

BISHOP McCONNELL COMPLETES THREE-DAY STAY AT COLLEGE

Noted Churchman Speaks Twice a Day and Inter-views Many Students

Dr. Francis J. McConnell, bishop in the Methodist Episcopal Church, nationally known divine, ex-college president, and author, concluded Friday, October 16, a three-day visit at Allegheny College where he lectured and interviewed students. Bishop McConnell delivered two addresses each day in the Chapel, one in the morning and one in the evening.

Wednesday Morning.

The first address which Bishop McConnell delivered was in Ford Memorial Chapel on Wednesday morning. The speaker declared that during his visit here he would speak on some practical approaches to religious problems. He showed that religion is a great fact in life, and that religious truth comes out of life and its practical contacts.

The true approach to religion is trust, declared Bishop McConnell. He stressed the point that religion must be accepted first, and then any adjustments made later. These adjustments can be made to suit the individual. In no case should religion be denounced because of deficiencies, as they can be regulated later.

The same is true of prayer; it should be tried before it is criticized.

Wednesday Evening.

A short devotional service was conducted before Bishop McConnell made his evening address. The Bishop announced that some considerations to be kept in mind as concerns man in relation to the Divine Will would be brought out. He then discussed relations existing between divine and human factors.

Thursday Morning.

Bishop McConnell opened his second day's visit with an address concerning a portion of the 25th chapter of the Book of Acts in which Paul was tried at Caesarea and appealed to a high court at Rome. The most likely reason why Paul demanded a new trial when he probably stood a fair chance of getting a successful verdict at Caesarea was that the Apostle always wished to have matters determined at the highest point possible.

And so in life, when great principles are brought to bear, it should be the desire of man to get them settled in view of the highest manner possible.

The danger of the college today, according to the speaker, is not the alleged infidelity of the students but is any tendency they may have to smug (Continued on page 4)

ALLIGATOR COMPETITION PUT ON BUSINESS BASIS

STAFF OF HUMOROUS PUBLICATION WORKING DILIGENTLY ON FIRST ISSUE.

Work on the forthcoming issue of the Alligator has been progressing rapidly the past week, and many contributions have been received.

A systematic record will be kept of the attendance at meetings, of contributions, and of work done, and the succeeding staff will be promoted on the basis of merit, and not created by the general opinion of the editor.

Several corrections are to be made in the announcement in The Campus last week of the new staff: Phelps Sample, Editorial and Poetry; Jean McCann, Art; Mason, Editor.

Words of greeting and encouragement to the Alligator have already been received from humorous publications in other colleges, and the staff hopes that the student body will respond as generously with contributions.

MANY VOLUMES ADDED TO COLLEGE LIBRARY

BOOKLET BY AN ALLEGHENIAN GIVES VIEW OF LIFE IN PHILIPPINES.

During the past two weeks sixty new books have been added to the College Library. The books deal with various subjects, and the greater number will soon be placed on the "New Books" tables at the left of the librarian's counter.

One of the most interesting of the volumes is "A Century of Carpet and Rug Making in America." The book contains a detailed account of every step in the manufacture of carpets and rugs along with many photographs of modern machinery at work. The whole constitutes one of the most complete and authoritative monographs on the subject ever published. The volume was prepared, not only to commemorate the one hundredth anniversary of the Biglow-Hartford Carpet Company, but to keep in permanent form the valuable information relative to the manufacture of carpets, and the authentic history of this great industry.

"Oriental and Brown" is the title of a booklet written by Rev. Otto C. Houser, '08, who was a resident of Manila for five years. Reverend Houser gives a birdseye glimpse of the main Philippine issues of the present time, and he shows many of the points toward which the Philippine life tends. The first few chapters are given to a discussion on the climate, products, religion, dialects, customs, and homes of the islanders.

