AUC Weekend Retreat At Bousson Proposes Student Government Changes

by Fred Quinn

A week-end meeting of 33 Allegheny Undergraduate Council, National Students' Association, class, and social group representatives held last Saturday at Bousson has produced a report of recommendations that observers have termed "... the most important student government report in years, if adopted."

Four discussion groups met under the topic "How can Allegheny's Student Government become More Effective in the Total Business of Higher Education?"

A group, headed by Lynne Blanning, Allegheny Women Students' president, discussed co-ordination of in-class learning and out-of-class activity. The committee suggested that an economics major, recommended by the department, and approved by the A.U.C., be given 1-3 credit hours for his work as A.U.C. treasurer, providing that his efforts "be deemed acceptable by the department." The same committee also recommended that an interested student, as his senior project, survey the Student Affairs Committee of the A.U.C. and include in his report such items as the derivation of powers and the history of the committee.

The committee also discussed the possibility of creating a leadership training program, and establishing thought groups to discuss possible academic credit for participation in the college band and Sinfonetta, and photography activities. The committee recommended that the Academic Affairs Committee meet with the International Relations Club and Foreign Students Committee to further "participation of foreign students in academic affairs."

Pierce Recommends

The committee on academic planning, under chairman Bob Pierce, former president of Alpha Chi Rho, called for the chairman of the Academic Affairs Committee to become a permanent member of the faculty Instruction Committee "in order that communication may be improved between the Instruction Committee and the Allegheny student body," and that a member of the faculty Instruction Committee become permanent adviser to the Academic Affairs Committee. Finally, the committee recommended that the Academic Affairs Committee continue its evaluation of the G-courses, individual departments and instructors.

Hannah Rutter, president of the Senior Court, headed the Student Self-Discipline Committee discussion. The group called the Allegheny judicial structures "... more liberal than those ... in existence at many other colleges ... Judicial structures which we can view with pride." The resolution enumerated specific offences and clarified which agency should handle such cases.

Turning to the Honor System, the report continued "We recommend that an ultimate goal of Allegheny's student-faculty-administrative policy be directed towards

All-College Meeting

Mr. Paul Denise of World University Service will be on the Allegheny campus next Tuesday and Wednesday, October 11 and 12. Mr. Denise will be present Wednesday night at an Allegheny Undergraduate mass meeting, to answer all questions from students and faculty concerning WUS and Allegheny's Fund Drive.

Playshop Stages Political Satire

by Marilyn Will

The musical, "Of Thee I Sing", is being held October 18-22 at 8:00 in the Playshop. This successful Broadway production was written by George S. Kaufman, with music by George Gershwin. "Of Thee I Sing," in 1932, became the first musical comedy to win the Pulitzer Prize. The first Playshop production of the year is a satire on American politics. The ups and downs of the men who run for political offices are made hilariously funny and extremely entertaining in this play.

A political campaign called "The Ticket of Love" is the basis of all the action. It involves a beauty contest in which all states may participate. The most beautiful girl is to be the wife of Wintergreen. At this point another girl appears on the scene to upset all the carefully laid campaign plans. How the campaign progresses and the romance turns out will be up to you to discover.

In the play, Wintergreen, candidate for president, is portrayed by Harrison Shields; the vice-presidential candidate, Throttlebottom, is Joseph Ragno; Mary Turner is Clara Lou Tulloch; Diane is Ann Carter; and Miss Benson is Delancey Johnson.

Besides "Of Thee I Sing", native Pittsburgher George S. Kaufman, composed other Broadway hits such as "You Can't Take It With You", the "Butter and Egg Man", and the "Man Who Came To Dinner."

George Gershwin supplied music for many of Kaufman's plays. He is remembered for some all-time favorites like "Rhapsody In Blue," "Swanee," and "I Got Plenty of Nuthin."

Air Corps Band Leads Oct. 8 Thiel Migration

Allegheny's annual Migration Day will be observed this year on Saturday, October 8 at Thiel College in Greenville, Pennsylvania. Migration Day is the name given to the day traditionally set aside for the student body to follow the football team to a nearby town.

