My dear Miss Tarbell:

When in New York last Saturday, I talked with Miss Calhoun and told her about my plans for your lecture in Pittsburgh this fall; she seemed to think there perhaps you would not care to talk before a large audience, and I thought of calling on you at Bethel on Sunday, but as I shrink from breaking the quiet of Sundays, I decided to write to you.

The demand for tickets in Oldenburg for your lecture will be so great that I was advised to have you give it in Leamington Hall, and are about to make arrangements to that effect. You must be pleased however, since it is ~~not~~ ^{not} at all against your wishes, I must change my plans. I do not know how far you will be willing to talk before all those who desire to hear you for you know that you are considered not only a friend but a protection to many people in that section of the country.
I can arrange for a much smaller hall and consequently for a much smaller audience if you so desire.
Now I hear from you at once - as plans must be made soon for the fall.

Most cordially

Ella E. Kirk