Some of the other new books are: "Harvard Plays, Fourth Series," "Mount Vernon and the Washington Family," by Chester Hale Sipe; "The Mason-Dees," by J. Henri Fabre; "L'Intruse et Les Aveugles," Introduction and notes by Henry Ward Church, Professor of Romance Languages at Allegheny, and the "Common Sense of Music" by Dr. Sigmund Spaeth. It is interesting to note that Doctor Spaeth is to lecture on the "Common Sense of Music" at Allegheny College as the opening number of the 1925-1926 concert series.

COLLEGE CONCERT SERIES OPENS TOMORROW EVENING

DR. SIGMUND SPAETH TO LECTURE ON "COMMON SENSE OF MUSIC."

Tomorrow evening the College Concert series will begin when Dr. Sigmund Spaeth appears in Ford Chapel at eight o'clock. Being a noted lecturer and critic, Dr. Spaeth is one of the best known figures in the musical world today. Although he is called the "Apostle of Common Sense in Music," his unorthodox methods have caused some horrified scholars to give him the title of the "Playboy of Musical Pedigogy."

Dr. Spaeth was born in Philadelphia where he received his musical training, specializing in the violin. Later he took an active part in music at Hanover College, where he received his Bachelor and Master of Arts degrees, and at Princeton University, where he took his Doctor of Philosophy degree. For two years Dr. Spaeth taught in Asheville, N. C., and then he went to New York to serve as editor for the Schirmer publishing house and the Century Opera Company. Later he became music critic for the Evening Mail and wrote for the magazines: Life, Harper's Weekly, Pictorial Review, and the New Yorker, and for the New York Times and Boston Transcript dailies.

He was engaged by the Metropolitan Opera Company as a translator of songs and operas. Many original texts and musical compositions have also been produced by him. His musical compositions include a male choral setting of "Jabberwocky," and variations on "Yankee Doodle." He has shown by his "Milton's Knowledge of Music" that he is an authoritative writer, and his books: "The Common Sense of Music" and "Barber Shop Ballads" are musical best sellers. Through his radio programs, which have done much to popularize good music, Dr. Spaeth is best known today, although he writes for newspapers and magazines appearing all over the country.

Dr. Spaeth believes that there is no sense in culture unless you get some fun out of it, and will not allow himself to become the traditional serious art-lover. Through his arguments people are made to listen to good music and really enjoy it. His programmes are full of humor and spicy comment, with an abundance of musical illustrations, both instrumental and vocal.

Season tickets for the course may be procured from Dr. Church, the Registrar's office, or from student representatives at Cochran and Hulings halls, and at all of the fraternity houses at a cost of five or six dollars depending upon the location of the seat.

ST. BONAVENTURE CONQUERED BY BLUE AND GOLD GRIDDEES

Allegheny Scores 20-6 Victory on Muddy Field--Dahl and Hanlon Star

Playing on a slow muddy field Saturday, Allegheny accomplished the unexpected and swept through the heavier St. Bonaventure team for a score 20-6. The Catholics failed to cope with Dahl who repeatedly crashed through their line for substantial gains, while Hanlon was a consistent ground-gainer on his off-tackle and end-circling runs. The Blue and Gold linesmen, although outweighed, found little difficulty in breaking through the Bonaventure line and breaking up plays before they got started. Slavin and Behrhorst continued their remarkable playing which has featured the two previous games and were responsible for many of the Catholics' losses. Allegheny had things almost her own way until the last of the fourth quarter when the New Yorkers launched a brilliant aerial attack, using 9 forward passes, 5 of which were completed for a total gain of 130 yards and netted them their only score.

Coach Davies started the entire second team against the New Yorkers, but sent in his first string players when the scrubs failed to gain sufficiently. Lundgren, a second string back for two seasons, replaced Brace at left halfback at the beginning of the second half. Although a light man and playing on a wet field he displayed remarkable skill and speed in running

ALLEGHENIAN TAKES OVER WELL-KNOWN BOOK STORE

C. W. GILL, '07, FORMER INSTRUCTOR, BECOMES OWNER OF LAFAYETTE BOOK STORE.

An announcement of considerable interest to the College was made some time ago when it became known that Charles W. Gill, '07, had taken over the ownership of the Lafayette Book Store in Meadville.

