SOPHOMORES PUT UP THEIR "PROCS."

Freshmen Get Busy, However, and the Proclamations Disappear Before Daylight—Two Big Fights Thursday Night—Freshies Plastered With the Sticky Posters.

On Wednesday evening last, someone put the Freshmen wise that the Sophomores would, on that night, post the annual proclamations about the college and town. As a result of this "secret" exposed, the Freshmen immediately got busy and had a large squad of their men patrolling the campus all through the night. But the poor Freshmen, their eyes heavy with sleep, crawled back to their rooms about six o'clock, sorely disappointed, as the Sophs did not put in an appearance.

In the meantime, the Sophomores were devising ways and means of fooling the Freshmen. At three a. m. of Friday morning, Sophomores, in groups of two or three, could be seen, sneaking like Indians, through the campus towards the fixed assembling place—Dr. Crawford's barn. There were eighteen in all when the company started out on its daring expedition. The crowd divided into two bands and armed with posters and paste, began to decorate Park avenue down to Chestnut street and then down Chestnut to Water street.

After the town had thorough evidence that the Sophomores of Allegheny College were well and alive, the band started up North Main street, paying their respects to every frat or boarding house, and leaving their cards at each place.

When almost in front of the Observatory, two of the party sent ahead to scout, shouted the war cry, and the first battle of the season began. In the shade of the fir trees it was almost impossible to see, but we have reliable information that there were twenty or twenty-five Freshmen lined up in front of the Observatory. The Sophomores charged like fiends and soon paste, paper, hats, hair and clothing were one conglomerated mass. After the first assault which was deadly to the Freshmen, the "Sophs" rallied and made a second charge. This time all but four of the Freshies fled in fear. These four were the martyrs of the class. After pasting a poster to the bare back of each one and giving each one a paste shampoo they were allowed to run home.

The Freshies now spent the time in routing their men out, and as soon as a Freshie was spied trying to come to the aid of his class, the Sophs applied a paste and poster plaster to his back.

Finally the Sophs, tired of roaming around, as it was now about 6:30 a. m., resolved to take a stand around the telegraph pole at the corner of North Main and Loomis streets and defend it. Not much time was lost before the Freshies, now augmented with fifteen or twenty more men, made a bold charge up North Main street. The "Sophs" stationed a detail to guard the telegraph pole, which was covered with posters, and then went forth in battle array to meet the on-coming army. It soon turned into individual scraps, which were the fiercest ever seen on the hill. There were as many as ten black eyes in ten minutes, to say nothing of other bruises and bumps. After fighting for half an hour, the Sophs had practically put all the Freshies out of business, and both classes dispersed.

They Wanted to Fight.

Lower Classmen Almost Came to Blows After Chapel Friday Morning.

After chapel Friday morning considerable class spirit was manifested and for a while, everything pointed towards a fight. When ten or fifteen minutes of bantering had been indulged in on both sides, the students quieted down and went orderly to their respective recitations.

SOPHOMORES WIN CANE-RUSH.

Class of 1908 Exultant in Victory—Freshmen Fight Hard But Lose to Their Rivals.

Out-numbered But Invincible Sophomores, After Fifteen Minutes of Desperate Struggle Force the Stick over Their Opponents' Goal—Organized Rushing Defeats Numerical Strength.

After fifteen minutes of the most desperate and sensational rushing ever seen on the local campus, the out-numbered but invincible class of 1908 pushed the hotly-contested stick over their opponent's goal amidst deafening cheers of enthusiastic spectators.

The rush was at all stages of its action brilliant and spectacular, abounding in features of unusual and unparalleled character. Time and time again was the stout cudgel hurled back and forth by the hard-fighting contestants, and time and time again did cork-screw rushes and circular wedge formations advance the cane towards one goal or the other, only to be hustled back in the other direction with surprising rapidity. Faculty, students, coeds and impartial spectators yelled themselves hoarse with enthusiasm as the surging mob of lower-classmen whirled and tumbled, solved and reorganized, battered and struggled on the crowded field.