The 50 piece R.O.T.C. band will appear for the first time this year at the pep rally Friday night at 6:30 in Montgomery Gym. They will also present a show during half-time at the game entitled, "A Day in College."

Tickets to the game may be purchased for $1.10 at the Grill Thursday and Friday. For students who do not have cars, buses will be provided. Round trip bus tickets will cost only $0.50 as the Allegheny Undergraduate Council is contributing half of the regular fare. Bus tickets must be purchased by Thursday at the latest.

The buses will leave from Brooks circle at 12:30 p.m. on Saturday. If those who have cars leave at this time with the buses, a police escort will be provided to conduct them out of the city.

For the convenience of those planning to attend the game, lunch will be served one half hour earlier than usual and dinner will be served one half hour later.

Washington Semester Students Return Eager To Tell Others Of Experience

by Trudy Bauer

Full of enthusiasm, five Allegheny students have returned for their senior year on campus after participating in the Washington Semester program. With manuals, scrapbooks, seminar notes, and bulletins from American University to illustrate their comments, the students are hoping that those interested in the program will ask them questions and look over the material. Only too eager to tell others about the experiences they felt were so awarding, they hope the response to the program will be even greater this year.

Philosophers Unite

An open forum by the G-9 staff will be held on Thursday, October 13 in the Henderson Auditorium at 7:00 p.m. Professors Day, Lindley, and Pommer will discuss the book, Modern Science And Modern Man by James B. Conant. The forum is primarily for G-9 students who will have read the book but all others who are interested are invited to attend and participate in the open discussion of the book.

The Washington Semester program sends students to the American University in Washington, D.C. for the second semester of their junior year. Its purpose is to provide these students with an opportunity to work with source materials and governmental institutions in the nation's capital and to observe and study the machinery of our government in actual operation. The program is composed of a guided seminar which is concerned with the study of various branches of the national government; an individual project which usually involves specialized study and research in one phase of government, interviews with officials, and completion of a final written report; and the enrollment in two or three elective courses, for which the fields of history and social science are recommended.

Manyfold Experiences

"Attending this program is a valuable and interesting experience, not only for history and political science majors but for anyone interested in gaining an awareness of the problems of national government," Pat Cambell, one of the participants in the program, emphasized, "Apart from its educational worth the social and cultural experiences are inestimable."

Laura Putnam, another Washington Semester student, called it "the most treasured experience" of her college life and spoke of "the close contact with the operation of the government which it offered" and the "unusual people they met there." She concluded, "I realized that the government isn't just an impersonal machine but, for the most part, is the sum total of very human and interesting people."

Many Opportunities

Miss Campbell, a sociology major, took for her project the study of racial discrimination in the fire departments of the capitol. Miss Putnam, a history major, studied the National Park Service and the recent controversy over Echo Park. Another Alleghenian participant, Jim Pomroy, whose field of study is economics, studied personnel relations.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Dear Sir:

Just wanted to let the Freshmen in on the secret society called the Sophomore Court. On Thursday of last week, I was told by this society to appear and answer charges made against me by Sophomore women. I had been given two summons, both because I failed to greet these woman upon meeting them. As I am a freshman, I had no idea what to expect of this court. However, I was told by upperclassmen that the court procedure would be as following: that the judges would wear black robes and that they would also appear stern and forbidding. I was also impressed with the fact, from these conversations, that I would be guilty under all circumstances regardless whether this was a just or unjust decision.

Laughter Reigns

When I entered, I found them dressed as expected, but instead of being forbidding they were funny, and instead of being stern they were weak. Their laughter, aimed at the poor, bewildered defendant, was so great that they had to force themselves to remain seated and not go rolling on the floor like a pack of hyenas. My defense counselor didn't bother to help me, but proceeded to prosecute me as a terrible criminal. The attitude they held towards my guilt manifested itself in the fact that I was not given a chance to plead innocent at any time during the trial.