Mr. Gill is well known to all Alleghenians through his intimate connection with affairs on the Hill during the past four years. In 1922 he came to Allegheny, leaving a position as Assistant Professor of English at Ohio University, to take charge of the collection of Allegheny College Second Century Endowment Fund. Having completed that work in three years, he served during the term of 1925-26 as instructor in the English Literature Department. His last work for the College was the editing of the 1925 Alumni Register, only recently off the press.

The new owner of the well-known Meadville book store has had a large experience in this particular line of work. He founded the Chautauqua Book Store at Chautauqua, N. Y., in 1908, and carried on a very successful business there for a period of eleven years. In September, of this year, Mr. Gill was offered a position of head librarian at Ohio University.

DR. SWARTLEY ATTENDS DEBATING CONFERENCE

MEETINGS AT CLEVELAND AND HARRISBURG PREPARE FOR FORENSIC SEASON.

Dr. S. S. Swartley, faculty supervisor of the College debating team, was in Cleveland, October 3, in order of choosing a question of debate for the season, and to arrange debates for this year's team. Faculty members from Ohio Wesleyan, Wooster, Western Reserve, Oberlin, and Allegheny Colleges were present.

Saturday, October 10, a conference was held at Harrisburg of several Pennsylvania Colleges to form debating plans for the coming season. Two questions were decided upon: one concerning America's Entry Into the League of Nations, and the other concerning Government Control of the Coal Mines.

Arrangements are now in progress for Allegheny's team to meet several other Colleges during the coming year.

STRONG BOSTON COLLEGE TEAM FACES BLUE AND GOLD SATURDAY

Game in East To Be Great Test For Coach Davies' Squad

Boston next Saturday! There is the whole story in a few words, and the Blue and Gold is set and primed for the biggest game of the year with Boston College, Saturday, October 24. The team leaves Thursday for the battle with the easterners, and will arrive at Boston in time for a light practice in order to become accustomed to the field and surroundings.

None of us will ever forget the celebration after the victory over Bucknell two years ago, and prospects are bright for another hectic evening, October 24. Last year Boston set Allegheny back with a 13-0 defeat, but that was the first time the two teams had ever met; playing on a strange field and against a team reputed to be one of the best in the East, Allegheny could not give her best. Even then Boston was greatly surprised and chagrined at her inability to score at will on the Blue and Gold. Newspapers praised the stubborn defense and slashing offense of the "Coal Miners," and gave Boston the victory only because of the decided edge they had in punting. Darling, All-American back and star of the Beaneaters, averaged 60 yards on his kicks. This year Darling is not back and many other stars who bore the brunt of the work for Boston last year have graduated. They have a weaker team and are not an unknown quantity as they were last year. Allegheny will go in the game to win and not to hold the Beaneaters to a low score.

Boston defeated Boston University 54-0 but the latter is one of the minor teams of the East and it was really a practice game. A truer line on their strength, if dope can be considered, is the fact that they defeated the Haskell Indians 7-6 two weeks ago; the Indians held Bucknell to a 0-0 score last week, and Bucknell won from St. Bonaventure 14-0.

The Blue and Gold squad will be in excellent shape for the battle Saturday. Brace sustained a leg injury Saturday, but he is expected to be in good condition. The play of the line was a pleasing feature of the St. Bonaventure game, and with Hanlon and Dahl exhibiting a great running game, it is evident that the Boston outfit will have a busy afternoon on the field.

ALUMNI URGED TO BUY COLLEGE PUBLICATIONS

GRADUATES GIVEN OPPORTUNITY TO SUBSCRIBE TO COLLEGE PERIODICALS.

