I will be if you find errors at any time if you will call my attention immediately to them. This material goes through several hands after it leaves mine and I have no chance to read the proofs - such are the limitations of newspaper work.

I think we can look for something very substantial from Senator Beveridge. His Life of Marshall is a big work and we probably shall get from him the most profound discussion of the Constitutional incidents which Lincoln handled which we have yet had.

Thank you for repeating that invitation. I am hoping some of these days that I may be able to take you at your word. Tell Mrs. Diller I shall give her due warning; and if it is not entirely convenient, you are to tell me so.

Sincerely yours,
