Dear Miss Tarbell:

Miss Sullivan and her party arrived this morning and left a short time ago. We showed her everything & she seemed so interested in your collection and its housing.

President Talley happened to be here &
took the ladies through the new dormitory and they saw Bentley, your class stone, the Alumni Gardens, had dinner in the new College Grill and then resumed their journey.

The route, as they have it outlined on their map, looked even of interesting.

Miss Sullivan is a charming young woman and it is pleasant to have seen her for now I shall know who is helping you.

It is good to know that you are feeling better and I hope your new book comes to a happy conclusion.

The girls here tell you the details about the new sanctuary which is being wished to completion in time (very hope) for the M.E. Conference in Early September.

With affectionate greetings from Miss Hendershah and me 2 am.

Faithfully yours
Edith Rowley
