Radio Station Granted $6,000; AUC Gives Unanimous Approval

By a unanimous vote of 28-0, Tuesday evening, AUC granted the Allegheny Radio Committee $6,000 to make the proposed radio station a reality. The proposal must be given a second affirmative vote at the next AUC meeting. Also, two amendments were proposed for referendum at next week's elections.

The motion for the budget request, made by Tom Clark, Vice President of Educational Affairs, read as follows:

"I move that the Allegheny Undergraduate Council authorize the expenditure of $6,000 from the surplus fund for the purpose of establishing an F.M. radio station using a 50 watt transmitter at Allegheny College. This motion presupposes and includes the following:

1. "That the Allegheny Radio Station be within the jurisdiction of the Vice President of Educational Affairs for budget-making purposes.
2. "That the Board of Directors of the Allegheny Radio Station be composed of students, who shall be responsive to the advice and suggestions of the Faculty Advisory Board.
3. "That the Allegheny Radio Station be represented on the Publications Board, and thus entitled to all of the privileges of membership, and subject to the procedures which govern other publications.
4. "That the persons responsible for the purchase of the necessary broadcasting equipment take advantage of every opportunity which may result in the acquisition of said equipment at a cost lower than anticipated.
5. "That the Allegheny Radio Station broadcast a variety of high quality programs."

A second major question considered by the council was the establishment of a Cultural Affairs Committee, under the Vice President of Educational Affairs. Proposed by Jerry Evans, this committee would include such programs as the present foreign films series, trips to nearby cities for cultural events and the coordination of cultural relations with other colleges. Depending upon the budget appropriation granted by the next ASG administration, the committee would subsidize transportation to cultural events.

Evans stated that Mr. Robert Cares has assured the committee of the CU's support and the use of its facilities. Mr. John Robinson of the Language Department has agreed to serve as faculty advisor of the committee.

Because the establishment of the committee requires a constitutional amendment, AUC voted unanimously to submit the question to a referendum at the ASG elections March 19 and 20.

A second amendment to the constitution, transferring the Human Relations Committee from the jurisdiction of the Vice President of Educational Affairs to that of the Vice President of National and International Affairs also submitted to a referendum.

ASG President Dean McFall stated that the transfer will equalize the responsibilities of the three vice-presidents and make committee administration more efficient. Objections to the transfer were based on the argument that the activities of the Human Relations Committee in the past have been more functionally oriented to Student Affairs

Schwartz, Momeyer Indicted For Sit-In Demonstrations

Indicted for participation in a restaurant "sit in" on February 10 in Nashville, Tennessee, were Alleghenians Pete Schwartz and Rick Momeyer and three Fisk Students. According to a Nashville newspaper, this is the first time such an indictment has been made.

Those indicted are to be tried for attempting to eat in a segregated restaurant, Cross Keep, on February 10. They are accused of violating three laws: conspiring in restraint of trade, inciting a disturbance in a restaurant or hotel, and denying an owner of a business the right to choose his own business.

Luvaas To Give ASG Lecture

Dr. Luvaas has spent the last two summers studying with Liddell Hart, a well known British historian and military theorist and who along with General Fuller conceived the idea of the Blitzkreig which Hitler developed in World War II.

"Three Careers of Liddell Hart" is the title of a chapter of Dr. Luvaas' upcoming book entitled, "Mightier Than the Sword. Dr. Luvaas has been doing research on 11 military writers, their ideas, and impact on actual warfare for his book.

Dr. Luvaas will receive a stipend of $200 to further his investigation of military strategy in the British system.

The ASG Faculty Fellowship was established last year by ASG to recognize, honor and encourage research and creative efforts on the part of the Allegheny faculty. In addition to a public lecture, the recipients of the Fellowship are encouraged to participate in coffee hours and other discussions.

CREATIVE LEADERSHIP

It is unnecessary to dwell further upon the fact that voters in Monday's and Tuesday's ASG elections have an important responsibility in selecting members of the Executive Committee for the coming year. It is imperative, however, that the caliber of our leadership be defined, not merely in terms of the president, but of the entire Executive Committee.

There is little doubt that the leaders of our student government should be aware and considerate of the desires of the people whom they represent. Coupled with this responsibility, however, is the vital need for them to use initiative and creativity in performing the role of intelligent and individualistic leaders.

If the Executive Committee merely echoes the wishes of the College Community, and acts upon these wishes, they are resorting to passive leadership which borders on followership. Obviously, they should consider the demands of students and faculty and act upon them when they see fit, but their greatest challenge lies in the use of imagination, creativity, and discretion, to the end that Allegheny College is served by its student government as never before.