Much amusement was caused at intervals during the fight by the strenuous altercations between Coach Rickey and some of the more belligerent lowerclass members of the football squad, to whom rushing is a forbidden fruit. On several occasions the coach himself was compelled to enter the conflict and drag forth certain erring wearers of the moleskins. Another amusing feature was the way the crowd scattered when a sudden shift of action brought the scrimmaging into their midst.

Before the contest the atmosphere was pervaded with a hush of eager expectancy. Slowly the crowd of eager onlookers filled the long sidelines and the members of the two lower classes assumed their positions under the respective goal-posts of the practice-ground, where upper-classmen held back the eager rush-line with stout ropes. The cane, beribboned and sunk deep in the earth between the opposing sides, was now the center of interest.

Promptly at 4:20 the referee fired his pistol and the rushers were off like a shot. G. R. Clark, the 10-flat Sophomore sprinter, was the first to reach the stick, and wrenching it quickly from the ground, sent it flying over the heads of the Freshmen leaders into the hands of the rear-guard men. Freshie Millward responded by a counterthrow, but the cane was eventually downed in Freshman territory. Then with a series of rushes and spiral runs the cane was advanced to within twelve yards of the west goal, and here the Freshmen held right nobly.

Slowly the seething throng of underclassmen began to move in the opposite direction. 1909 had gotten her second wind and fought bravely and effectively. By gradual but consistent gains the cane was advanced to the center of the field, while cheering Juniors heeled the struggling Freshies and advice. But the stick was destined to proceed no farther east. A fake side-rush left the cane in the hands of some two or three men only, and Sophomore "Bill" Thomas succeeded in capturing the contested twig for a throw. Beautifully did it describe a long parabola into Freshie "Lou" Sherwin's arms. And beautifully was it returned, only to be sent swiftly again toward the Freshman goal line, near which it was downed and again surrounded.

Now the fight became desperate. Anxious Juniors appealed to their protectors with frantic cries for resistance. Reverend Seniors urged on their lower-class allies to speedy victory. And, at precisely 4:35, or fifteen minutes after the initial pistol-shot, the victorious Sophomores sent George Miner over the line with the trophy of conquest.

Congratulations, yells and speeches were now in order and the most successful cane-rush in the history of the college was an event historic.

Juniors Choose Officers.

Third-Year Men Elect "Benny" Miller to Presidency—Stormy Session.

On Monday afternoon the Junior class met for the annual election of officers. As is always the case in such matters the election was hotly contested. A bonafide class list was produced and it became necessary for every one present to prove his right to attend. As a result three visitors were asked to withdraw. Those who refused were gently removed.

The discussion of both political parties was edifying and interesting. Opinions were frankly expressed and several oratorical efforts brought forth applause from the gallery.

After the usual amount of red tape had been gone through with the following officers were elected:

President—B. W. Miller.
Vice President—R. K. Horn.
Treasurer—R. G. McKinney.
Secretary—Miss Wynona Baker.
Poet—Miss Ethel Fowler.
Historian—O. C. Jones.
Replier—Miss Carol.

Theta Sigma.

One of the jolliest chest-nutting expeditions of the year was indulged in by the members of the Theta Sigma sorority and their friends on Saturday afternoon. The party boarded the Cambridge Springs car at the east campus gateway at three o'clock, and were soon pricking their willing fingers on tempting burrs in the big Barnett grove. Out-door games were played, the orchard was visited, and at six o'clock a dainty lunch was served on the veranda of the farm house.

After lunch the picnickers gathered around the open log fire and while the chestnuts cracked merrily in the embers stories were told and songs sung in true college style. Miss Spaulding chaperoned the party.

All competitive Campus copy must be submitted before noon Saturday. It may be left either at the Phi Kappa Psi house or at the Messenger office.

RICKEY'S MEN LOSE TO GENEVA

UNEXPECTED DEFEAT AT BEAVER FALLS.

Allegheny Fought Hard but Lost on Flukes—Score 11-0—Geneva's Two Touch-Downs Made in First Five Minutes of Play, After Which Ball Remained in Geneva's Territory.

