My dear Miss Walter:

I have a letter this morning from Mr. Dunlap, in reply to one I wrote him after my talk with you. He is very much pleased that you will consider the work, and says that it seems to him that if the connection works out as we all hope it will that you might be willing to be announced as the associate editor of the Handbook. That would be just what I should like. The salary of $60. a week would be entirely acceptable.

I think there is no doubt that if the relation proves satisfactory all around that there would be work for at least a year, and probably longer.

I am writing this in order that you may know that everything is all right from his end and that there is nothing now to be done but for you to make up your mind. I shall hope to hear from you by the middle of next week.

Very sincerely yours,

Miss Walter