We conclude that all voters must keep these ideas in mind as they go to the polls on Monday and Tuesday, and that to gain the type of leadership described above, everyone must vote, and vote intelligently.

SUPPORT REFERENDUMS

Two important amendments to the Constitution of the Allegheny Student Government will be brought before the student body as referendum issues in the ASG elections next Monday and Tuesday. The amendments: (1) to transfer the Human Relations Committee from the jurisdiction of the Vice-president of Educational Affairs to that of the Vice-president of National and International Affairs; and (2) to create a Cultural Affairs Committee under the purview of the Vice-president of Educational Affairs; were placed on the ballot by the necessary two-thirds vote of the Allegheny Undergraduate Council at its Tuesday night meeting.

The Executive Committee of ASG gave two reasons for the transfer of the Human Relations Committee to the area of National and International Affairs. The first dealing with the distribution of responsibility equitably among the three vice-presidents of ASG. In recent years the responsibilities of the Vice-president of Educational Affairs have grown while the areas under the Vive-president of National and International Affairs have dwindled and, for efficiency's sake, the responsibilities must be equalized. Secondly, a strong argument can be made for the functional aspect of the committee as stated in the Constitution of ASG: "In general terms, the purpose of the Human Relations Committee is to improve intergroup relations in the campus community and between the campus community and the outside communit.

There is a definite cultural void at Allegheny College. The proposed Cultural Affairs Committee would continue the renewed interest shown by a group of about 30 students who have traveled to Pittsburgh and Cleveland to see West Side Story and to hear the Berlin Philharmonic Orchestra. The need for a student-run Cultural Affairs Committee should be evident.

THE CAMPUS feels that these two amendments are essential to the continued growth of the Allegheny Community and we urge that they be ratified by the student body at the elections.

ASG Gandidates State Positions

For President

To the Student Body:

I would like to state briefly the reason for my candidacy for ASG President: Each candidate must have shown both his ablilty and his willingness to work; I believe that as a former class president, a student counselor, a two-year member of the AUC and several of its committees, and a member of the present Honor Committee I am qualified candidate.

Limited space precludes mentioning specific programs, the actualization of which is often limited by circumstances, so the basic attitudes of a candidate assume more importance and must suffice.

For ASG to continue receiving the college community's respect it must not merely reflect opinion. Allegheny's embarkation upon a three-term academic program increases the demands and opportunity for action. I would hope to give the Allegheny Student Government the competent leadership it must have in making the innovations necessary for the creative advancement of the entire college community.

Respectfully,
Bruce Africa

To the Student Body:

I have been asked to briefly state the aims or goals I would set for ASG if I were to be elected to the office of President in the forthcoming students elections. Concerning this I will make no promises, for such promises require student interest and cooperation to materialize. This ASG obviously lacks. I will promise, however, to channel a great deal of effort into showing students how ASG can facilitate their intereses and wants.

My next strongest interest is in the realistic allocation of the student's money, ie, to distribute the activity fee to areas where the greater student interest lies. Automatically following would be a close examination of the Literary Magazine the Foreign Ambassador Program, and the Assembly and Public Events. Lastly, I would resume my interest to push for a better social program, including procurement of badly needed funds, and possibly the establishment of a concert committee.

Ultimately, with work in the areas I have mentioned, I would endeavor to lead the student community out of the intellectual and apathetic smog under which it presently lives.

Respectfully,
Curt Fee

For Vice-president of Student Affairs

To the Student Body:

One of the most important jobs of the Vice President of Student Affairs in the coming year will be to effectively co-ordinate the social calendar with the new academic program. The Vice President must also provide the campus with a diversified and interesting social life; a social life which will receive more support from the students.

I feel that this can be accomplished by: first, utilizing the facilities of the College Union to the fullest extent, both culturally and socially; second, bringing more big-name musicians to the campus; third, improving the publicity and quality of college dances, and finally, by working toward a more active and interested student body.

In the two years I have been at Allegheny I have watched the college improve in many areas and I would consider it my job to see that the area of student affairs does not lag behind.

Respeftcully,
John Crill

Quality has everything in its favor including the price.

You'll never be popular if you spend all your time taking advantage of your right of free speech.

To the Student Body:

The ASG is a very powerful and representative body. For example, the decision to change the management of the Grill was made in ASG and the fate of the ARC is now in the hands of ASG. In view of such strength, it is important that the proper people are chosen to head this organization.

