Dear Mr. Sale:

You understood, did you not, why I was obliged to turn your telegram over to Mr. Gumm? We have had such a long and pleasant arrangement with the Ever Ready Hour for its annual broadcasting of "He Knew Lincoln," and as I know that they feel that they have an exclusive right to it, at least, the period when Lincoln's birthday celebrations are on - I felt that whatever was done should be with their understanding. As Mr. Gumm has always carried on the associations with them, I asked him to see what he could do and he tells me he has wired you that they have no objection. Of course, I am glad of this. You know that I always want to turn over anything in regard to that interests you.

I hope you are enjoying your broadcasting work. I am going to try to listen in someday soon. With all good wishes

Very sincerely yours

My regards

Mr. Charles Sale
