Billy May Here For Christmas

WHAT'S THIS? Something new has been added due to the efforts of the art 30 class.

Horne, Grossman, McMullen, Gow, Bates Highlight Lit Mag's Stories and Poems

by Henry F. Pommer

"He had a drinking glass full of pencils between his knees which he was sharpening, one by one, to a needle point."

Funny?

"Stepping into the hall, the heavy door swung shut with a dull thud."

Fortunately the humor of other pages is less macabre and more intentional, and the dull thud echoes through only one story and not through the rest of Allegheny's "Literary Magazine" for Fall, 1959.

It is a good issue. I am sure of that in spite of having been handicapped in two ways. I read galley proofs lacking illustrations which will no doubt add charm to the finished magazine. And I was distracted by numerous faults of spelling and punctuation which will, perhaps, go out as the illustrations come in. I was distracted much as though a pianist struck a tonic chord instead of a dominant, or as though an inch of canvas had been cut from the Mona Lisa's nose. Certainly I hope the twelve errors in the editor's own "Afterword" will not still be there for our friends at Thiel or Harvard to read. Nor will I be so charitable as to blame all the errors on careless printers. "Anhiallation" instead of "annihilation" suggests to me the genius of a college student rather than of an experienced linotypist.

Once again the magazine is unevenly divided between short stories and poetry. By far the longest prose work is a story by W. E. Horne which takes its problem from last year's shocking and unsolved vandalism in Brooks Hall. Horne provides a good example of how a serious writer can use current events, altering them freely and creatively, solving problems of point of view, injecting meaningfulness. Unfortunately the story is uneven; it shows lots of inventiveness but not enough discipline. The leisureliness of much of the dialogue provides ample time for sex and profanity among the characters, but boredom among the readers. There is a demonstrable confusion of speakers on page 21; the long paragraph on page 26 is unduly sermonic. On the other hand, some sections are handled with finesse, and Kelly's insight grows to a very mature level. Because his story is ambitious and Horne is an experienced writer, his work is interesting even though flawed.

Donna Gow's "The Cherubums" is also a combination of much success with some failure. Indeed, most of the story is very good. But the ending is faulty — not that there is any inherent badness in toilet-paper, but that a need for it is irrelevant to the rest of the story, and that interjecting the teacher's thoughts shifts the point of view undesirably. Both factors pull the story from the high level of cleverness maintained until the last fourteen lines.

It is a pleasure to praise without qualification two other prose works: "The Sweet Fresh Smell of Land" by Rod Grossman, and "Here There Be Dragons" by Mimi Bates. Among the merits of the former are authentic ocean-liner atmosphere and careful construction; it is a ship-shape job. Mimi Bates has created a mock-heroic work of great fragile charm. Her type of satiric fancy is rare in college writing — and in all writing, for that matter. It is often over-done, but not here. Miss Bates has considerable learning and wears it gracefully; asterisks appear at just the right moments, and so does the lovely word "dracocide." In her story too there is a thud, but this one didn't dangle from a door — it "shook the land for miles around".

The goodness of the poetry by Nan McMullen and Mary Jane Hillstrom should surprise no one; they have written well for the "Lit. Mag." before. Miss McMullen's "Allegro" seemed to me the best of her contributions this time; the rhythms are pleasantly varied, and the usual level of diction is nicely counterpointed by "short-order" and "out of breath". A number of Miss Hillstrom's poems are of very high quality in imagery, rhythm, and other respects. "The Womenfeet" speaks from an admirably cool detachment; "Vesper" contains good alliteration and assonance; "Ventifact" . . .

I wouldn't ring a curtain down on all fiction after 1930. Partly because of these stories and poems, I won't ring one down in '59 either. Any questions, Dr. Zulli?

1st Big Name Band Since Christmas 1955

Billy May's Orchestra will be coming to Allegheny's campus for the Christmas formal Friday, December 18. The dance, co-chairmaned by Tom Patterson and Emily Eckman, will be held in Brooks from 9:00-1:00.

Billy May is the first big-name band leader to visit Allegheny since Sauter-Finegan in 1955. His band has become especially popular since 1951 when it first performed on a Capitol Record dance album. Since that time it has become increasingly well-known. Billy May began arranging music with Charlie Barnet's Orchestra and later joined the Glenn Miller Band to play trumpet and arrange. After the Miller band broke up, Billy went to Hollywood where he was musical director on the "Ozzie and Harriet Show", as well as arranger on Red Skelton's and Bob Crosby's Shows.

Chairmen of the committees for the dance are: decorations, Sue Tuttle; publicity, Diane Huot; and refreshments, Sandy Andrews.

Tickets may be obtained from: Judy Senkewitz, Kay Naylor, Irene McDowell, Norm Nickerson, Fran Richardson, Burt Lantz, Sue Dean, Jan Brown, Jim Corboy, Jean Morse, Bruce Stevens, Tom Patterson, Emily Eckman, Katy Brown, Alan Willsey, and Sandy Murray.

The donations to the ASG Activities Committee will be $2.00 per couple.

Campus Fraternities Celebrate Christmas Social Season With Parties, Dances

by Susan Marcy

With the advent of the Yule season, the fraternities have been holding dances and parties.

Dances

Sigma Alpha Epsilon — Guests received favors of a combination of sewing and jewelry boxes at the annual SAE Christmas formal, held in the Chapter House last Saturday. In the Yuletide tradition, two Christmas trees adorned the living room, while lights and boughs lined the staircase. Dancing music was furnished by the Roy Stumpp orchestra.

Phi Delta Theta — The Cooty Harris orchestra furnished the music for the annual Christmas formal of the Phi Delts. Held last Saturday evenings, the chapter house was decorated according to the Christmas season. The annual Ginch dinner was held Sunday afternoon. This dinner is put on by the sophomores for the upperclassmen. Highlight of the affair was the giving of funny gifts, accompanied by poems.

Delta Tau Delta — The largest crowd in six or seven years was present at the Delt Christmas formal last Saturday. Over two hundred trees were needed to cover the walls with pine. A catering service was on hand to serve refreshments consisting of shrimp, turkey, ham and fruit punch. Guests received from Santa Claus (Bob Graff) musical powder boxes as favors. These favors, by tradition, remain secret even to the brothers until intermission. The six piece orchestra of Joseph Silvester furnished the music.

Alpha Chi Rho—With traditional decorations, the Chi Rhos and their dates will dance to the music of Roy Stumpp's orchestra. Tonight will be an informal party, consisting of decorating the Christmas tree, songs and refreshments of cocoa and donuts.

Phi Gamma Delta—The David Meade Inn is to be the scene of tonight's annual Phi Gam Christmas formal.

Parties

Phi Delta Theta — The Phi Delts will host the children from Bethesda tomorrow afternoon for a big party. This is one of the highlights of the year for the Bethesda children.

Phi Gamma Delta — Children from the Odd Fellows Home will invade the Phi Gam House Saturday afternoon. Curly Morrison will portray Santa Claus.

Phi Kappa Psi—Sunday afternoon from three to five, before the concert, the Phi Psis will hold a tea, honoring the Singers. Everyone is invited to attend.

Playshop Presents Wilder's "The Matchmaker"

by Tony Arthur

The Allegheny Players did very well by Thornton Wilder's farce, "The Matchmaker, last night at the college. Leading a generally excellent cast were David Ottey, who played the irascible Yonkers merchant Horace Vandergelder, and Peri Grenell, who did a wonderful job of portraying the complex character of the title role.

The plot revolves around the efforts of Mrs. Dolly Levi, a shrewd, conniving but appealing character as portrayed by Miss Grenell, to make a match for wealthy, penny-pinching Vandergelder, who has decided to live it up a little and remarry.