In this next year the Vice President of Student Affairs should concern himself with the job of improving ASG dances. There are two ways to accomplish this: 1. a sub-committee composed of representatives of the social groups to set the theme of the dances and work with the dance committee; 2. he should actively fight for more funds from the administration for such social events.

Also I feel quite strongly that the petty rivalry between social groups could be lessened by joint sponsored parties at the CU, for the college.

These are but two of the areas which I feel badly need attention. Here is where I would start work immediately.

Respectfully,
Willard M. Cutler, Jr.

For Vice-president of National, International Affairs

To the Student Body:

National and International affairs is unquestionably the least specific Vice Presidency in the Allegheny Student Government with few concrete programs—Foreign Students, Fund Drive, Ambassador Program—under it. I feel that the office's ultimate value rests beyond these several incorporated duties in the creative area of national and international events. But, as yet, these areas have not been utilized appreciably.

Student apathy and a lack of a definite program in these areas have made this Vice Presidency an insufficient contributor to student information. I think we are now at the point where inroads have been made into this problem of vagueness and intangibility and that the groundwork has been laid for substantial advancement.

But in order to avoid unsettling the present progress and to perpetuate our present growth I ask for the opportunity to serve once again in this office.

Respectfully,
Ben Andrews

To the Student Body:

In such a limited space one cannot express fully the duties and obligations of the office of Vice President of International and National Affairs, and the extent to which I believe that I possess the capability to fulfill this position. The sources of wealth inherent in this post were scarcely developed this past semester. This office's main function is to coordinate and head the following committees: foreign student, Allegheny Ambassador Program, National Affairs and International Affairs.

I was chairman of the National Affairs committee. I would like to invite everyone to come to hear the speeches this Wednesday night and /or feel free to ask me questions concerning my views on the areas within the office. I would like to thank all those people who gave me the opportunity to win by signing my petition, and if elected I shall return the favor and uphold their trust.

Respectfully,
Mike Staren

For Vice-president of Educational Affairs

To the Student Body:

I am a candidate for the office of vice-president of educational affairs and would like to state my reasons for seeking this office.

In regard to the mechanics of the office, I have served as a member of the Honor Committee and as a freshman seminar leader. This has enabled me to see where these programs may be improved.

Next year, with the institution of the three-term program, Allegheny is entering a new era in its history. With this change there will doubtless arise problems, both foreseen and unforeseen. I believe that I have the ability to cope with those arising in the field of educational affairs and to aid ASG through this period of transition.

ASG has a great deal of responsibility for the effective functioning of student life at Allegheny. I believe that I can serve well to maintain its effectiveness.

Respectfully,
Powell Arms

To the Student Body:

The fostering of a good academic atmosphere and the improvement of educational opportunities is the main purpose of the Vice President of Educational Affairs. I feel that the improvement of existing educational facilities such as publications, lectures, public events, etc., will increase Allegheny's ability to develop the individual.

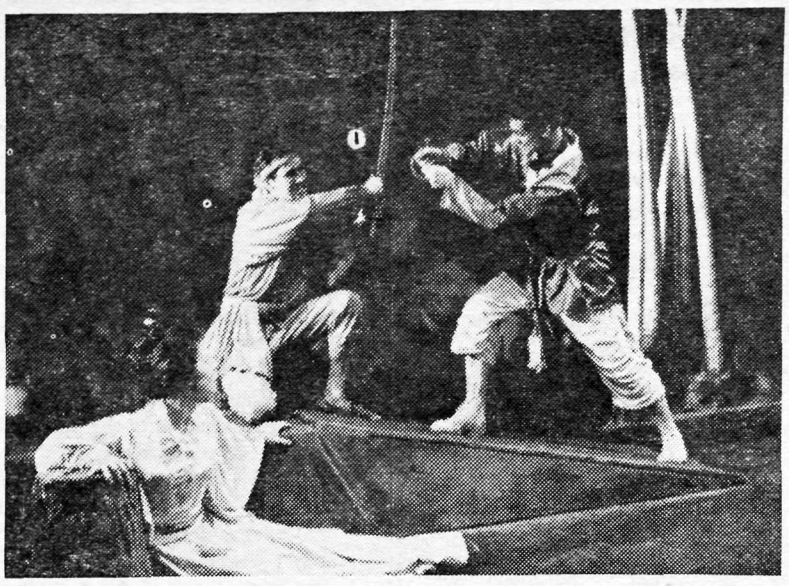

With the new three term program next year, this office will be very important. Being on AUC and having worked on the Academic Committee for two years, I know that many problems will have to be ironed out by the administration with the Academic Committee's help. As Vice President of Educational Affairs, my prime objective would be to work closely with the Administration and the Academic Committee in solving the many problems which will arise. In the area of public events, I would like to explore the possibility of improving the quality of our lectures by cooperating with nearby schools in obtaining speakers.