Thus, I have come to one conclusion and believe it to be basically the same as the conclusion drawn by others who have undergone the same treatment. It is simply this: The court and its members are a farce, their only purpose is to waste time, theirs and ours. Therefore, fellow freshmen, have no fear, just tolerance.

Sincerely,

Ferrell Beck

Oct. 4-6 (Park) "Pearl of the South Pacific".

Wide screen views of Pacific vistas are interspersed with those of Virginia Mayo panting heavily and of natives performing exotic dances in what should be a financial success. The plot will surprise no one. Two men attempt to steal a pearl treasure from some natives and use Miss Mayo as the bait. In the best Breen tradition, good finally triumphs in the end.

With Virginia Mayo, Dennis Morgan, David Farrar. In Super-scope and Technicolor.

Moral of the movie: Women are easier to get than pearls.

Another sword-and-lace-handkerchief epic which the history books have omitted. A transposed Tony Curtis carries his Bronx accent with him as he invades 1803 France and thwarts Napoleon's best laid plans. It would be just as well not to take note of this film, were it not that Dan O'Herlihy, who did such a magnificent job in "Robinson Crusoe" last year, has had his efforts acknowledged by Hollywood to the extent that he plays Napoleon's agent in this one. There goes more talent down Hollywood's golden drain.

Faculty Profile

Allegheny's new economics professor, Mr. Abraham Goldblatt, comes from Cheyenne, Wyoming, and received his A.B. degree from the University of California, where he majored in economics and minored in political science. His studies at UCLA were interrupted in his junior year by World War II, returning in 1946 to get his degree.

Abraham Goldblatt

From 1943-1946 Mr. Goldblatt served in the infantry as a lieutenant. He attended the Officer Candidate School at Fort Benning, Georgia. Following this he was assigned to the Transportation Corps, attending school at New Orleans, La. Then he became personnel officer at Camp Stoneman, California.

Mr. Goldblatt did graduate work in the Department of Economics at Columbia University from 1949-

1951. During 1951, he received experience as a research economist at UCLA where he constructed a price-index of single family dwellings. He also worked for the Federal Reserve Bank of Kansas City in compiling a report on the Economic Effects of the Flood of 1951.

Economic Abstracts, a business magazine, published his articles on Housing and International Finance when he was assistant editor in 1954-1955. He was also co-author on an article on single-family dwellings in the November, 1953 issue of the California Real Estate Magazine.

Mr. Goldblatt and his wife, Marty, have two children, Jonathan, 18 months, and Mari Etta, 3 months. Mrs. Goldblatt attended Syracuse University, majored in psychology, and did graduate work at New York University and the New School for Social Research. She has taught at UCLA and the Stanford branch of the University of Connecticut.

Cycling is Mr. Goldblatt's special hobby. Mrs. Goldblatt is starting to raise grapefruit trees, first planting them in pots until they grow larger.

Correction

Our sincerest apologizes are here expressed to Allegheny's new philosophy professor, James F. Day. Last week "Faculty Profile" identified Mr. Day as Clarence. This error arose after our over studious Campus reporter mistook his name for that of the late popular humorist Clarence Day, author of Life with Father.

Is Our Income Security Threatened By Guaranteed Annual Wage Principle?

by Fred Adams

Americans everywhere have been pondering the question of income security ever since Black Friday in 1929. Just last week on September 27 before a debate club meeting four Allegheny professors debated the issue in light of the recent acceptance of the guaranteed annual wage principle by the American automobile industry.

Speaking for the affirmative, Mr. Elvis Eckles, professor of economics, informed the audience that fluctuating employment drifted. The history professor, a graduate of the University of Arkansas, replied that some folks regret having left that great state below the Mason-Dixon line. In reply to an audience question concerning design changes in the automobile industry, Mr. Carlip announced that the auto industry should make all black cars, have no design changes, and people should run these cars till they were junk.

