

April 12, 1921

The Grevell Publishing Co.,
Springfield, Ohio.

Gentlemen:

There is some mistake about the bill which you sent me and which I enclose.

I myself have never been a subscriber to the American Magazine. Up to two years ago I sent several Christmas subscriptions, but there was so much trouble in their delivery that I cut off all but one, which was to be sent to Mr. G. Burr Tucker, Bethel, Conn., R.F.D.#25. This was for 1920.

It was not until last fall that I learned that Mr. Tucker had not received the magazine. I immediately wrote, calling attention to the fact that I had sent in the subscription, and I then enclosed a check for $2.00, which I thought was the subscription price of the American Magazine, and asked that the magazine be at once sent, with back numbers. No acknowledgment of this check was ever received, and Mr. Tucker has never received any copy of the magazine - or had not when I last talked with him, perhaps three months ago.

Under the circumstances, I think that it is your business to return to me the $2.00 that I sent you. I certainly do not feel under any obligations to pay the bill which you sent me. The check which I sent was #663 on the Bankers' Trust Co. of New York, and was dated September 28, 1920.

Very truly yours,