Respectfully,
Dave Graham

Scene from Playshop production "Rashomon"

Rape, Murder In Ancient Japan Come To Allegheny Playshop

by John Peck

Those of you who have not yet seen Rashomon at the playhouse have waiting for you an interesting and lively evening of entertainment. Within the compass of an hour and a half the play presents an intriguing commentary on that question once posed so contemptuously by a Roman procurator—"What is truth?"—and does so with the fascination of that story type commonly associated with Perry Mason. A rape and murder in ancient Japan—or at least an alleged murder—provide the nucleus of action around which the commentary revolves. Various and conflicting accounts of this event are presented alternately through the eyes of each of the principals involved—the attacking bandit and the accosted Samuri warrior and his wife—and finally by another fourth party. Each author of a flash-back-version has a motive for recounting the story as he does, and the discovery of these motives, not concluded until the denoument, provides the play with much of its interest.

The rest of the interest springs out of the humor inevitably provoked by the incongruities of the separate accounts. The first flash-back, for instance, includes an energetic and earnest exchange of sword-play—of the two-handed, overhand variety—and is followed in the final flashback by still another duel of blades, this time conducted in a somewhat different spirit, and comparable to but far surpassing any performance by the Mr. Tojos of the TV wrestling circuit. This last scene is worth taking in for its own sake. A good bit of humor is also provided by William Seybold, who as a wig-maker, questions a Buddhist priest (Phil Shafer) and a wood-cutter (Chris Brown) about the crime; it is the conversation of these three at the Rashomon Gate that leads into the various desparate accounts of the crime.

The best performances are turned in by Seybold as the wigmaker and Tom Behrens as the bandit Tajamaro. Behrens is quite convincing as the villain of all four versions of the story, and handles his sword quite skillfully. Pat Locke, as the spouse of the Samurai warrior (Dale Arnink), similarly brings the different wives of the four separate accounts into effective contrast. The casting of Phil Shafer was felicitous, for the quality of Shafer's voice contrasts nicely with those of Brown and Seybold to set off the priest's elevated calling.

The lighting, crucial because it changes the scenes as well as helps in their setting, is very well handled, as are the other stage effects; the physical production of this play, as with the previous Adding Machine, is very fine.

Two performances remain. If you would like to see one possible answer to Pilate's question of 2000 years ago, or if you enjoy the unraveling of incongruities or if you would like merely to see the sparks fly from crossed steel—Rashomon and Mr. Walton's players can satisfy you in full measure.

Alumnus Studies In Honululu

HONOLULU—Joseph S. Roseman, '61, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph S. Roseman, Sr., of Johnstown, Pennsylvania, who was awarded an East-West Center scholarship, arrived in Honolulu this month to continue his studies.

Priol to being awarded his all-expense-paid 21-month Center fellowship, he served as proofreader for the Meadville Tribune (1959-61).

The East-West Center, an educational institution established by the U.S. Congress in 1960, is affiliated with the University of Hawaii.

The Center's objective is to contribute to the promotion of mutual understanding between the United States and the countries of Asia and the Pacific area. Its program involved university students, senior scholars, and technical trainees.

To date, the Center has awarded 246 all-expense paid scholarships to students from 24 Pacific and Asian countries and 18 different states in the United States.

Dr. Alexander Spoehr, Chancellor of the East-West Center, has announced that there are 100 additional scholarships (92 graduates; 8 undergradute) available for American students for the two year period beginning September 1962.

Leontyne Price Stars With Met in Cleveland

Leontyne Price, renowned American soprano, will appear wth the Metropolitan Opera Company in Cleveland this spring. Miss Price will sing in Puccini's dramatic masterpiece "Tosca" on the opening night of the season, April 23. A bus excursion is being organized for this event. Reservations may be placed with Michael Bavar. Closing date for all orders is March 21.

Since her triumphant Met debut in January of 1960, Leontyne Price has risen to a position as America's foremost soprano. Opera lovers fortunate enough to have been present at that now historical debut witnessed a display of vocal versatility coupled with a compelling stage presence. Price's performance won her an unprecedented 35 minute ovation.

In her first season at the Met, Miss Price sang a variety of roles ranging from Verdi's "Aida" to Mozart's "Don Giovanni." Following this initial season, she appeared with great success at Europe's top music festivals.