The Allegheny College foot ball players are looking for a mascot. The bunch of ill-luck which the fates have given the players during the last week is too much for them to meet single handed. The defeat which they suffered Saturday afternoon at the hands of the Geneva warriors was a fitting climax. Personally the individual players don't object to being "battered, bruised and torn," but they do feel a little sore that the opposing team should make a touch-down the only time it made a substantial gain.

In the first five minutes of play Allegheny carried the ball well into Geneva's territory before losing it; first being penalized for alleged off side play. Geneva then made several plays against Allegheny's line without material gain. At this point, however, Allen was given the ball and, skirting the right side of the line, made an eighty-five yard run for a touch-down.

The second touch-down was made a minute after the first. Allegheny received the kick-off, Benedict catching the ball. He was downed on Allegheny's 25 yard line; the ball, according to reliable witnesses, snatched and succeeded in again crossing the line for a touch-down.

But this unexpected success of the Beaver Falls boys only served to make the locals play better and more warily. No more long runs or stolen balls are recorded on either side, although many a runner felt thereafter the eager hands of a Geneva player clinging to the ball. From this time on until the last few moments of the game, the ball was in Geneva's territory, and many times seriously threatening her goal; but unfortunately at the critical moment the ball was always lost from one cause or another.

In the first half the Allegheny boys, feeling themselves strong in offense, chose to receive the kick. Benedict ran the ball back to the 40 yard line and from there the team quickly carried the ball to their opponent's 40 yard line by a series of line plunges. Robinson was also used to good effect, carrying the ball through right tackle. The team was penalized 5 yards for off-side play and not being able to make the required number of yards, they surrendered the pig skin to Geneva on her 35 yard line.

The only scoring in the game was made in the next two minutes. Geneva sent her half backs in succession against Allegheny's line and then gave the ball to Allen, her right tackle, who carried it around Allegheny's right side and evading the whole team, ran nearly the length of the field for a touch-down. He failed to kick goal.

The teams immediately lined up.

Entered as Second-Class matter October 30, 1904, at the Postoffice at Meadville, Pa., under the Act of Congress of March 3, 1879.

For the education of the Campus both old and new students, who desire to compete for places on the 1906-7 Campus board, it is our intention to state clearly and as briefly as possible the methods whereby the editorial staff is annually elected, the requirements for eligibility, together with a few facts which may be of value to the prospective competitors.

The Campus board for each ensuing year is elected at the end of the second semester by a committee of three. This committee consists of a member of the faculty, a representative of the Quill Club (the conservative literary organization of the college), and the previous editor-in-chief of this publication. The election is conducted purely on grounds of competition, the basis of said competition being the divers "copy" handed in to the editor for publication during the year by the various competitors. All such copy—which must bear the signature of the writer and the words "for competition"—whether published or not, is preserved and kept on file at the editorial office for the final examination of the election committee.

Now as to the duties of the competitor himself. While copy of any nature submitted in competition is acceptable, yet it is preferred that the competitor select some particular office as the object of his competition and confine himself to work along that line. Thus one who is competing for the office of athletic editor should limit his work to athletic articles, while the candidate for the local editorship should submit each week some ten or fifteen local items. On application to the editor, competitive work will be assigned and given personal attention.

In deciding upon the merits of the work submitted three points will be especially considered by the election committee: first, quality, both as regards neatness of copy and adaptability to newspaper purposes; second, quantity, the competitor who presents the largest amount of material having a decided advantage over his rivals; and third, the consistency and continued character of the competition—that is, the competitor must be regular and methodical in his work, submitting material, if possible, every week throughout the entire year.

It is desired that all those interested in this competition report to the editor during the coming week for competition assignments. We strongly urge that a large number, especially from among the students entering college this year, take advantage of the opportunity thus offered.

This is the time of the college year when the casual Freshman observer of human nature loves to turn his attention to the crochets and calisms of the newly ordained freshman, now at the height of his puppy loves and kitten-mischief, and as yet unassailed by the sophisticating influences and stimuli of college life. For it is only during the opening weeks of his first semester that the member of the genus verdans may be found in his typically raw and unconventionalized state. The final advent of the green cap inevitably brings with it that wholesome lower class modesty which obliterates to some extent the more noticeable evidences of an awkward and untutored adolescence in its normal state.