At the recent meeting of the Board of Publications, the board decided to offer to all the alumni of the College an opportunity to subscribe to the other three publications of the college. The alumni at the present time receive The Campus free of charge. The board thinks that there are many alumni who are interested in the college, and would appreciate a chance to subscribe to the other publications so that they will miss nothing that is happening on the Campus of their "Here is" men, the alumni's chance to subscribe to the other three publications edited by the students of Allegheny at the same budget rate that is offered to the student body. They will receive four issues of the "Literary Monthly," four issues of the newly established humorous publication, "The Alligator," and the summary of the year's activities in the "Kaldron,"—all for the very reasonable rate of five (5) dollars. A subscription blank is published elsewhere in this issue.

Philo-Franklin Forum Holds Debate at Second Meeting

The second meeting of the Philo-Franklin Forum was held Friday afternoon, October 16, in the Forum room in Bentley Hall. All the men who handed in applications last week were initiated at this meeting. The forum decided that copies of Roberts' Rules of Order should be bought for all the men who should sign up for them.

The debate of the day was, "Resolved, That Allegheny should adopt the course of study that is now in use at Dartmouth and as outlined in the August number of the Current History Magazine." Mr. Robert Kirkpatrick and Mr. Richard Helmstadter of the negative won the debate from Mr. Edward V. Culver and Mr. Bruce Middaugh of the affirmative.

Applications for membership were given to the Secretary by the following men: M. L. Himmler, J. E. Meadowcroft, H. E. Garland, E. W. Hudson, E. J. Deissler. The applications were accepted.

The debate for next week will be on the control of coal mines but the exact proposition and the speakers have not yet been announced.

Seniors Must Have Kaldron Pictures Taken by December

On Friday, October 16, the Kaldron staff held a meeting to discuss plans and outline for the year's work. Work on the Kaldron is progressing rapidly under the direction of Editor Howard Taylor.

Work has begun on the senior write-ups, and all seniors must have their pictures taken as soon as possible. The plans call for the completion of this department by Thanksgiving vacation.

A large number of competitors were present at the meeting, and were assigned to various departments. There is still room for anyone who may wish to compete for a position on the staff.

BOARD OF PUBLICATIONS DISCUSSES NEW PLANS

ARRANGEMENTS MADE TO PUT ALL COMPETITION ON SOUND BASIS.

Last Thursday afternoon at four o'clock in the library of Alden Hall, the Board of Publications held their regular meeting, at which many new changes were discussed in managerial and editorial departments for the coming year.

The first business was Dr. McClean's financial report which was approved by the board. An auditing committee was then appointed, consisting of Doctor Akers and Alex Hill, who approved the report and presented it to the public in this issue of The Campus. Hill then made a report on last year's Kaldron.

A suggestion was made to the board that charms be given to the major competitors in all managerial and editorial work. This was referred to a committee. A new system of record for competitors was also installed. As the system suggests, the editors and general manager will keep competitive cards of men competitors along the following lines. For the managerial department, reports will be kept of the old advertisements that are solicited, of the new advertisements collected, attendance at the weekly meetings, the distribution of the Campus, and special work under the separate managers. For the editorial department, a record will be kept of the assigned work, original work, attendance at meetings, and work under the associate editors. These index cards will be referred to from time to time, to see if the competitors are doing their work, and be justly rewarded in the end when the new editors and managers are elected by the board. A duplicate will also be kept by the competitive reporter and the two card indexes must correspond to show fairness to all the competitors on the various staffs.

Fred S. Laffer, '20, of Pittsburgh, Pa., was married to Frances Bird of Marietta, O., on October 10.

Mr. and Mrs. D. W. King of Cochran, Pa., announce the birth of a son, Richard George, on Thursday, October 15. Mrs. King will be remembered as Frances Lee, ex-'22.

John G. Castle, '18, is at present engaged in the printing business in Buffalo, N. Y.