As Floria Tosca, the heroine of Puccini's opera, Price is both a masterful actress and singer. She is at once proud, tempestuous and seductive. The opera itself contains many of the composer's most beautfiul melodies, notable the impassioned"Vissi d'Arte."

"Tosca" is set against a backdrop of Rome during the Napoleonic Wars. It is a story of violence and love, with Puccini's score underlying the work's dramatic moments.

There is no witness so terrible, no accuser so potent, as the conscience that dwells in every man's breast.

Osteoarthritis appears to be particularly associated with aging and there is a gradual breaking down of the joint structures.

The pangs of hunger, nervousness, and slump in work output that occurs during the midmorning hours are caused by a lowering of available glucose, or blood sugar, circulating in the blood.

'Oscar' Nominations Show Trends To Foreign Films, New Talent

by Mike Bavar

Last week's Academy Award nominations caused a more than usual stir among film circles. The appearance of several foreign names on the nominee list was graphic proof that today's quality market is dominated by Europe. The crop of young stars cited for recognition was a further reminder that many of Hollywood's talented newcomers are offering stiff competition to the established veterans whose names figure prominently on the list of best performances each season.

The films chosen show that the trend toward small budget works, such as Oscar-winning "Marty" and "The Apartment" of years past, is being reversed. "Guns of Navarrone", "Fanny", "The Hustler," "Judgement at Nuremberg" and "West Side Story" represent a combined outlay of over 20 million dollars. This trend looks to continue with Brando's 19 million dollar "Mutiny," Zanuck's 15,000 man, 10 million dollar "Longest Day" and Liz Taylor's supervehicle "Cleopatra" budgeted at an austounding 25 million.

Of this season's nominees "West Side Story" is the most elaborate and costly production. For once, however, the adjectives "mammoth", "epic" and "colossal" have been ignored by over-zealous publicity men. The film opened in New York without the usual pre-release escapades which run the gamut from fires on the sound stage to food poisoning and off the set romances. The cast includes only one "big" name—Natalie Wood. She is supported by a lively and talented crew of young actors who strut, leap and rumble their way through Jerome Robbins' jazz version of "Romeo and Juliet."

As a film, "West Side Story" retains many of the original stage play's faults. The question of presenting a love story bordering on the realm of fantasy in the midst of stark realism is a knotty problem—one which composer Bernstein and director Robbins have tackled with imagination and vigor. Yet how credible is a work which depicts the struggles between Puerto Ricans and lower West Side American gangs as musical drama? New York's slums with their garbage filled alleys, school playgrounds and tenement apartments hardly seem the setting for violent gang wars conceived as ballets. Robbins has done wonders in making everything undisciplined and spontaneous in these scenes yet ballets they remain.

The further question af a musical with an implied sociological statment is another problem which the work's originators have not seemed to solve satisfactorily.

On the stage these problems were lessened to a degree simply because of the medium and the aesthetic distance which exists in a theatrical production. The films however is spread out over a huge 75 foot screen, complete with awesome closeups and multitudinous sound speakers flooding the theatre. The movie fairly engulfs viewers in the sheer size of it all.

All of this need not mean that the musical medium in Hollywood cannot successfully combine the elements of fantasy and realism. Gene Kelly's "American in Paris" and the recently revived "King and I" are two cases in point. Kelly took the City of Light in Springtime, presented a credible and charming love story and topped the whole thing off with a 20 minute fantansy ballet. "The King and I" followed much the same pattern. The important element herein would seem to be in the setting of each work. Paris in technicolor and exotic Siam lend themselves satisfactorily to this realism-fantasy juxtaposition.

The habit of having an inadequate breakfast does not necessarily lead to accident, but it does affect a person's general condition.

"West Side Story's" brutality, its eruptions of race hatred and its play of violence against New York's skyscrapers and tenements do not ring true within the framework of the Hollywood musical medium.

If we accept "West Side Story" as an exciting and quite original work, the film version has numerous merits. Bernstein's score, one of the finest in the contemporary theater, sounds just as taunt and pulsating as it did on the stage. His ingenuity in composing an almost operatic work-complete with duets, large choral numbers, ballets and quintets—remains an achievement to be placed beside "Porgy and Bess" and "Carousel ." Jerome Robbins' dances are dyamic conceptions. The "Rumble" in which Bernardo and Riff are killed emerges more powerfully than in the stage counterpart due to the masterful use of closeups. Robbins' artistic imagination is constantly in evidence, injecting biting humor into such pieces as"America" and "Officer Krupke" or rythmic tensions into the mambo scene at the gym.