Interwoven with this plot are the actions of numerous other characters: Cornelius Hackl, played very ably by Rodney Anderson, chief clerk for the merchant, and his assistant, Barnaby Tucker, played by Steven Frankel; Ermengarde, Vandergelder's pretty niece, was Sally Hopkins, a perfect job of casting; a New York milliner named Mrs. Molloy (Mimi Bates) and her attractive, naive employe, Minnie Fay (Katie Bird); and the roguish Malachi Stack, played by William Sutter is another example of outstanding type-casting.

Vandergelder's plan to marry Mrs. Molloy is upset by the scheming Mrs. Levi, who has it in mind to marry him and his half million herself; she is unexpectedly aided by Vandergelder's harassed clerks who, on a search for adventure, stumble into Mrs. Molloy's hat store. Although he is 33 years old Cornelius has never been kissed and talks his young helper, Barnaby, into a wild weekend on three dollars.

The action comes to a hilarious climax at the Harmonia Gardens Restaurant. All unknown to the pompous merchant, who was to meet Mrs. Levi and a fictitious person who she swore would be the answer to his dreams named Ernestina Simple, his down-trodden clerks are having the time of their lives with the equally naive ladies from the hat shop. The pompous waiter, well played by Tom Simonson, the gypsy violinist (Alton Nixon) and the correspondingly high prices have Cornelius worried that he will not be able to maintain his and Barnaby's pose as gay young men-about town until Malachi Stack hands Cornelius a fat wallet. Malachi had found the wallet, which had been dropped by Vandergelder earlier, and immediately tried to return it to what he supposed was its rightful owner.

Ina an aside to the audience, one of many by various characters in the play, Malachi explained that to live successfully every man must limit himself to one vice, and his happened at that time to be whiskey. Of course, in the end Mr. Vandergelder sees the light and is on the road to a complete rejuvenation in his forth-coming marriage to Mrs. Levi; he approves his niece's marriage plan to what he considered to be a worthless young artist, Ambrose Kemper, played rather unconvincingly by David Graham; and Cornelius ends up as a full partner and marrying Mrs. Molloy. All this action takes place in the home of Miss Flora Van Huysen, who orders the merchant to behave himself. Margaret Curtis was very natural and impressive as Miss Van Huysen, whose frustrated love life when she was younger makes her sympathetic to the young people.

"The Matchmaker" was directed by Charles Hampton, Jr., and moved swiftly from scene to scene, with very few slow spots. The costuming was good and the sets simple but adequate.

President's Message

Have you noticed any change in your feeling about Christmas this year? I hope you have.

A child's Christmas is self-centered. He thinks about the gifts he hopes to receive from Santa Claus, of the good that will come to him. At some point, as the child grows older, he begins to learn that he can contribute to the spirit of Christmas within the family circle, and he finds additional delight in so doing. A few more Christmas seasons, and he may develop an awareness that this spirit can be extended belond the family — he begins to sense the meaning of "Good Will to Men."

When he demonstrates this understanding by deeds, he has taken a long step toward that maturity Allegheny seeks to encourage.

Let me take this opportunity, as we come to a temporary halt in Allegheny activities, to wish students, faculty, and staff a happy Christmas season, satisfaction in the work of the coming year, and a peaceful world in which to live.

Christmas 1959

"In the bleak mid-winter, long ago," begins the beautiful Christmas hymn of Christina Rossetti, but it ends on an entirely different note: "What can I give him — give my heart." This is not sentimentalism, not wishful thinking, but is rather the poetic expression of mystery which exists at the center of the Christmas Event, the fact that the present becomes meaningful because of the meaningfulness of the past.

Christians often speak of the Incarnation as the center of history, and by this they mean simply more than just the fact that our calendar of years has its point of reference here. They mean that because at this moment in time God chose to enter history, history itself has purpose and meaning, a beginning and an end, and is not just a valueless succession of seconds and events of no ultimate significance.

But what is true of "human history" is likewise true of personal history. It, too, is dependent upon this Event for its center, its purpose and meaning, its ultimate significance. The life into which God has entered ceases to be characterized by monotony, impotence, and futility, and is charged with meaning, power, and purpose. Thus, in terms of history, human or personal, one can say that the Incarnation is not so much a point of time as an existential point of meaning, which has occured and yet must still occur for each one of us.

The question is thus not, "What happened in the bleak mid-winter, long ago?" but, "What can I give Him, now?" Christina Rossetti has given us the answer.

Charles B. Ketcham
Chaplain

The world with a mantel of white, whether viewed first hand or from the security of a warm room, cannot help but instill a feeling of wonder as the definite shapes of familiar surroundings take on a somewhat mystical quality. This view of the bridge is but one of many lovely winter scenes on campus. This picturesque setting serves to foster a feeling of excitement as students anticipate the coming holiday season. America is especially beautiful at Christmastime.

GUEST EDITORIAL

by David Browdie and John Chapman Urbaitis

As stated in the College Bulletin, this college is "concerned primarily with intellectual growth." In this section of the Bulletin other goals ranging from "transmitting culture" to "improvement of health and athletic skills" are mentioned. This article shall discuss only the goal concerning intellectual growth.

By synthesis of two "Websterian" definitions we can say that "progressive development of the power or faculty of knowing . . . the power of reasoning . . . a mind . . . a person of intelligence . . . " is intellectual growth. Again, there may be many definitions: the one used in this discussion has just been stated.

Upon acceptance of a goal of intellectual growth, the question presents itself, "How can this be brought about?" Perhaps in dealing with this question it would be wise to investigate a few of the properties of "intellectual growth."

In the final analysis, "intellectual growth," which must by its nature involve the mind and be a process without end, concerns the individual. Intellectual growth concerns an individual not as a member of society, not as a citizen in a community, but rather as an entity. The individual in this process of intellectual growth is truly alone. The individual must provide his own measures of achievement, his own incentive and reward.

Alice meets Humpty Dumpty in the land of Ph.D. (eism).

After consideration, the authors have come to the conclusion that any process involving the ability to reason which requires for its sucess that the individual follow patterns of behavior determined by extrinsic factors, is not intellectual growth and as such differs in its properties and effects from the process of intellectual growth.

Let us look at one of the processes which, although not intellectual growth, does involve the mind.

Perhaps the most obvious of these processes is that which concerns the achievement by the individual of a given level of proficiency determined by something other than his own will. The existence of society as we know it seems to be dependent on such processes as this, or at least processes such as this seem common to all societies. To our knowledge these processes work, and in this regard are perhaps indispensable. But we contend that this process is not intellectual growth.

In short, perhaps intellectual growth is that process which enables one to examine, to understand, to evaluate the knowledge contained in life and experience, not simply function well as a member of society. Functioning well in society can, but not necessarily must, be accomplished through intellectual growth.

Since intellectual growth comes about through the will of the individual contained within and affected only by himself, institutions which purpose to promote academic endeaver may do so, but they cannot hope to create intellectual growth. And perhaps this formalized promotion of academic endeavor might in some ways actually retard intellectual growth. Academic endeavor is almost certainly a part of intellectual growth, but let us not mistake it for intellectual growth. In actions to emphasize academic endeavor in the thoughts of the student through the devise of extrinsic reward intellectual growth may be suppressed. Finally, it should be remembered that rewards are products of the operation of society.

To return to the question contained in the third paragraph, the authors do not think that they have the answer. This college purposes to be concerned primarily with intellectual growth. To promote intellectual growth this institution has recognized that only indirect means are feasible. The present indirect means seem to lose sight of intellectual growth. Perhaps less emphasis on the manifestations of learning is indicated.

An environment in which intellectual growth naturally takes place is desired. This environment could not possibly cause intellectual growth; rather, it would permit it. The individual should be free to choose his goals, and to accomplish them to the extent his natural ability permits.

Letters to The Campus...

When we floundering students had little to ask the Angry Young Man, could not the elders of our intellectual community have come to the rescue? We were eager to listen.

Definition of terms:

elders: " . . . an older person with authority or dignity in a tribe or community."

community: " . . . a group of people living together and having interests and work in common."