STUDENT NOTICE.

Work on the 1925 Kaldron is progressing rapidly. Pictures of the student body, fraternities, and individuals must be in before the Christmas recess. This is very important since work on the annual will be held up if this is not observed. Arrangements have been made whereby students can have their individual pictures taken at the Wetherby or Pratt studios at a small cost. A request is made for snapshots and these also should be in as soon as possible.

CONDUCT IN CHAPEL

Impolite student conduct in chapel has become so noticeable lately that it seems necessary to make mention of it in order to attempt to stem its continuance. College students as a rule know how to conduct themselves in public, but there are always a few students who are careless or thoughtless in their behavior. It is the behavior of the few which reflects on the whole student body, and especially does this hold true when there is a non-resident speaker present at the chapel exercises.

In order that one may get a glimpse of what takes place in the audience at chapel, let us imagine for the moment that we are seated in the rostrum. Directly in front of us we see five or six students, in various sections of the audience, sleeping peacefully. In the rear of the auditorium and in the balcony many students are diligently absorbing last minute information before going to the next class. Others are conversing with their neighbors as though it were a social hour. This state of affairs is especially disgusting when viewed from the front of the chapel.

Such was the case during the past week when a special speaker was the guest of the College for three days. What do you think his impression resulting from this condition must be? He would naturally feel that it is practiced by the whole student body—which is not the case. This is the only conclusion that one can draw when absolute discourtesy is shown to a stranger. In the future let us be more respectful towards any chapel speaker, so that he may take away with him the best of impressions concerning the conduct of the student body.

WHO IS TO BLAME?

This publication has made many suggestions, good and bad, but none can be made with a greater assurance that it is for the best than that which prevalent among the members of the freshman class. Some months ago The Campus commented at length upon this evil, and suggested an intensive entrance examination in English syntax and grammar. Should a student fail to show satisfactory results in this test he would be required to enroll in a special elementary English class. However, further developments and observations have led to even more radical proposals.

In one section of an elementary foreign language course, where bad English training shows up to the best advantage, one student did not know the meaning of the word 'translate', another has trouble in distinguishing a pronoun from a predicate and an adverb from a hortatory subjunctive. These are extreme illustrations, it is true, but we feel safe in making the statement that fifty per cent of the freshmen class could not diagram this sentence or parse the words in it, with any degree of accuracy.

Upperclassmen, too, are still wrestling with foreign language requirements, not because they are not born linguists, but because they have not even a high school knowledge of their native language. We ran across an upperclassman the other day who spelled the word 'profit', consistently 'prophit'. This error is an indication of his general knowledge of English.

Who is to blame for this? We can scarcely call the college English department to account because it cannot make up an eighteen-year deficit in one short college course. The English instructors, aided by the foreign language teachers, do a great deal of training that should have been taken care of in the grade or high school.

If we must go outside of the college's jurisdiction to place the blame, the college cannot very well help it that some high school graduates know little or nothing of the English language. But the college can prevent the matriculation of any student whose four years in that institution will be a bugbear to his professors and a constant source of worry to himself. A rigid examination in English should be devised for the purpose of forbidding enrollment to any student who failed to pass it.

This is a very serious matter and should receive much more thought and consideration than it has in the past.

Because a co-ed has plenty of dates and half the men students chasing her doesn't necessarily say she will make a good wife.

Judgment of the worth of a professor can't be based on the degree of his fraternizing with his students.

The fact that a student is always hurrying to important meetings and conferences, sticking his finger in all activities, and creating a general impression of importance isn't any particular indication that he is running the college.

Alumni Notes

Announcement has been received of the engagement of Miss Rachel Harris Rathbun of Woonsocket, R. I., to Herbert R. Harper, '10, Chancellor of the University of Denver.

Robert H. Fuller, '25, is teaching history in the Randolph, N. Y., High School.