Technically the film towers above most of Hollywood's attempts in the musical medium. The photography of Daniel Fapp is breathtaking. The opening aerial shots of New York present the contrast between shining skyscrapers and crowded tenements in vivid terms. Fapp's color camera captures the tempo of the action, matching the franetic pacing of Robbins' choreography and Bernstein's music. The editing of Thomas Stanford should prove a model to future workers in this field. Transitions between scenes are handled so effortlessly and with such skill that the viewer is hardly aware of them. The clumsy breaks in the recent version of "Flower Drum Song" demonstrated to film goers just how little care is taken in this area of cinema creation. "West Side Story's" technical aspects display a firm knowledge of the medium, combined with the ability and bravery to experiment. The credits, for example, are scrawled artfully upon tenement walls. Viewers should hold their seats during these final five minutes for what they will be observing is a revolution in the filmic arts.

A large cast is headed by Natalie Wood, who only rises to the role's demands in the movie's last tragic scenes. Miss Wood lacks the freshness and charm of her stage counterpart, Carol Lawrence. Russ Tamblyn's potent combination of acting and dancing talents make him an effective Riff, while Rita Moreno, George Chakiris (both Oscar nominess) and Tucker Smith all bring a personal dynamism to their roles.

Directory Lists Summer Jobs

The Summer Employment Directory, a listing of summer jobs for college students in the U.S., is now available. It gives the names and addresses of 1,367 organizations wanting to employ college students, the positions open, salary, and suggestions on how to apply.

All types of summer jobs are listed in every state: at resorts, national parks and monuments, summer theaters, ranches, business and industry, and various departments in the government. In addition, many other organizations list their needs for summer help.

Students who wish to have a Summer Employment Directory for their own use may obtain a copy by sending $3.00 to the publishers: National Directory Service, Dept. C, Box 32065, Cincinnati 32, Ohio.

For Executive Secretary

To the Student Body:

What any student government needs is efficiency!! As a representative to the AUC for the past year, I have observed the importance of good campus communication, which is one of the main elements of efficient government.

Realizing this I would like to state my intentions as a candidate for the office of Executive Secretary for the AUC. It would be my purpose to fulfill these duties to the best of my ability. My responsibilities would first include recording the minutes accurately at each meeting of the Council. Secondly, I would be responsible for distributing copies of these minutes to social group representatives and class officers.

Equally important as these secretrial duties, would be my vote as a member of the Executive Council. This policy forming group makes decisions that will ultimately affect the entire student body. In fulfilling all these responsibilities. I would intend to use sound judgment to reflect student opinion, and to provide the campus with necessary information, thus ensuring a student government of which we can all be proud.

Respectfully,
Gwen Thornton

To the Student Body:

As a candidate for the office of Executive Secretary of Allegheny's Student Government, I would like to give several reasons why I am running for this office. I enjoy secretarial work and have experience in that field. In the past, I have been secretary of several organizations. On campus, I am secretary to one of the professors, and I am continuing my secretarial courses begun last year.

More than this, however, I am interested in getting closer to the organization of Allegheny Student Government and its various activities. I realize the responsibility involved in having a voice in the Executive Committee and would vote to the best of my ability for the good of the student body in this capacity. If elected, I would attempt to participate constructively in the issues of concern to the school as a whole to the end that we may take pride in our college community.

Respectfully,
Flo Williams

To the Student Body:

In the coming election, I am running for the office of Secretary of Allegheny's Student Government. The secretary is responsible for keping an accurate record of the concerns, actions, policies, and expressed desires o fthe student body. As a secretarial studies minor, I feel I am qualified to carry out this responsibility. My two years of shorthand and typing could be utilized to perform the obligations of this office.

While the secretary does not propose new legislation, she is able, through her vote on the Executive Council, to help decide what issues are presented to the student body. I would attempt to offer constructive citicism or solid support to any measures brought before this Council.

The present candidates have shown a desire for a position on Allegheny's Student Government. It is up to you to express your wishes by voting for the ones you think most qualified to represent you.

Respectfully,
Bonnie Burke

Labovitz Blasts Off On Student Apathy

Have we no pride? Are we that unconcerned? Even when we are criticized, we do not respond. We merely revert back to, or is it remain in, our apathetic ways.

Just two weeks ago a similar letter on this subject was published. Since that time there have been two more issues of The Campus and there has been no change in the quality of the subject material. There has not even been a challenge to the statements speaking out against such organizations as ASG and The Campus.

