Dear dear Miss Tarbell:

While here up at the War Department Mrs. Winchell invited Jessie and myself over a few moments one day last week. Enclose the express. Have found interesting to Mr, as Jessie & I discovered Smith to be one of the old friends of Clara's Jessie Miss. who left his photograph by Crane to the California post, used Lincoln's displacing here, resulted in Chase's resignation. This makes the story much better.

It is a curious fact that after Lincoln's death, Victor Comes title again, and it made the custodianship of valuable buried State Gold very profitable.

You will find all this news in the references, but I thought you would be curious to know what he really figured as prominently be pictured.

It must be true that the government finally concluded that he was treasonable, but since we find no trace of the charge of that gold, I have a little doubt of.
Pardon my paper.
Keep free as well.
Sincerely

Ida M. Tarbell.