Two impudent sophomores,
Doris Holmes and Sally Smith

To Whom It May Concern:

I wish you $30 worth of Merry Christmas and a more prosperous New Year. When you finish collecting money from the rest of the residents of Brooks and Walker Halls, you ought to be able to buy your mother a fur coat for Christmas and you might even have some left over for your father, who no doubt, like mine, is putting you through college. I hope your parents will appreciate the time and effort it's taken you to "earn" this money for their presents. This should make them very happy and very proud of you, a young, enterprising American.

Sincerely yours,
Marge Billard

To the Campus:

On Wednesday, December 16, in Quigley Auditorium a panel discussion will be held, sponsored by the Human Relations Committee, to discuss the general problems of discirimination on campus. The idea of this panel is to discuss the problem realistically as it exists on campus at the present time. The purpose of the panel is not to embarass or put in a bad light any group or individual, but to discuss this problem intelligently and in an attempt to come up with some positive solutions to this problem. I realize that this problem is one that is very touchy to some individuals, so this is why I felt this explanation of the panel was necessary.

Sincerely,
Glenn Nellis
Chairman, Human Relations Committee.

This is the last issue of the year.

Christmas Vacation Hours
Reis Library

Sunday, Dec. 20—Closed
Monday, Dec. 21—8:30-5:00
Tuesday, Dec. 22—8:30-5:00
Wednesday, Dec. 23—8:30-5:00

The Library will be closed from Wednesday, December 23, 5:00 p.m. to Monday, January 4, 8:30 a.m.

Take Note

The Philosophy Club will hold an informal meeting, Tuesday, December 15, at 8:00 p.m. at Dr. Hutcheson's house.

The Foreign Language Department Annual International Christmas Carol sing will feature traditional carols from France, Spain, Germany, and Russia. It will be held Tuesday, December 15 at 7:00 p.m. in Quigley Lounge. All students regardless of ability to speak a foreign language are invited to attend. Refreshments will be served.

Expected It In Green, Didn't You?

The boys at Ongley House have formed their own freshman fraternity, Sigma Ongley Beta. This arouses speculation as to an appropriate nickname for them. Any suggestions are welcomed, but will not be printed.

Got a letter from a woman in Jamestown, New York, who writes, "I was lucky enough to receive a copy of the Campus last week, and read your column. It's good to see that college students are as alert and conscientious as you. I thoroughly enjoyed it, and hope you continue in such fine fashion. Would it be possible for me to subscribe to the Campus? I would be willing to pay for the newspaper itself plus any postage and handling. Good luck in the future." Thanks, Mom, that was sweet.

If you haven't ventured down to Wolff's new annex on Park Avenue, I suggest you do — that is, if you're like me. I am always fascinated by big stores like Wolff's. I like to walk down the aisles between the counters, asking for demonstrations of various big items, then leave after buying some piddling item for less than a dollar. The salespeople just love me for this.

For instance, the other day I went in and asked for a demonstration of a tape recorder (they have everything at that store). The salesman did a very good job at it, and if I had happened to have the money available, I probably would have bought it right there. I didn't, though, but promised to consider buying it. I then moved on to the main building (where they sell the regular hardware items, and bought some of those little chair gliders with a metal bottom and a little rubber washer above it to soak up the shocks and noise. They looked like the ones on the legs of the chairs at Quigley, if you know what the legs of the chairs at Quigley look like — and you should. You're in college now, my children, perceive . I paid for them (I don't remember the exact price, but I think it was less than seventy-five cents) and hurried home, anxious to shut my screeching chair up.

I took them out of their little plastic tube (which can be used as a shot glass in a pinch), and noticed that they had little nails on one end to drive them into the chair leg. I also noticed that I didn't have a hammer to drive them into the chair legs. I really should have bought a hammer while I was at Wolff's, but enterprising as I am in situations like this, I used the heel of an old shoe to do the job. I then spent a half-hour joyously skittering around the room noiselessly, with a big grin on my face.

I have a legitimate reason for my extended browsing at Wolff's now, since they're paying for what I say about them. (I've got them in my power. Heh-heh.)

I'm trying to keep these columns short, but it's difficult, having so much to say. (Or having so little to say in so many words, if you must.)

This week's motto is an inspirational song: "Count Your Blessings Instead of Sheep, and You'll Fall Asleep a Lousy Shepherd."

Children's Play Performed By Drama Department

"The Indian Captive," one of three children's plays presented by the Allegheny Drama Deptrtment, will be given in the Meadville High School Auditorium this Saturday, December 12 at 2:00 p.m. The play is based on the historical records of a young girl who was captured by the Indians of western Pennsylvania in 1779. Starring in Saturday's performance are Jacky Jedinak as the old Senaca Queen and Allan Ihrig as Chief Cornplanter. Also appearing in the play are David Cook, David Graham, Priscilla Kerr and Linda Hollister.

Singers, Chapel Choir Plan Christmas Sing

Traditional carols from America, Germany, England, France, and Denmark will be featured by the Allegheny Singers and the Allegheny Chapel Choir in their 32nd annual Christmas Concert this Sunday, December 13, at 4:30 in the college's Ford Memorial Chapel.

In addition to their carols, the 60-voice Allegheny Singers directed by Morten J. Luvaas, will present two numbers by F. Melius Christiansen, pioneer of American a capella singing: "Hosanna", and "Praise to the Lord". Dr. Luvaas' "When Mary Walked Through Thorny Woods" and the familiar French carol "Angels We Have Heard on High" will also be sung by the Singers.

Drawing on England for their part of the program, W. A. Wright North will direct the Chapel Choir in "A Ceremony of Carols" by the contemporary English composer, Benjamin Britten. Scored for women's choir, soprano soloists and harp, Doris Test and Marion Hampton, Allegheny faculty members, and Mary Lee Bates, a senior at Oberlin Conservatory of Music, will be the assisting artists.

The traditional Christmas trees will again add to the beauty of the occasion, as will the Cwen Candlelight Procession. Reviving a custom of several years ago, the Christmas Gospel will be read by the Rev. Charles B. Ketcham, college chaplain.

There will be three performances: Sunday, Dec. 13, at 4:30 and at 7:30; and Monday, Dec. 14 at 8:15. Sunday afternoon is primarily for out of town patrons and townspeople; Sunday and Monday evening for student, through some exceptions to this may be made by arrangement with Dr. Luvaas or Mr. North. Tickets are $.75 and may be bought at the door. Students are admitted free on presentation of the ID card.

Foreign Carol Sing

On Tuesday, December 15, at 7:00 p.m., will be held the fourth annual International Christmas Carol Sing at Quigley Faculty Lounge. Groups from the German, French, Russian, and Spanish departments will sing carols from their respective lands, and the French students will entertain with a playlet called "The Bell", directed by Mohammed Benamar.

Some of the campus' foreign students will sing carols from their homelands. After the sing, the German group will continue to carol throughout the campus.

Songs will be distributed in written form for those wishing to take part in some singing. All students, regardless of ability to speak a foreign language, are welcome to attend the party. A good time with an international flavor is assured to everyone. Refreshments will be furnished by the faculty.

It Happened One Night

A week before parties and much to be done
To make things look festive was chore number one.

A meeting was called and time and a half
Was promised to all who worked on the staff.

Hot chocolate and donuts
were served at the scene
And the CU was covered with green(s).

Ellen Van Linten
and Sue Tigertt too
Were only a part of the hard working crew.

Well?

Penn State Takes First In Debate Toureny

The ninth annual Allegheny Debate Tournament was held at the College Saturday with 19 teams representing 12 colleges and universities from Pennsylvania and Ohio participating. The debate question was the current intercollegiate proposition, "Resolved: That Congress should have the power to reverse decisions of the Supreme Court."

Pennsylvania State University was adjudged first place winner after tying St. Vincent and Allegheny's "B" team. All three had 5 wins, 1 loss records.

In the morning two audience debates for freshman G-I classes were held. The first debate featured the Penn State affirmative and Allegheny negative and the second debate, the Penn State negative and the Allegheny affirmative.