Every year we give our money to ASG to operate. If someone should speak out against this organization, are you so apathetic not to even defend something you are paying for? We also give a great deal of money, our money, to The Campus and we all read it and are responsible for the material in it. Yet when somebody speaks out against it, nobody is willing to defend it. You must favor these expenditures, for every year your representatives vote to allot the money to these organizations. Yet you won't defend them! Is this the pride we have?

Is it just a question of pride or are we also unconcerned? There was not criticism nor was there any reflection on these questions in the following issues.

We must open our eyes—we cannot continue to walk around oblivious to all that surrounds us. This campus has a great deal of potential news of a national and international nature that can, although it does not have to, involve Allegheny. We have our foreign students and our exchange students from Fisk. Why have they not been called upon to extend some of their knowledge to us? I am sure that the things happening in other parts of the world have an effect on some of our foreign students. Why aren't we having them relate their views to us? I believe part of their purpose in being here is to allow us to learn something about their country and its political views, as well as their learning about us and what our values and beliefs are.

Right in our own country ,for example, in the South, there are various situations occuring that involve us. Yet, with representatives from a southern school here we do not even call on them to relate their views on these problems.

Recently, two of our students became involved in "sit-ins" in the South. Would it be expecting too much to be able to read about the opinions of these representatives on this subject?

I believe we are just unconcerned. We are too busy leading our idealistic, sheltered lives on Allegheny's beautiful campus. But we have representatives from distant places and the potential for interesting news right here. Now all we have to do is to show the interest and be allowed to read their side of the story.

Senior Sketch

by Ginny Sleigh

If you see a 5' 2" gal with dark hair smartly stepping up N. Main every weekday around noon—you'll know that's Susie Tuttle on her way home from student teaching. Teaching art to grades 1-9 keeps her occupied about 22 hours a week, and as everyone should know—that's a load.

But student teaching hasn't always occupied her hours. Her freshman year saw her as chairman of the freshman May Day float and a member of Student Admissions Committee. During the sophomore year she pledged Kappa Kappa Gamma, became a cheerleader, and was social chairman of AWS. Her activities for this year and last have included membership and chairmanship of ASG Activities Committee and captain of the cheerleaders. Last year her bronze sculpture of a woman's head won a first prize in the Erie May Show.

Susie's regard for Allegheny has grown during her four years here. "The courses and people here have helped me to know myself as well as awaken a sensitivity to fields other than my own. I feel the three-term plan is a good step for the college. As for the G-course program, perhaps a prerequisite of so many hours in each field would be better than the present prescribed courses."

As for the activities from which she has gotten the most, Susie lists ASG, cheerleading, and sorority. Maybe one of her school children knew what she was doing that first day when she asked Susie for her autograph.

So if you see someone tramping down North Main at 7:45 am, that's Susie Tuttle, and, oh yes, she'd like a ride.

It's pretty hard to convince the kids that the shortage of teachers is a calamity.

Private Enterprise?

A vertible gold mine of a business venture for college campuses seems to have been uncovered by a student at a Western university. Luckless and loveless coeds who wish to appear popular can rent a fraternity pin from a designated agent. The prices range from $2 to $10 a week, depending upon the standing of the fraternity. One half of the fee goes to the owner of the pin, whose identity is kept secret. The other half is profit for the originator of the scheme.

Lotze Urges Acceptance Of Germany's Division

The existence of two Germanys should be an accepted fact, German-born Dr. Dieter Lotze of the language department told members of the Meadville World Affairs Forum at a recent meeting.

Dr. Lotz, who arrived at New York City the day the East Berlin wall began to go up, discussed "Divided Germany," citing attitudes, conditions, cultures, and other aspects of life on both sides of the

He stated that there is no such thing today as an "average" German when it comes to offering opinions. The country, he said, is a "schizophrenic Germany" with the people living half in the past and half in the present.

While in West Berlin, Dr. Lotze attended the Free University established to replace the old University of Berlin located in the eastern zone. Dr. Lotze said he met a number of exchange students from the eastern zone, most of whom were sent as agitators to cause trouble among students.

There are two attitudes in West Germany on the divided state status, Lotze said. The official attitude is non-recognition of East Germany, since its government is not elected by the people.

The people's attitude, Lotze said, is not one of interest in what is going on in East Germany unless they have friends or relatives living in the zone. They are not willing to lower their standard of living, which they would have to do if reunited.

East Germans, he continued, do not believe that reunification will come about, and West Germans appear to have placed taboos on its discussion. Most politicians believe the split to be permanent. They blame the Americans, Russians, English and French for its existance, and are waiting for them to solve the problem.