We have seen many kinds of freshmen in our day. Some affected the lion, some the lamb, while still others bore more striking resemblance to rat terriers rampant, so eagerly did they snap at their bones of right and privilege. Certain erroneous and benighted first-year men, it is said, have been so afflicted with an overrealization of their own native talents and abilities as to require an extraordinarily brilliant greenness of environment to avoid contrast. While on the other hand there are always a paltry few so unassuming, unassuming, and torpid in their mental activities, as never to be seen in a class election, cane-rush, or on the side lines at a foot ball game.

But these are all extreme and abnormal types. The average freshman, we believe, has in his veins the blood of that sturdy young-manhood which is the bulwark of our American nation. Though he is new to his surroundings and feels somewhat dazed when a mob of wily Sophs plaster his back with sticky "procs," yet he may be depended upon to assume a bold front and give his assailants a hard tussle. Here's to the patient, long suffering freshman. May he live and prosper, and one day become a Soph.

Important Athletic Offices Filled.

Non-Fraternity Party Scores a Political Victory—Hartung and Hull the Successful Candidates.

Amidst the general and pervading excitement caused by class fights, Sophomore "procs," and Hulings Hall blue laws, an important athletic election came in Saturday morning for its share of the fun. The polls at Science Hall seethed all morning with voters, wire pullers, campaigners, stand-patters, and mugwumps, while frats, non-frats, fair co-eds and staid professors cast their ballots and electioneered with traditional energy. Printed tickets were scattered broadcast like missionary tracts, and proxy's were offered galore. Not until the polls had closed at one o'clock did the southwest corner of the campus assume its accustomed silence and solitude.

The election resulted in a complete victory for the non-fraternity party, whose candidates were elected by small majorities.

Mr. Hartung was elected to the position of president of the Athletic Association and Mr. Harold H. Hull was made assistant base ball manager for the coming spring.

The votes were as follows:

For president of the Athletic Association: Hartung 167, Shaffer 158.
For assistant base ball manager: Hull 172, Horn 153.

The total number of votes cast was 325.

Historic Old Gooseberry Bush.

Phi Gams Relate Interesting Tradition of Early Days.

The Phi Gams have read with interest the articles which appeared recently in these columns concerning the historic Phi Psi willow and the Phi Delta Theta hedge. They wish to state, however, that they have in their possession a historic shrub which rivals in its unique character either of the above-mentioned curiosities.

The tradition is as follows. In the custom of the Rev. Timothy Alden, first president of the college, to play mumble-the-peg with the members of the Senior class on the first Saturday in October. This custom was the precursor of the cane-rush now in vogue. On the occasion of one of these annual mumble-the-peg tournaments, so the story goes, a certain Senior had the good fortune to drive the peg (which consisted of a small gooseberry twig) so far into the ground that the revered Timothy, though an expert at the game, was unable to extract it and gave up in disgust. There, nourished by the fertile soil and sun and rain, the small and insignificant twig grew into the magnificent gooseberry bush which now constitutes a chief feature of the Phi Gamma Delta back yard.

Truly the Phi Gam gooseberry bush may be classed as the equal if not the superior of either the Phi Psi willow or the Phi Delta hedge.

RICKEY'S MEN LOSE TO GENEVA.

Geneva kicking off. Benedict advanced the ball to the thirty yard line. Here he was tackled and in the mix up, the ball either fell from his hands or was taken from them by an opposing player. At any rate Schuman carried the ball over for the second touchdown. Allen kicked goal. The ball was in Geneva's territory during the greater part of the remainder of the half.

Allegheny kicked off in the second half and soon held Geneva for downs. The Meadville boys then carried the ball by straight foot ball to their opponent's ten yard line. Here they were penalized for off side play and as a result lost the ball on downs.

Geneva quickly punted the ball to a safe distance and Allegheny again started for a touch down.