A Shift of Opinion ballot was taken before and after each debate. The results were essentially the same in both debates. Prior to the debates, 253 ballots were marked. Of these, 16 persons were in favor of the resolution, 87 were undecided or neutral, and 50 were opposed. After hearing the debates, the ballots showed a decided shift, with 18 in favor, 17 neutral, and 218 opposed.

Debating for Allegheny against Penn State were Sam Morneweck, Herbert Dyer, James Toole, and Dean McFall. Scoring well for Allegheny in three afternoon rounds were David Laughery, Carl Bundy, Douglas Bauer, and Buck Hemphill

The tournament was held under the joint auspices of Philo-Franklin Debating Club and the Speech and Drama Department. Next week four of Allegheny's varsity debaters will take part in a two-day cross-examination tournament to be held at the University of Pittsburgh.

Also participating in Saturday's tournament were the University of Pittsburgh, Duquesne University, Mount Mercy, Grove City, Westminster, Western Reserve, Case Institute of Technology, Geneva College and Hiram.

Health Scholarships Offered to Students

The National Foundation has just announced that its annual Health Scholarships will again be available in 1960. Winners will receive $500 a year for a period of four years.

Applicants for scholarships in medical social work must be college sophomores, planning to enter their junior year in the fall of 1960 and planning to complete study for the master's degree in an accredited graduate school of social work that uses a medical faculty for field instruction placement.

Applicants for scholarships in medicine must be currently enrolled as undergraduates planning to enter and accepted for admission by an accredited school of medicine by April 1st for admission in the fall of 1960.

The purpose of the Health Scholarship program of the National Foundation is to aid young Americans who would choose careers in the severely understaffed health professions. These Health Scholarships are made possible by the American people through their contribution to the March of Dimes.

W. Peter Peterson, '59, now studying at the Harvard Medical School, is the first Allegheny recipient of a Health Scholarship. Bruce Bell, '59, and James Mellinger, '59, received honorable mention but were not awarded a fellowship.

Sophomores interested in medical social work and seniors now applying to medical school may inquire about the program and secure applications from Professor Philip M. Benjamin, Chairman of the Faculty Pre-Medical Advisory Committee.

Riley Graduates From OCS

Ens. George T. (Reb) Riley, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Riley of 321 S. Church Street, Woodstock, Va., was graduated November 20 from the Navy's Officer Candidate School in Newport, Rhode Island.

He is a graduate of Allegheny College.

He was one of 722 Officer Candidates, college graduates, and outstanding personnel from the fleet, to complete the 18 weeks of intensive training in the Naval Sciences.

Graduates of the School are qualified to meet not only the technical problems facing a junior officer in today's modern fleet, but also, the special leadership problems posed by our fleet's world-wide commitments.

By graduation every officer candidate has observed, and put into practice the essentials of leadership principles necessary to properly equip him to assume his new responsibilities as an officer.

The new officer heard as guest speaker for their graduation, Admiral Jerauld Wright, Supreme Allied Commander, Atlantic and Commander in Chief, U.S. Atlantic Fleet.

Pins and Sins

Four pinnings and one engagement since last we went to press! Certainly must be a lot of happy people on this campus — including yours truly.

Room 254 on second back of Brooks has had more than its share of pinning excitement lately. In less than two weeks both of its occupants were pinned: Betty Eakin receiving the Phi Delta Theta pin of Jack Thompson and Sandy Andrews, the Phi Gamma Delta pin of Denny Ehrenberger.

Two seems to be the magical number, for a second Phi Gam pin was also given. Elsa Held became the pin-mate of "Dutch" Linaberger, a member of the Class of 1959. In addition, Paul Telfer gave the pin of Sigma Alpha Epsilon to Adele Lidle.

The engagement of Judy Berg and Rod Grossman occured during the Thanksgiving vacation. Congratulations and best wishes to all.

Prediction of things to come — Room 254 will go as number one in the drawing — for rooms this spring. Need we say more?

If you haven't seen Joanie Savona around lately, don't worry — just wonder. It seems as though Joanie doesn't know how to whistle, and she is bound and determined to fill this void in her life. Since this requires extreme concentration, she practices in her closet. You would never know she was in there, however; it's so quiet!

If you are searching for the unusual in Christmas gifts, why not borrow the idea of Ellen McKee and give all your friends a knitted slide rule warmer? It certainly is unusual.

Did you know that the next Olympic Games are being held in Rome? Dick Butcher does. While announcing this to the A.S.G. Tuesday, Dick stated it incorrectly at first. Said he, "The Olympics are being held in Italy." He really meant Rome.

If you have noticed scratches on the bottom of your cafeteria tray lately, you can be sure they are the result of one of Allegheny's great winter pastimes — tray riding. It's recommended by everyone, except Miss Townsend.

Have a wonderful vacation — we'll see you next year (that is if the next issue is before January 11!)

Frosh-Held Sock Hop Is Turnabout Affair

Last Saturday evening the Freshman class sponsored a Sock Hop in the College Union. It was a "turn-about" dance with the girls asking the boys.

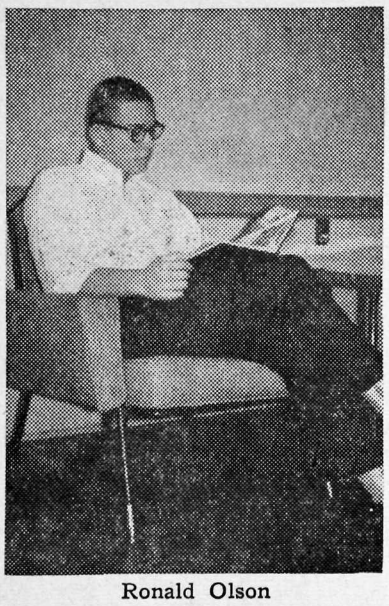

On the committee for this first freshman-sponsored activity were Chuck Moore and Stephie Ott, co-chairmen, Pete Gallick, Bruce Dietrich, Curt Fee, Bruce Webb, Del Fischer, Judy Keck, Joan DuMars, Ruth Leibrock, Judy Robinson, Margie Bush, and Jean Clarence.

Ernest Nagle Starts Naval Flight Training

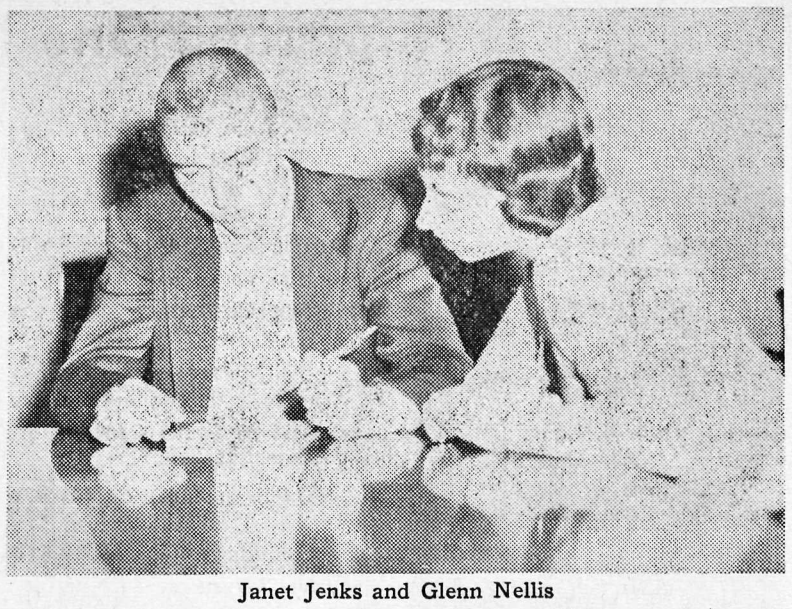

Recently Ernest W. Nagle, son of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas B. Nagle, Sr., of 234 East 16th Street, Erie, Pennsylvania, reported for active duty at the U.S. Naval Air Station, Pensacola, Florida, as an Aviation Officer Candidate. He will undergo pre-flight training for four months, and upon graduation, receive his commission as Ensign, U.S. Naval Reserve. The next fourteen months will be spent undergoing flight training and upon completion he will receive his Navy "Wings of Gold".