Government Is Best

For the negative, Mr. Carlip took the position that unemployment is a problem of the entire society; therefore all of the society must pay through increased government unemployment compensation. In cross examination of the economics professor, Mr. Truman Driggs made clear to the audience that all industries do not have seasonal layoffs.

Carlip furthermore maintained the position of the government as a cure all. Industry isn't democratic since he had no choice in the selection of Mr. Wilson as President of General Motors and in fact he would have opposed him. He did have a voice in the selection of the government. (Note: Mr. Charles E. Wilson is currently Secretary of Defense.) In response to a question concerning whether the government is now bearing social costs he said, "Oh! but no, only a small percent goes to employment while most of the budget goes to defense."

Mr. Philip Robbins, economics professor, for the negative, took the position through his questions that acceptance of a guaranteed annual wage would encourage monopoly by limiting new companies from entering the field because the larger companies could bear the cost while the smaller ones couldn't afford an annual guaranteed wage.

Human Interest

A point of human interest arose when everyone implied to Mr. Driggs that some of the seasonal workers should return to the Arkansas farms from which they

Black Robed Judges Condemn Guilty Frosh

by Arlene Busse

Twenty-two solemn sophomores in black robes sat in judgment last Thursday as those freshmen accused of misdemeanors and high crime were brought before the first session of sophomore court. Several frosh received commuted sentences and others had their cases dismissed, but there were those who had to pay the full penalty for their crimes.

One sophomore was awarded the dubious honor of defense attorney for the freshmen, but he often found their crimes too grievous to make any defense possible. Sally Kiefer, who was apprehended while strolling on the grass, was required to wear an extra large sign warning other freshmen to keep off the grass.

The court decreed that Becky Beck should wear glasses on the back of her head for her failure to speak to upperclassmen. Becky was also seen sporting two cheery "Hello" signs. Bev Wilkinson and Kiki Zehrung were to find the distance from Caffisch Hall to Brooks Hall using a new standard of measurement—a dead goldfish. They will receive commuted sentences today.

If one is to judge by the showing of defendants at the court Thursday, girls far outnumber boys in violation of laws. So freshmen, be on your guard; the sophomore court convenes again today to prosecute and punish all those guilty of overstepping the limits of the law.

Hobart Eleven Drubs Gators; Team Faces Thiel On Saturday

Sporting a powerhouse, Hobart romped over Allegheny 41-7 at the Statemen's field, on Saturday, October 1. The victory marked Hobart's fourteenth consecutive win.

Led by fullback Walt Harrison, Hobart piled up a fantastic 523 net yard advance against a sluggish Allegheny defense. Allegheny, as in last week's defeat showed a marked defensive weakness. Time and time again Hobart would sweep the ends to pick up a huge chunks of yardage.

The Gators, held scoreless through the first three periods finally capitalized on one of the five fumbles that Hobart made during the afternoon. Midway in the last quarter Jim Villa, freshman back, grabbed a Statesmen fumble on his own 19 and toted it 81 yards for a score.

As a result of Hobart fumbles, the Gators were twice given scoring opportunities in the first period of play, but muffed both chances. After that it was all Hobart. Sinnock and Harrison each scored before the first quarter gun had sounded, Harrison's score coming as a result of intercepting a Ratcliffe pass on the Gator 30 and racing into paydirt. Harrison was to score twice more before the last whistle was blown.

The Hobart victory marked the fourth time in as many meetings that Allegheny has lost to the Statesmen from Geneva, New York. Last year's score was 32-7 for Hobart.