This touch down was finally deferred until Geneva plays in Meadville. Then unless the Beaver Falls team finds a second Daniel, they will learn that Allegheny is a Shylock for exacting full payment of all debts with usurious interest.

Among the players Robinson at left tackle was the best ground gainer. He was called upon repeatedly to carry the ball, and always made good gains. Bridges on the defense and as an interferer was the star man on the team. But the whole team to a man played a good game. Many of the men were badly crippled when the game began. This is especially true of the back field men. But so far this year no man can, in justice, call any player on the team yellow.

A good crowd was in attendance, including a score or more of old Allegheny students. They urged on the team, with all an undergraduate's enthusiasm. The work of the officials was generally satisfactory, and the players as a whole feel that they were given a "square deal" by the spectators.

The next game will be Saturday with Westminster at Meadville.

The Campus Trees.

An Interesting Article from the Meadville Tribune-Republican Concerning the Many and Beautiful Shade Trees Which Adorn the College Campus. There are many shade trees on the campus of Allegheny College, and a great variety of them.

In the line of fruit trees, the apple and the crabapple are represented, while the wild cherry also has some very good specimens.

There are four varieties of nut-bearing trees—chestnut, butternut, walnut and hickorynut. The first two named are well filled this year, and the products of the trees will be carefully looked after and gathered.

The other trees represented are the pine, hard maple, soft maple, silver maple, fir, elm, ash, locust, mountain ash, willow, buttonball and horse chestnut. All of these trees are alive and at this time many are donning their beautiful autumn foliage. There are several varieties of elm and ash.

If one knew the history of these trees, an interesting chapter could be written. No doubt some of them were planted by the presidents and members of the faculty in the early days of the now venerable but ever lively and progressive educational institution of which every resident of Meadville is, or should be, proud.

There are many firs included in the list of trees that adorn the campus of Allegheny College, and they are to be found in various parts of the grounds.

Standing midway between Ford Memorial chapel and Newton observatory can be seen 15 fir trees in a circle. It is said that many years ago the Senior class of the college numbered 15, and that on commencement day each member of the class planted a fir tree. Nearly all of them have grown to a height of over 40 feet, and with proper trimming could be made to look even more beautiful and attractive than now.

Trees are so common in this latitude that the average person fails to realize how truly ornamental and beautiful these products of the fields and woods are. Were every tree to be removed from the college campus, how desolate and unattractive it would become. Their grateful shade, their wilderness of leaves and branches, and all that goes to make up the trees would be sadly missed were they to become a thing of the past.

Those who have planted trees on the campus of Allegheny College in the past have done well, and there is yet room for the planting of the "lords of the field and forest."

So many candidates presented themselves for a place on the Syracuse Glee Club that a second trial has been called.

The Washington-Jeffersonian pleads for a better recognition of the work done by the debaters who so successfully represented W. & J. last year.

Ohio Wesleyan's library has been supplied with electric lights and is open from 7:55 a. m. till 5 p. m. every week day except Saturday when it closes at 4.

The Dickinsonian is doing its best to stir up college and athletic spirit. Last year the students voted to raise the athletic fee one dollar but this year the trustees have made the payment of it optional and a strong appeal is made, for the success of athletics depends largely on the funds.

Mass Meeting Held For Pacific Purposes.

Students Met Friday to Take Action Against Disorderly Lower-Class Demonstrations Before the Cane Rush.

Saturday morning in chapel, Dr. Crawford announced a meeting of the students of the college to consider the question of—to use Dr. Crawford's words—"a disorderly canerush that is decent." The faculty then retired and Mr. C. A. Wilson, president of the Senior class, presided over the meeting. He stated that in a conference with members of the faculty, it had been decided to make more of the annual canerush and abolish the other—disorderly demonstrations of class spirit.

Dr. Lockwood, who was present to represent the faculty, added a few remarks, affirming what Mr. Wilson had said.

The Freshman challenge was accepted by the Sophomores, and the annual cane rush is scheduled to take place on the athletic field back of the Gym on Tuesday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

Notice.

The first regular meeting of the Quill Club to be held in the parlors of the Presbyterian church, has been postponed from Thursday, October 12, to one week from that date.
