

What Price Security:

Should be - "Security and the Standard of Living"

The first question to be asked is
The standard of living should be, Are you individually earning the standard? What are you doing to earn this standard? Are you demanding it out of the air? Are you accepting your responsibility for the standard you have set up? There should be the recognition of what in the last analysis must be the fact that the standard of living depends upon production, that is if you are considering the Nation as a whole as the present administration seems to be doing. The Nation demands that there should be such a standard of living for everybody. Are you, as an individual, going to get that? It depends upon your production.