Aviation Officer Candidate Nagle graduated from Harborcreek High School, Erie, Pennsylvania, in 1954. He then entered Allegheny College, graduating in June 1959, with a B.S. degree.

Jenks, Nellis, Olson Picked For Washington Semester

by Lewis Fisher

Janet Jenks, Glenn Nellis, and Ronald Olson, all juniors, have been selected by a committee of Allegheny faculty members to attend the Washington Semester program at American University in Washington, D.C. They were chosen to work with source materials and government institutions in the nation's capitol by Dr. Paul Cares, committee chairman, Dr. Frederick Seely, Dr. Julian Ross, and Dr. Elvis Eckles, on the basis of grades, personality, interest in American government, and what they expect to get from the program.

Janet Jenks, a history major, is a graduate of Solon, Ohio, High School, where she was editor of the year book and a member of National Honor Society. She is a member of Alpha Gamma Delta, Orchesis, the Allegheny Ambassador Committee of ASG, Spanish Club, and played in the Sinfonietta for two years. While in Washington she plans to study the Health, Education, and Welfare Department.

Glenn Nellis, who is majoring in International Studies, graduated from Eden, New York High School, where he was president of the Student Council. He is a member of Phi Gamma Delta fraternity, the Allegheny Undergraduate Council, is Chairman of the Human Relations Committee of ASG, the Block A club, and is a student counselor at Allegheny House. He hopes to study the Organization of American States while in Washington.

Ronald Olson is a graduate of Jamestown, New York, High School, and is a pre-law major here. He is a member of the Debate Club, is in wrestling, and has participated in track. He plans to study the House Administration Committee during his stay in Washington.

They will all study at the School of Social Sciences and Public Affairs in American University, where they must take the Washington Semester course, write a paper on the phase of government activity which they will be studying, and take two or three electives if they choose. They will be given credit here for their work.

Allegheny College is one of the six schools which initiated the Washington Semester Program in 1947 (the others are American University, Hiram College, Wooster College, Oberlin College, and Westminster College of Missouri.) Seventy-four schools throughout the United States now participate in the program, which indicates the continuing interest which Americans have in their government..

Floyd Zulli Attacks Modern Literature, Paints Gloomy, Dirty-Shirt and Sex Scene

by Tony Arthur

Many current literary idols, including such men as William Faulkner, Ernest Hemingway, Tennessee Williams and Jack Kerouac toppled in the dust Thursday evening, December 12, under the bludgeoning attack of Dr. Floyd Zulli, visiting lecturer from New York University, as he spoke on "Literature and Values" at the Chapel.

Zulli attacked particularly the "beatnik" writers such as Kerouac and Allan Ginsberg as the "dirty undershirt school" of writing, calling it the "immature squeaking of stringers of words." Zulli said that this "muddy stream of mediocrity" that is being foisted upon the American public comes from the materialistic attitude of publishers who realize that "sex sells unusually well." It always has, said Zulli, but it never has been "offered in so many infinite varieties" as in our generation.

Using the recently published "classic", "Lady Chatterly's Lover," by D. H. Lawrence as an example, Zulli said part of the publicity for the book has been that it is a return to "Peyton Place, that miscarriage of art and taste." "Sons and Lovers" by Lawrence, a much better book, has never been heard of by many of the readers who devour the salaciousness of "Lady Chatterly's Lover" he asserted.

The current state of the theater, under the influence of Tennessee Williams and "his many cats flitting over tin roofs" (referred to the recent Broadway hit "Cat On a Hot Tin Roof") and "streetcars gone astray" (Streetcar Named Desire"), is poor, said Zulli. He said that critics of drama and literature also are not living up to their responsibility. When a critic reviews a play as "the best damn musical I've ever seen" Zulli said his reaction is to "damn and ignore" him.

Zulli said that today's literature is obsessed with portraying man's depravity and sordidness. He did not expect works of "moonlight and roses," said Zulli, and noted that artists whose works have become classics such as Hawthorne, Melville, Willa Cather, Dorstoyefsky Mark Twain, and others portrayed man's anxiety and degeneracy, as well as his "sublimity" and yet "did not offend the tenets of good taste."

There seems to be a trend back to good literature, said Zulli, but when asked from the audience if he thought there were any good novelists now, Zulli made a sweeping generalization and said that "he would ring the curtain down after 1930", lumped Nobel Prize winner William Faulkner with the other writers he attacked, and included Ernest Hemingway as not important. Zulli said that one has to look back to the classics for really good literature, with the exception of present-day writers such as Aldous Huxley, Jacques Barzum, and a couple of others.

Zulli, who gained fame as a TV personality on his "Sunrise Semester" series in New York City, was received with mixed reactions by the large audience. If his purpose, as some thought, was to create discussion, he certainly achieved it. The lecture was very entertaining but after it was over, it seemed that he took an extremely negative viewpoint, and was guilty of the same thing of which he accused the publishers; that is, of sacrificing art in his desire for the "big sell."

Carnegie Exhibition Open Free to Students

The Carnegie Institute, Department of Fine Arts, in Pittsburgh, has given permission for all students to be admitted free to all exhibitions. Prior to this time students were included along with the general public in the requirement of payment for admission. The only requirement will be that the student show his ID card to the ticket taker.

ASG Notes

ASG Tuesday was informed that our approximate bill for Thiel - Allegheny painting damages is $350. This represents about one-half the total bill. Ten Thiel students have admitted they did the paintings; not one of the Allegheny students involved has made himself known.

Discussion followed upon a method of paying the bill. The Council voted to assess each full-time undergraduate student a portion of the sum, to be about $.32 per student. The administration will place this amount upon each semester bill.

Appointment of several freshmen as non-voting members of ASG committees was approved. Sue Rhinesmith and Ginny Lee Loessle were added to the Assembly and Public Events Committee. Jean

Chapel Choir Sings For Thiel Students

The Allegheny Chapel Choir went on a Peace Mission to the Thiel College campus in Greenville last Sunday afternoon and evening.

They were the guests of the Thiel Choir at their annual Christmas Concert, and for supper before the Concert.

An impressive addition to the program was a panoramic backdrop, created by the Thiel Art Department, which gave the viewer the impression that he was looking over the city of Bethlehem. The really very beautiful singing of the Thiel Choir helped complete the illusion.

The success of the panoramic background was no surprise to the Allegheny visitors, who are not strangers to the expertness of Thiel brushwork.

The Allegheny Choir opened their part of the program with a selection, "Der Gulden Ton", by Hans Sachs, a devoted follower of Martin Luther. This is the same Hans Sachs chronicled by Richard Wagner in his opera, "Die Meistersinger con Nurnberg".

Continuing their tribute to the Lutheran College, the Allegheny Choir then sang J. S. Bach's "Come Holy Spirit, Come". Selections from Benjamin Britten's "A Ceremony of Carols", featuring Doris Test, soprano soloist, and Dorothy Jeanne Smith, pianist, concluded the Allegheny contribution to the program.

The Chapel Choir's selection were favorably received by the audience and by the Thiel Choir. In fact an aura of good feeling and good will permeated the afternoon and evening, no attempts being made by either side to embellish the other's property with artistic ornament, or, with scissors, to improve the design of each other's robes or stoles. And this in spite of the fact that one of Thiel's Travelling Painters (Thiel's miscreants have turned themselves in) is a member of the Thiel Choir.

The Tempest Offers Discount For Students

Shakespeare's The Tempest, the only play by the Bard that will be playing during the forthcoming Holiday season in Manhattan, is offering a special discount to students.