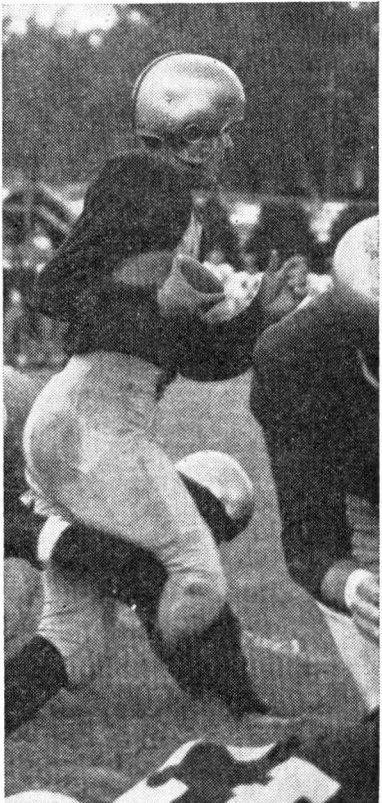

Next Saturday will see the Gators and their fans travel to Thiel college for the annual migration day game. Last year Thiel played Allegheny at College Field and won, 19-6.

Outing Club To Hold Overnight At Bousson

The Allegheny Outing Club is planning a busy year of activities. Already the organization, whose duty is the supervision and care of Bousson, has held an overnight outing as well as last Saturday's brush-up. The tobogan and ski trails have been repaired in preparation for a busy winter season. The next overnight is Saturday, October 15. Sign up lists are posted in Brooks, Caffisch, and Cochran Halls.

The year's program, while still in the planning stage, promises to give Alleghenians a chance to see more of Pennsylvania. Overnight outings are planned with Grove City College and trips to Allegheny State Park and Cooks Forest.

Harriers Work Hard

Allegheny's cross country runners have been pounding the turf for the last week in preparation for their coming meet with Grove City, October 26th. The four mile stretch which Gator Coach Bill Hanson has drawn up presents the kind of challenge the boys will meet when they trek to Grove City for the real thing.

Six Man Squad

Hanson is basing his hopes for a winning squad on the shoulders of runners Galbo, Robbins, Havis, Kennedy, Meyers and possibly Jim Zaccardi. A great deal of hard work goes into a good cross country team, and if this is any yardstick, the boys ought to do all right.

Other Meets on Tap

Other tentative meets with Slippery Rock and Westminster have been set up. The deciding factor in running these contests is whether or not the team maintains its present number of competitors. The Distrit Meet to be held at Slippery Rock, November 4, will definitely have Allegheny representatives in it.

THE LAST TROT

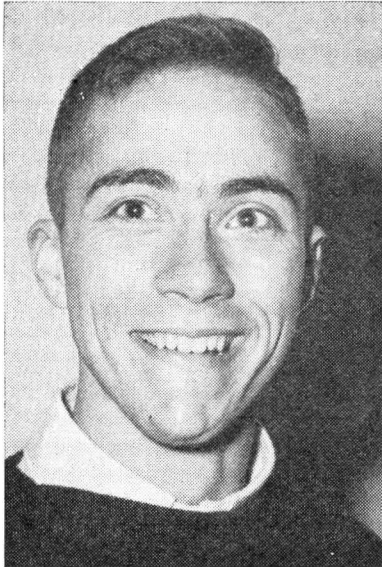

Don McArdle as he appeared trotting on to the field for the last time. —Photo by Foley

When considering this season in review, think of the one guy who will be doing the most thoughtful recapping. Don McArdle, three year letterman and stalwart defenseman entered what proved to be his command performance in the season inaugural with Wooster. This Saturday Mac will be sitting out the Thiel game while his number 37 hangs unattended in the dressing room. Mac, intent on making his fourth and final season with the Blue and Gold his most memorable, finds last year's knee injury coming back as a permanent memento of his Allegheny gridiron career.

Soccer Squad To Play Reserve; Backs Plagued By Inexperience

As the Allegheny Booters open their eight-game schedule Sat., October 8, against Western Reserve, they find themselves entering the game with the smallest squad in the coaching career of Bill Hanson. A total of 26 players will take the field against Western Reserve and many of these boys lack experience.

A veteran of nine seasons as head soccer coach at Allegheny, Hanson finds that along with a small squad, he is faced with a serious backfield problem.

Frank Brand, '54 All-District Selection, is expected to bolster the Gator offense.

