Dr. J. M. Cornett,
No. Scituate, Mass.

My dear Dr. Cornett:

You may remember a woman who invaded your premises one day last July, telling you that she was interested in seeing the old home of Mordecai Lincoln.

You were very courteous, showed me the house and promised that I might send a photographer to have some pictures taken of the exterior and the interior. I have been very much pressed since that visit and only just come to the point of asking a man to go over from Hingham to you, - Mr. Woodside, a thoroughly well recommended person and a good photographer.

I told Mr. Woodside to recall to you your promise. I want these pictures for an extended piece of Lincoln work with which I am now busy. It is to be a series, to be called, probably, "In Lincoln's Footsteps." I am beginning at Hingham with Samuel Lincoln in 1637.

I have already done considerable work on Lincoln's life, having published a two-volume Life and a short Life for the Boy Scouts and various articles and stories.

Trusting that you will allow Mr. Woodside to make the pictures I want, believe me

Very truly yours,