This production of the play won unanimous critical acclaim in Chicago in 1954 and in San Francisco in 1959. Rolf Forsberg, the director, has been credited by critics and educators as having conceived a production of The Tempest that for the first time in our generation brings out the dramatic values of this play as well as the literary nuances.

Although the play opens officially December 28th, students are invited to the preview performances of December 25th to 27th as well as the performances of the 29th and 30th of December. Also, all Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday evening and Sunday matinee performances, during January, will have seats available at a substantial discount. Students must call in advance and show their ID cards at the box office. The telephone number of the theatre is LE 5-5557.

The cast of the play is composed of the best available New York talent, and has already caught the eye of the New York columnists because of its potential strength.

Pittsburgh Alums Hold Annual Xmas Dance

The Allegheny Alumni Association of Pittsburgh once again cordially invites Allegheny students to attend its annual Christmas Dance to be held Saturday, December 26, at the University Club. Dancing will be from 9:00 to 1:00, with music by Hamilton Whitlinger, at $5.50 per couple.

The Association also announces the establishment of the Alumni Association of Pittsburgh Scholarship which will be awarded to a student from this area sometime next spring. It is its hope that the Annual Holiday Dance will support this $500 scholarship, $250 of which will be paid by the Association and a like amount by the College.

11 Returning Lettermen Provide Strength For Swimmers

This year Allegheny will be defending its President's Athletic Conference Swimming Championship, won last March in the conference meet in Cleveland. Last year the team chalked up a 9 win-1 loss record for a terrific season.

According to Coach Bill Hanson the early season outlook is good and the team should repeat as Conference Champions barring accident, illness, or scholastic difficulties. He believes that some of the non-conference teams will undoubtedly give Allegheny a great deal of trouble: Carnegie Tech, the only team to defeat Allegheny last year has another strong team. Grove City, the Western Pennsylvania Conference team this year bolstered by the addition of 12 freshman swimmers. Slippery Rock has also shown strength this year by winning the Grove City Relays last Saturday.

Tom Smith, from Kenmore, N.Y., was elected captain of this year's swimming team. Tom is a Pre-Med student and has been a letterman for the past three years. Tom will be swimming the distance events and relays this year.

The returning lettermen, last year's championship team, are: Bruce Carlile, butterfly and individual medly; Ed David, sprinter; Dennis Ehrenberger, diver; John Gillespie, backstroke; Paul Reslink, breaststroke; Charles Hultman, diver; Kirk Platt, backstroke; Don Riley, breaststroke; Tom Smith, distance; Earl Spiers, distance; Paul Telfer, sprinter.

Allegheny lost only one senior by graduation and will be adding the services of three freshmen starters. Eric Rumann will be competing in the sprints and relays. Ray Lewis and Jack Lloyd will take over the openings in the 220 and 440 events.

Allegheny Places 3 On All-PAC Football Team

Tackles Tomaszewski and Olderman and Spencer, a guard, were all named to the AllConference football team in the PAC. The team was picked by the coaches in the PAC.

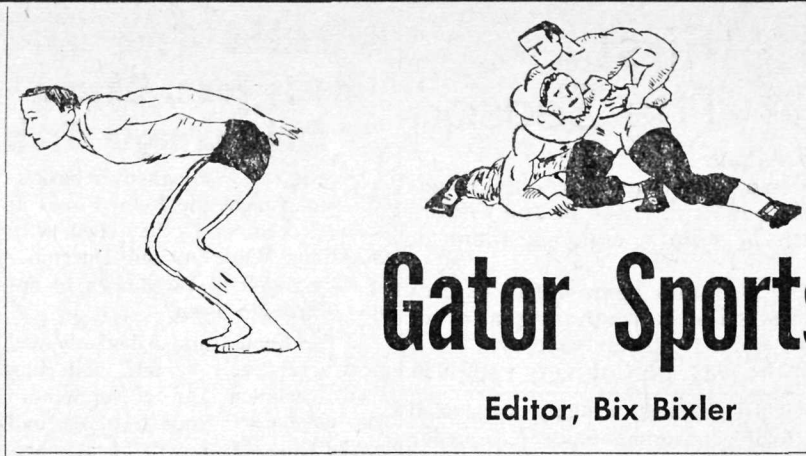

All three were involved in ties for their positions. Duane Spencer tied with Bill Mason of W&J and Barry Sarner of Wayne for the right guard position. Bruce Olderman and Ray Tomaszewski tied each other for the right tackle spot.

Dunn Repeats As All-Methodist Star

Dick Dunn, center and co-captain on this year's football squad, was named for the second year in a row to the All-Methodist College football team. Dunn is one of three repeaters. This All-Star team is picked by Fred Russell, sports editor for the Nashville Banner, from over 60 Methodist-related colleges.

Dunn is a senior at Allegheny, where he also wrestles.

Gator Sports

Editor, Bix Bixler

Sykes Reed, Reese Flannery, Cliff Stanburg, Vic Kress, Glen Beckert, and Jim Johnston, all lettermen form the crux of Coach Garbark's '59-'60 basketball squad.

Basketballers Seek Improvement Over Last Season's 5-13 Record

Coach Bob Garbark has six returning lettermen to build Allegheny's basketball hopes around this '59-'60 season. Johnston, Stranburg, Reed, Beckert, Flannery and Kress all lettered in last year's 5-13 season.

Jimmy Johnston, last year's PAC scoring champ, who scored 410 points in 18 games and set an Allegheny individual scoring record of 53 points against Edinboro, will be playing his final season of varsity ball for the Gators. Allegheny's offensive is built around Johnston's driving play.

The other lettermen scored from 75 to 100 points apiece. Kress and Reed, both seniors, and Flannery, a sophomore, return to give the team the needed rebounding strength.

Beckert and Stranburg provided Johnston with speedy running mates in the back-court and both are capable scorers.

Rounding out the square are sophomores Duncan Parkinson, Ed Ravenscroft and Dave Burkett and freshmen Jack Osman, Hank Kachelriess and Glen Golenberg.

Garbark feels that this squad is much more balanced and has more depth than any Gator team in the recent past.

So far this season Allegheny has lost to a strong University of Rochester team 93 to 61 and beaten PAC team Thiel 76-70. Gator scoring has been well dispersed among the six lettermen these two games.

The last three games of last year's 5-13 season were all won by Allegheny by a total of 5 points.

Allegheny has fifteen games remaining on its schedule and home fans get a chance to look over this year's squad tonight at Mead Fieldhouse against Fenn.

Campus Clashes

The intramural volleyball season ended with the Phi Psis and Phi Delts finishing one, two. This leaves the total standings in the intramural race as close as ever.

The final volleyball standings:

|---|---|
| Phi Psi | 7-0 |
| Phi Delt | 6-1 |
| Phi Gam | 5-2 |
| Delt | 4-3 |
| Independent | 2-5 |
| Theta Chi | 2-5 |
| SAE | 1-5 |
| Chi Rho | 0-6 |

4 Soccermen Named To All PAC Team

Allegheny placed four of its soccer players on the All-Star PAC soccer team this year after winning the regular season PAC trophy.

Two of its members, Reese Flannery, goalie, and Captain Dave Macky, fullback, were second year repeaters.

Roger Smith and Vince Valenti, both wingmen, received their honor for the first time.

Case placed four men on the All-Star squad and Western Reserve three.

Hoopsters Take First Victory Of The Season

by Tony Arthur

Jim Johnston led Allegheny to a 76-70 win over Thiel Wednesday night at Greenville. Also instrumental in the Gators victory were Glen Beckert, with 17 points, eight of them in the crucial last quarter.

Thiel's Roger Decort scored 27 points against the Gators and, along with Bradley Walters' slick ball-handling and rebounding, made Allegheny work hard for their victory.

The game was very close all the way, getting very rough in the last half when the Gators stepped up even more the intensity of their play in an effort, a successful one, to widen the gap. Strong rebounding by Sykes Reed all through the match, and especially in the last period, along with the agressive driving of Johnston, helped to set Beckert up for the four decisive tallys.

