Dear Miss Scales:

I have been back from the Southwest only a few days but have found time to go over rather carefully the digest that you have submitted on the manuscripts that seem to you worth reading, or rather digesting. I spoke to Mrs. Crine yesterday about getting hold of you and here this morning comes your letter. Yes - telephone me some morning next week and I shall be glad to arrange to lunch with you and talk over the whole matter.

Very sincerely yours