The losses as a result of last year's graduation are most noticeable in the backfield. All-American Bob Siemons will be sorely missed at his fullback post along with Ron Goldsmith, Marty Reichle, and Bob Ozmun. These four boys along with returning letterman John Dobson, composed one of the best backfields ever to wear the Allegheny uniform.

Inexperience Hampers Team

Freshman Ed "Skip" Nagle is expected to lessen some of the problems. In daily workouts he has looked very impressive with his ball handling and passing, and should prove to be an asset in the backfield. If Dick Cotton and Carter White are not able to overcome knee injuries, the Gator situation will remain very serious as far as the backfield is concerned. Coach Hanson sums up his backfield problem with this comment:

"We will be opening up with an inexperienced backfield. There will be all new fullbacks." This means a rebuilding situation and it looms bigger and bigger as Saturday's game nears.

Veterans, Ray of Hope

A complete veteran line is returning this season, which should provide the Gators with an experienced offensive punch. The line has displayed fine passing and teamwork in scrimmages and should give opposing goalies many worries.

If spirit is any indication of the outcome of Saturday's game, Allegheny will be in the contest until the final gun. Despite inexperience and the lack of candidates, the squad is striving for teamwork and hustle.

ACA Seeks Correction Of Misunderstandings

by Don Skinner
President, Allegheny Christian Association

Several weeks ago the first regular meeting of the Allegheny Christian Association inspired severe comment and criticism from several areas of the campus. Some individuals stated that they were extremely disappointed in the A.C.A. that it should present such a program. Part of the misunderstanding has since been alleviated, and it is the hope of the writer that this article will serve to correct the rest.

The cabinet of A.C.A. feels that the organization has not been as strong in the past as it might have been, for several very concrete reasons. First, the program presented failed to be broad enough either to allow the attendance or to inspire the interest, of the entire student body and faculty. Secondly, those attending were for the most part in complete accord; that is to say, there was no controversy to keep the program alive. What follows is a frank statement of how we hope to deal with this situation.

The stated purpose of the A.C.A. is to unite the student body and the faculty of Allegheny College in closer Christian fellowship. This would put certain limitations on the group because in its very essence the A.C.A. is founded in the Christian tradition. We would overcome these limitations by presenting a program which is both Christian in background, yet broad enough to concern all members of the college community, no matter what their race or creed may be. Some have stated that we therein defeat our purpose, because the program is no longer Christian, although it may be religious. I would answer by saying that Christianity is precisely of that nature. Christian Conviction presupposes tolerance, and human understanding is one of its key words. Only by hearing the opinions and expressions of all beliefs—Protestant, Catholic, Jewish, agnostic, or atheist—can we fully appreciate and practice the Christian Faith.

Others would say that this viewpoint—that of philosophical searching into religion—is wrong in that true religion is accepted in faith, not on insight. This would appear to me to be intellectually lax, and such a belief would almost rule out the usefulness of the A.C.A. on the modern college campus. For here, the very environment is saturated with the desire to search for the truth through science and literature and philosophy. Our ideas are constantly in a state of flux as we learn and broaden our comprehension. The very fact that we are here should indicate that we are philosophically inclined, and that we wish to increase our understanding by insight and logical endeavor. Can such individuals as we are, then, accept religion verbatim without first searching into its qualities and contentions? If we do accept it without such a search, do we not endanger ourselves of severe disillusionment at a later time when that the organization has not our increased knowledge overpowers our religious insight?

This, then, is the position of A.C.A. on the Allegheny campus. We believe that just such a search is vital and relevant to the successful completion of a college education. We believe that we can provide an atmosphere for just such an endeavor. We also believe that before any conclusions can be drawn every individual should be permitted to speak as he believes. We do not wish to convert anyone, but we wish to hear statements of what people in fact believe or disbelieve, and why. We believe in our right to present our own beliefs in Christianity for the consideration of all.

Pomroy considered the semester "an experiment" in the educational process and called his experience in Washington "very worthwhile." He also mentioned the innumerable opportunities to meet important figures of the national scene and the possibilities of obtaining work for the following summer or the future.