Tension was high as only two minutes remained in the game and Allegheny had only a two point lead, 70-68. Just about every man on the team had more than their fair share of time on the floor as scuffles for control of the ball led to many foul calls. Even the customary cries of "ya blind bums" and more derogatory epithets were more vehement than usual, and Thiel fans showed a notable lack of sportsmanship in harassing Allegheny players as they tried their foul shots with cat-calls and boos.

The teams were evenly matched, both strong on defense. Reed and Johnston intercepted a number of Thiel passes, particularly in the first quarter, and Thiel's Walters seemed to be always getting in Allegheny's way. His Globe-Trotter tactics of palming the ball and behind-the-back passes worked very well.

In the first quarter Decort scored 10 points for Thiel, most of them difficult ones from the side, and Thiel finished strongly with Neil Walker scoring twice on outside shots. Most of Thiel's scoring was from the outside due to Allegheny's tight defense. Johnston's hard driving cut through Thiel's defense for six points, and Vic Kress came through for two more buckets. The quarter ended at a tie score, 21-21.

In the second period Johnston was effectively bottled up, and Allegheny was outscored 19 to 16, but in the third quarter Reed started out with two quick goals and Johnston followed with two more. In the last part of the quarter the Gators had the same trouble that plagued Thiel in the first and couldn't seem to hold on to the ball, but they gained a lot of points on fouls. Their total of 24 out of 33 attempts during the game was a big point in their victory, with Johnston making 11 of 12.

Basketball Team Meets Fenn, Oberlin And Carnegie Tech

December 11 Allegheny's basketball squad meet the Fenn Foxes at home, December 15 they clash with Oberlin at Oberlin, and December 18 they travel to Pittsburgh to oppose Carnegie Tech.

In the Fenn team, Allegheny will meet a relatively "green" ball club. Two freshmen and a sophomore who have never played college ball before this season will be at starting positions. The freshmen are 6'3" Gary Bohn and 5'1" Jerry Lenk. The sophomore is 6'2" Ojars Mantewieks.

Returning lettermen Dick Sutch 6'1" forward and Tony Fedor 6' guard, round out coach Rodriguez's first line.

In the words of Carnegie Tech coach Mel Cratsley, "This team is as good a shooting team as I have ever coached and possibly as good as Tech has ever had."

Tech's starting lineup is composed of guards Bill Soffa and Tom Huff, forwards, 6'2" Mike Fynn and 6'3" Staniskalka and center Anda Komen who is 6'4".

These men comprise the crux of a team that beat Indiana State Teachers' College 104-77. Indiana was one of the top small college teams in the last year.

This team has plenty of depth with several men on the bench over 6'2".

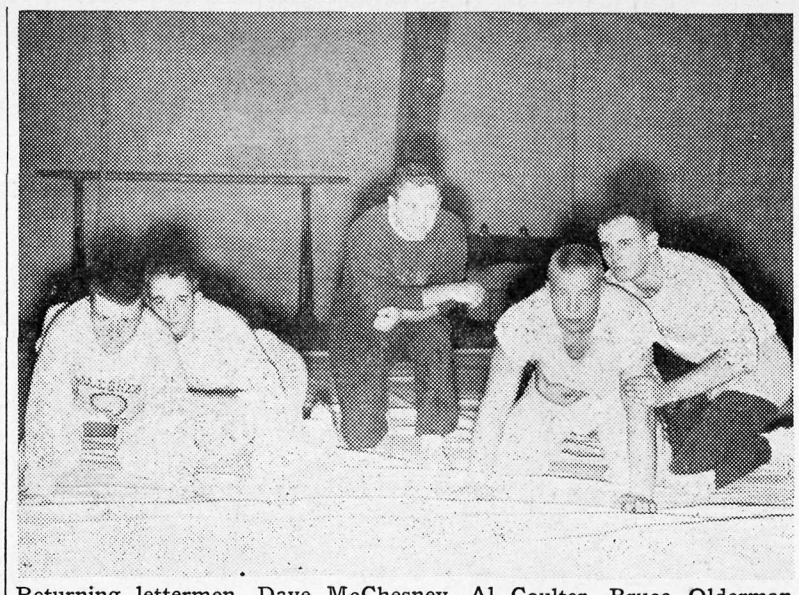

Carnegie Tech will be about the toughest of Allegheny's foes this season.

Olderman Named To All District Team

Allegheny's right tackle, Bruce Olderman, was named lineman-of-the-year in the tri-state area, and awarded a berth on the All-District football team by the Pittsburgh Press.

The All-Star team was selected by the small college coaches in the tri-state area. Olderman was the only district All-Star to receive a vote from each opponent's coach. This resulted in his lineman-of-the-year honor.

The 220 pound Olderman is a junion at Allegheny and wrestles in the Heavyweight division for Allegheny's wrestling team.

Returning lettermen, Dave McChesney, Al Coulter, Bruce Olderman, and Dick Dunn go thru paces as coach Chuckhan looks on.

Wrestlers Appear Headed For Second PAC Trophy

by Bob Adams

The Allegheny wrestling team successfully began the new season with a 24-10 win over the University of Rochester on Saturday and a 21-13 PAC victory over Thiel on Wednesday.

The Gator's four returning lettermen were victorious in the Rochester match at Allegheny won six out of eight bouts. Heavy-weight Bruce Olderman pinned Frank Cote of Rochester at 4:58 in the second period, and 123-pounder Al Coulter pinned Tom Coleman in 5:39 of the second period. Dick Dunn, wrestling this year at 177, easily defeated Carl Primevera 9-1 and Dave McChesney, at 130, outpointed Ken McNair 8-1. Two freshmen won their initial contests with Fred Cartwell taking a 7-0 decision in the 137-lb. class and John Bernhart, at 147, pinning Rochester's Noah Klien later in the third period.

Four Gator wrestlers continued undefeated as Allegheny won five out of eight matches in defeating the Thiel Tomcats 21-13 in a PAC contest. Freshmen John Bernhart and Ernie Gaiser, and team captain Dick Dunn all won by pins with Dave McChesney and PAC champion Bruce Olderman winning close decisions.

Allegheny will be defending its team championship in the President's Athletic Conference this year, with four of last year's eight regulars back. Two of them, Dick Dunn, 167 lbs., and Bruce Olderman, heavyweight, are PAC titleholders in those divisions. Both won football honors this year, Dunn an All-Methodist center, and Olderman an All-PAC tackle. Dave McChesney, PAC finalist last season, will be going at 130 this year and Al Coulter, last year's 130-pounder, will be at 123. Lost from last year at PAC titleholder Dave Sawhill, 177 lbs., Bill Blair, 157 lbs., and Bob Lamoree, 123 lbs. finalist., all by graduation. Allegheny's only setback last year in ten regular season matches, was a close 16-14 loss to Alfred. The Gators finished with a 9-1 record for the season plus the PAC team championship and individual titles in the 157, 167, 177, and heavyweight classes.

Rochester Blasts Gators 93-61

by Bix Bixler

Allegheny's basketball team got off to a slaw start this '59?'60 season with a 93 to 61 loss to the University of Rochester. A tight defense and strong rebounding held the Gators to a mere 10 points in the first half. Allegheny shot only 13% this first half, but came on strong in the late stages of the game to gain some face.

Four Gators hit double figures but high scoring Jim Johnston was held to 10 points. Last year Jimmy scored 410 points in 18 games for a 22.4 point average. Cliff Stanburg hit for 14 points. Cliff was second high scorer last year with 100 points. Glen Beckert dropped in 12 points and Vic Kress hit for 10.

ASG

Clarins will join the Academic Committee, Lois Fleischer, a sophomore, will also work with this group. Activities Committee will have Sandy Murray, Kim Brooks, Kathy Brown and Alan Wilsey as non-voters.

Glenn Nellis reported that Bloodmobile collected 74 pints last Friday. Human Relations Committee will submit a report to ASG evaluating the Bloodmobile program.