Robert F. Wilson and Mrs. Wilson (Katherine Dewey, '05) will spend the coming winter in the Latin Quarter of Paris. Mr. Wilson is the author of "The Pageant of the Nile," and collaborated with Benedict Crowell in editing and compiling the six volumes of "How America Went to War."

Marjorie E. Brown, '21, is doing graduate work in English at the University of Pennsylvania.

Gertrude Curry, '25, is teaching in the High school at Waynesburg, Pa.

Rev. A. C. Saxman, '94, and Mrs. Saxman, of Verona, Pa., spent two months in travel through the West this past summer. Many places of interest were visited, stops being made at Denver, Colorado Springs, the Grand Canyon of Colorado, Salt Lake City, San Francisco, and San Bernardino, Cal. Two weeks were spent in San Bernardino, where the couple visited with Rev. W. C. Loomis.

W. M. Buzza, '02, chaplain at the Allegheny County Workhouse, Hoboken, Pa., has almost completely recovered from injuries received in an auto accident last spring. For a time it was feared that Reverend Buzza's eyesight would be destroyed as a result of the accident.

Thomas E. Colly, '20, is pastor of the M. E. Church at Little Valley, N. Y.

Helen Murray, '10, is at present doing graduate work at the University of Chicago.

Y. M. C. A. COLUMN

"WITH BRAINS."

"How do you mix your paints?" someone once asked a famous painter. "With brains" replied the artist. It is precisely this brand of religion, the kind that requires some application of grey matter in order to get the largest benefit from it, that we have been receiving at the hands of Bishop McConnell in the week just past.

A college man came out of the Chapel at Silver Bay last June after a lecture on prayer by Dr. H. H. Tweedy of Yale Divinity School. He was overheard to remark to some of his college mates attending the Y. M. C. A. Conference, "I just simply can't see this religious business. It doesn't appeal to me." A great many college men are likewise saying of religion that they do not see anything in it or that it does not appeal to them. Let us face the facts. The reason why a great many college students find nothing in religion is simply because they do not have the mental capacity or the intellectual interest to appreciate it. When it comes to the point where religion must be mixed with brains then it is entirely out of the range of at least a certain percentage of college people.

Religion is a great fact in the life of the world, and as such the college man must face it. No man can lay claim to be an educated person and turn his back on the fact of religion and deliberately pass up the opportunity to hear as noted an exponent of things religious as we have had with us this last week. Such a procedure is nothing less than a deliberate sacrifice of personality, and unworthy of college men and women.

J. S. Robinson, '11, of the Economics Department of Carleton College, Minnesota, has recently been admitted as a Fellow to membership in the Royal Economic Society of Great Britain. He was also elected to honorary membership in Pi Gamma Mu, national social science honorary society.

Allegheny Harriers Defeated
By Pittsburgh Champs, 16-43

Facing the greatest cross-country team in the country, Allegheny harriers, running preliminary to the Pittsburgh football game Saturday, fell before Captain Corbett's cross-country outfit by a 16-43 score.

The Blue and Gold placed four men among the first ten, Jones running the course in the excellent time of 30 minutes and 12 seconds. Bentley finished eighth, while Rea, Bell, Richards and Ellis, completed the six-mile run in the next four places respectively. Corbett broke the tape in 28 minutes, 18 seconds, two full seconds better than his old record. The intercollegiate champion was in fine form, and this season promises to be another banner year for him.

The next cross-country meet for the locals will probably be with Thiel on November 7, preliminary to the football game.

Dr. Elliot gave devotional talks on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday at the Northwestern Pennsylvania Convention of the Y. M. C. A.

Football ScheduleGAMES PLAYED

impragable in their few attempts at straight football.

Another sensational drive came late in the third period, and Allegheny had the ball on St. Bonaventure's 5-yard line as the whistle blew for the beginning of the last quarter. Two plunges by Dahl took the ball over the line for the final touchdown. Art missed his try for goal. Late in the period, St. Bonaventure uncorked a beautiful forward passing attack, ending only when a short heave, McAndrews to O'Neil, scored their first touchdown of the year, and the only touchdown which any minor team has scored on Allegheny for two years. The final whistle blew as Blackburn caught McAndrews' kickoff on the 35-yard line.