Fred Adams who wrote on the subject, "The Legislative Objectives of the United Mine Workers in the 84th Congress" commented, "meeting with my friend Congressman Augustine B. Kelley and seeing a leader in action was a great satisfaction to me."

He also enjoyed close contact with such personalities as Congressman James Roosevelt, Martin Dies, Willis Smith, and Senators Duff, Eastland, McClellan, and Purtell at informal dinners at the Mayflower, Congressional, and Statler Hotels.

This afforded him a graphic picture of democracy in action.

The expenses of this semester include tuition, $250; room $130; and food, transportation, books, and incidentals, the cost of which varies with the individual.

And then, when and if grounds are reached upon which to draw truthful conclusions, we believe that the decision should be left to the individual.

Program Open To All Majors

Application is open to any junior; no specific major is required. Background courses in history, political science, social science, and economics are desirable. Selection is based upon the student's academic standing, background courses, potential, motivation for application, and maturity to pursue a course of independent study at American University.

A meeting for all juniors interested in participating in this program next semester has been announced by Dr. Cares, Chairman of the Washington Semester Committee. It will be held Friday, October 14 at 3 p.m. in the English seminar room of Arter. During this meeting the program will be discussed, questions pertaining to the semester answered, and application blanks distributed.

Bill Regan, President of AUC, has been watching the World Series over at the Delt House and even ate dinner there on Sunday. We know the Phi Gams took the Phi Psi TV set but did they also take the Phi Psi cook?

Carnegie Hall has been turned into a study hall for those interested in the finer art of love making. It couldn't be that Rustic Bridge has many crowded classes, could it?

6-5 odds are that the New Group won't last another year.

A certain red-headed frosh set a record for freshmen by having been charged with over 20 felonies. We understand that the sophomore court did not penalize her but reprimanded her. Well, as they say in Brooklyn, "Wait till next time."

All Glenn Miller fans be sure to be at the Homecoming football game on October 22. If they listen carefully at half time they will hear some Miller favorites being played by the band. However they should remember that their main purpose for being at College Field is to see and cheer the Gators on to victory.

As America is a country of immigrants, it would be fine if the descendants of these immigrants (that's us) would return the migration next Saturday (Oct. 9) and emigrate to Thiel for the annual Migration Day game. Whoo! That sure is a big word, isn't it?

Cochran residents are wondering when a telephone will be installed upstairs. They keep saying to Don Skinner, present head of Cochran, "Let's go Skinner, we want some action."

As AFROTC rank has been given, Rod McLean finds himself a Cadet Major in charge of the 8:00 section. Don't be surprised if you see Rod with a pair of steel balls rolling in the palm of his hand. He might even be awarded with a palm tree for doing such a fine job. Rod is so efficient he makes his roommate polish his ROTC shoes before going to class. He'd better for he's in Cadet Major McLean's section the establishment of an honor system. We realize that college is the place to become aware of and deal with the concept of honor . . . it is the recommendation of this committee that students, faculty, and administration discuss and consider an honor system, with the realization that such a system become a part of college policy . . . and encourage such attitudes and procedures that will best lead to the development and realization of this system at Allegheny." (See last week's Campus for President Pelletier's opinion on an academic Honor System).

On the topic of discipline this group declared, "we realize that discipline involves first self-discipline and control by the individual and an awareness of his responsibility to the college and town."

The Structure of Government discussion headed by Citizenship Committee chairman Larry Griggs, branded ". . . the present system of A.U.C. representation confusing and unjust" and called for ". . . students from all groups . . . to sit on the council . . ." The group suggested one A.U.C. representative for each block of 15 to 48 persons; two representatives for each block between 48 and 78; and that a group have at least 15 members before it be granted a representative. Otherwise, the report continued, the group with less than 15 members would be counted with the independent group.

IFC Meeting

Foreign students will be featured at the next meeting of the International Relations Club, Wednesday, September 12, at 8 p.m. in Quigley Faculty Lounge.