Dick Butcher, Student Travel Director, told the Council of travel opportunities for students. Some of the tours he listed are NSA-sponsored, and others are run by various organizations. Costs ran from $600 to $2,400. Complete information is available on tours to Europe, South America, Africa, Bermuda, and most other countries, in the ASG office.

Applications are available for the Allegheny Ambassador Program. They may be picked up at Brooks desk. Final date to turn in the applications is January 8; a $.50 fee for processing must accompany each application.

Brief reports from representatives on opinions of the possible changes in library hours was heard. Generally, it is felt that the library might open Sunday evening rather than Friday. Also, the problem of adequate study areas was discussed.

New business consisted of a discussion of present and possible ways to improve faculty-student relations. Various events were suggested: teas, dinners or coffee hours for just a few professors at a time; faculty-student activities at Bousson; an "intramural" program in sports and games; students going to faculty homes for seminars or social activities. Human Relations Committee will be considering this problem.

Announcements included a listing of ticket-sellers for the Christmas Dance. Co-chairmen of the event are Emily Eckman and Tom Paterson.

Glenn Nellis reminded the Council of Human Relations Committee's Panel on December 16 in Quigley at 7:30. Bill Hrach, Sally Simons, Mike Bavar, and Doris Wall will constructively discuss discrimination on campus. Moderator of the panel will be Dean Ross or Robin Biggs.

Human Relations Committee Asks:

To the Editor:

What's "gotten into" this Allegheny institution that's causing Negroes to get out? Why the noticeable decrease in Negro enrollment this year from that of last and the year before? The following is taken from a letter written by a member of the National Scholarship Service and Fund for Negro Students to Dave McKay of September 16, 1959:

"We discussed NSSFNS, Negro students and Allegheny and forthwith are the results of the conversation . . . So our staff has felt that the Negro students sometimes have a problem of adjustment at Allegheny. Is it true that the fraternities and sororities tend to control the social activities and even the extracurricular activities? and is it true that the Negro students feel themselves limited to a strictly academic career? These are the type of questions which have been raised by our staff by their visits and talks with some of our referrals."

In talking to Negros who have come to Allegheny, we found that they would not recommend another Negro student to come here nor would they apply here again themselves. The admissions office and other people in responsible positions say that, if asked frankly, they would not encourage a Negro student to apply to Allegheny. The Negro scholarship association takes a similar view of our campus.

These people have made this decision because they feel a Negro student would not be really happy here, or have the opportunity to receive a well rounded experience at college. On part, this is a self perpetuating problem; i.e. until we encourage more Negroes to come to Allegheny, the few that do come will have a limited social life. So wouldn't the solution be simply an all out campaign by the administration and student body to attract more Negro students? Apparently not. The fact that this easy formula has not already been applied shows that the problem has its roots far deeper in the social structure of Allegheny.

This problem suggests that the campus should carefully consider two questions: 1. Do you, Allegheny student body, feel a responsibility for working towards better human relations on this campus and, if so, 2. What constructive steps can be taken?

We feel that Negro representation is desirable and beneficial i.e. diversity in student enrollment is of primary significance to one's college education.

The time to act is now . . . in the near future we may be hosts to a "gungho stampede" of our southern counterparts of "white" Allegheny.

Applicants For Beaty Fellowship Meet Dec. 15

A meeting of all Seniors, class of 1960, interested in applying for the Milton Jackson Beaty Memorial Fellowship for graduate work in International Relations is called for 4:00 p.m. Tuesday, December 15, in the Faculty Lounge, Quigley.

The Beaty Memorial Fellowship is administered by the International Studies Committee of Allegheny College. The award of $1,000 is made annually, contingent upon the quality of the applicants, for one year of graduate study abroad or in the United States. Qualified applications for study abroad are given priority over those for study in American graduate schools.

Requirements include a bachelor's degree from Allegheny, to be granted in June of the year that the award is made; citizen of the United States; high scholastic standing; acquaintance with the language native to the area in which the course of study will take place; and sufficient course work at Allegheny to provide basic background and understanding of the area where the applicant expects to study.

Applications must be filed in duplicate with Dr. Wayne R. Merrick by January 8, 1960 in order to be considered for the school year 1960-61. Interviews will take place between January 11 and 16. Awards will be announced on Monday, February 1. Application forms and additional information on the Fellowships may be secured from Dr. Merrick's office, Quigley 113. Other committee members who may be contacted for information are Dean Julian Ross, Dr. Paul Cares, and Dr. Blair Hanson.

Last year the award was given to Suzanne Treadwell, who is now doing graduate work in Russian studies at Maxwell Graduate School of Citizenship and Public Affairs, Syracuse University. She is also a Senior Research Assistant.

In 1957-58 the recipients of the award were Csaba Dosa, who attended the University of Munich, Germany; Arthur Rosenblum, who went to the Columbia University Graduate School for International Relations; and Jackson Gidden, a graduate student at Fletcher School of International Law and Diplomacy.

It's been said that the atomic submarine "Nautilus" stays submerged so long that it only surfaces to let the crew re-enlist.

Perhaps for this reason, the Navy has taken valuable space aboard the "Nautilus" for the only soft-drink vending machine in the entire submarine fleet.

Naturally (or you wouldn't hear about it from us) it's a Coca-Cola machine. And not unexpectedly, re-enlistments are quite respectable.

Rugged lot, those submariners. Great drink, Coke!

Former Allegheny College grapler, Robert Trimble, has begun directing a wrestling class at Meadville YMCA. The class is limited to boys from 9 to 14 years of age. Trimble feels that the valuable experience he gained in the '56-'57 season is enough "to acquaint the boys with the basic take-downs and pinning holds."

Allegheny College Union To Hold Annual Christmas Party Dec. 17

To: The Allegheny College Community
From: The Allegheny College Union
Subject: An Invitation

Once again the College Union is inviting all people on Allegheny's campus to a Christmas Openhouse. The party will be held from 8:00 to 11:30, the evening of the 17th in Cochran Hall. Everyone connected with Allegheny — be he (or she) cook, student, professor or dean — is cordially invited to attend for all or part of the evening.

The Union will be decorated for Christmas; there will be a band for dancing; entertainment for non-dancers and story-telling for children. Refreshments will be plentiful and served without charge. There will be caroling and, of course, Santa will be attending to lend a hand and provide a Christmas atmosphere. We may even get him to provide snow for the occasion!

According to present plans, the evening will be filled with fun and entertainment for everyone. We sincerely hope that you will want to join the rest of the college and their families, dates and guests at the College Union on December 17. We are looking forward to sharing our Christmas celebration with you.

Crawford Attends MSACROA Convention

"Who Should Pay the Tuition Bill?" was the address given by Arthur Adams, President of the American Council of Education, at the 1959 MSACROA convention.

MSACROA, the Middle States Association of Collegiate Registrars and Officers of Admission, held its annual meeting on November 27-28 at Atlantic City in conjunction with the convention of the Middle States Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools.

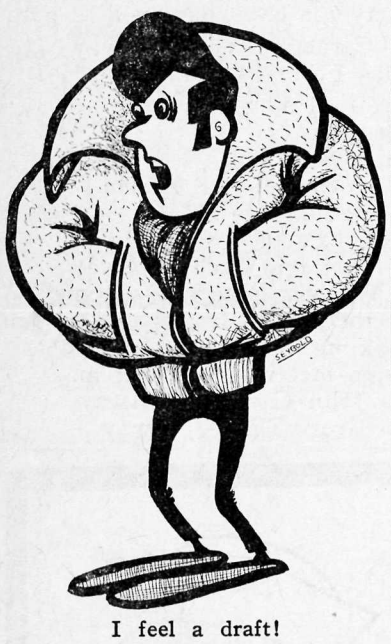

Among those attending this meeting of admissions officers was Calvin L. Crawford from Allegheny College.

Other sessions of the 500-member registrars group were devoted to Senior-Junior College relations and college admission procedures.