BISHOP MCCONNELL.

conformity. This should be substituted instead by a desire for adventure into and a passion for the higher morality.

Thursday Evening.

What was probably the most clarifying lecture ever heard in Meadville concerning the origin, meaning and significance of the Scriptures was delivered by Bishop McConnell in the Chapel Thursday evening.

The speaker declared that people attempt to make too much out of the Scriptures. Every age has viewed the Bible from different angles and has subjected Christianity to a scrutiny which is never accorded anything else.

There never was a time, according to Bishop McConnell, when the main lines of the Scriptures were clearer than they are at present.

Scripture writers took the truths of their time and applied them to the ideas that they wished to explain. Despite fallacies in the Scriptures, the essential truths are there, and for this reason the Bible should not be cast aside.

Friday Morning.

The final day of Bishop Francis J. McConnell's visit at Allegheny College was opened, when the noted divine delivered an address before the student body at Chapel on Friday morning.

The speaker took as his text the words of Christ who spoke to Nicodemus saying, "Except a man be born from above, he cannot see the Kingdom of God." This sentence is very simple, according to the Bishop, and is just what the Master intended it to be. Often and wrongly we see it taken as a matter of profound theological discussion.

There are two elements to be considered as regarding the Kingdom of Heaven. One is the way in which man responds to the divine warmth of it and the other is his adjustments to it.

Friday Evening.

Bishop McConnell concluded his visit Friday evening, when he delivered an inspiring address on the relation of ideals to social questions, in Ford Memorial Chapel.

The most important movement of religion of the present time is to improve man's condition of living and social aspects, declared the speaker. Individual experience does not get far until it takes a wider range of activity into its operation. Therefore, religion must have a positive sense of interest in community problems.

"What can the Church do?" is a question that is frequently asked. The answer is that it can keep before the public eye, human ideals and the worth of them, so they must be taken into account by men.

Special Meetings.

Friday afternoon Bishop McConnell spoke before the members of Dr. Frederick C. Henke's class in "Introduction to Teaching." He showed the advantages that the individual enjoyed in the modern educational system, and commented on other items of interest to a group of prospective teachers.

The Oxford Club and the Student Volunteer Band held a dinner in honor of Bishop McConnell in Cochran Hall just previous to the evening meeting. Doctor McConnell responded with a brief address to the members.

Allegheny College students learned with interest the fact that Bishop McConnell is to debate Clarence Darrow in Chicago next Monday. The topic is evolution, which both accept as a starting point, but will argue on the different aspects of the theory.

Clarence Avey, president of the Allegheny College Y. M. C. A., presided at each evening meeting. He opened each service with a prayer and led the audience in singing a few hymns, after which he introduced Doctor McConnell.

During Bishop McConnell's visit at the College he interviewed a large number of the student body. In fact, so great was the demand for an interview, that every available conference period was occupied.

John Philip Sousa, noted band leader, defended jazz recently at Cornell University when he played his latest piece, "Jazz America," a medley of American jazz airs.

"The Whirlwind," University of Oklahoma humorous publication, which fell from the good graces of authorities at Norman last year, has been reinstated and is out to make a new start.

A new ruling at Baker University requires that all fraternity men must be in their respective chapter houses by 10:30 and that all lights must be out by 11 p. m.

Syracuse University has only four veterans out for football this year.

Members of the faculty at Coe College, Cedar Rapids, Iowa, have special parking places reserved for their cars.

PI DELT SMOKER.

Pi Delta Epsilon, honorary journalism fraternity, will give a smoker on Wednesday evening, October 23, at the Phi Gamma Delta house for all men of the College interested in journalism.