The two different socities are quite different, Dr. Lotze pointed out. West Germans believe in individual rights although retaining a strong belief in central authority even though it is banned by the 1954 constitution. Democracy is very young in West Germany, Lotze said, and the people are not used to it.

East Germans believe in social rights. They have accepted Communist Party ways, and have willingly given up their individual rights. They recognize their obligations to the people; this feeling applies to party members and non-members alike, according to Dr. Lotze.

"Too many people itch to do big things, but won't do any scratching.

Songfest Popular In Nigeria

Lights and a few decorations converted a drab parking lot into an auditorium. Temporary wooden seats were quickly filled by the people of Ibadan, the Moslem-Christian capital of Nigeria's Western Region.

The crowd fell silent as Robin Limpus, a 20-year-old Peace Corps Volunteer from Kalamazoo, looked up into the brilliant African night, struck a few chords on her guitar, and sang:

I peeked in to say good night
Then I heard my child in prayer
'And for me some scarlet ribbons
'Scarlet ribbons for my hair . . '

Two more Volunteers — Paul Newman, 24, of Philadelphia, and Barry Eisenberg, 23, of Brooklyn —joined in with their guitars.

Soon, with only a little urging, the Nigerians too were raising their voices in American folk ballads. Sharing a song sheet, and singing lustily, were American Ambassador Joseph Palmer and a Nigerian student.

To the unaware observer, it was an unforgettable moment as the hand-clapping, toe-tapping massed chorus shook the skies with "When the Saints Go Marching In."

The song-fest was the last and most popular of four programs sponsored by the United States Information Service in Nigeria on the subject of the Peace Corps.

The first program, held in the USIS library, featured a short talk on "The Peace Corps—What Is It?" in which PCV Harlan D. (Dave) Hibbard of West Caldwell, N.J., participated.

Like the second and third programs—on U.S. high schools and universities—the talk was followed by a question period, which, if sometimes intense, left a good impression, USIS reported, because of Hibbard's "frankness and sincerity."

70 Peace Corpsmen Teach In Liberia

In response to a request from President William V. S. Tubman of Liberia, up to 70 Peace Corps Volunteers are scheduled to begin teaching in Liberian secondary schools in September.

Peace Corps Volunteers will help staff the new schools and provide temporary replacements for Liberian teachers who are to receive further training for the new training program Liberia is launching in an extensive school-building attempt.

Up to 40 volunters are needed at the junior high school level to teach science, mathematics, language arts, vocational education, French, music, and arts and crafts. Up to 20 volunteers are needed at the senior high school level to teach general science, English, French, and vocational guidance.

In addition, up to 10 volunteers have been requested for the teacher training schools in the fields of science, mathematics, English, communication arts, and professional education.

Volunteers will be under the supervision of the Liberian Department of Education and of local school officials. They will be expected to teach a full schedule of courses and participate in the after-school activities.

About one-third will be located in Monrovia, the capital. The others will be assigned to a dozen other locations, primarly urban. It is expected that at least two volunteers will be assigned to each school.

The selection of candidates for this project will begin about the first of April. Two months of training at an American university —yet to be announced—will commence about the middle of June. After home leave, there will be a brief orientation period in Liberia before the volunteers begin their teaching assignments in mid-September.

The Peace Corps Placement Test will be given Saturday, February 17 at 8:30 a.m. in the U.S. Courtcouse in Erie and the Victory Building in Pittsburgh. Further information is available in the Deans of Students Office.

Marion Arnold Interviews Mexican Students

Mexican Political Science Students Impressed, Give Opinions On Cuba

By Marion Arnold

Despite the current objections to apathy on Allegheny's campus, there a few who can still regard the student body as interested, friendly, and living in a good environment.

When questioned on their opinions of Allegheny, the three Mexican students visiting here March 12 and 13 replied immediately, "Wonderful!" They felt that the Allegheny students are very interested and kind, and that visitors here feel truly welcome.

Roberto Dueoing Espinosa, who is President of the student body at the University of Mexico and has seen several large universities, was pleasantly surprised at the atmosphere on a small college campus. He remarked that Allegheny "seems a place where one can dedicate his energies to his studies."

On Cuba the comments of the three students, Roberto Dueoing Espinosa, Francisco Delgado- Betancourt and Eduardo R. Thomae, were brief:

"The students of the School of Political Science of the University of Mexico are very much in accord with the legalistic position adopted by Mexico in respect to the Cuban situation, that is, the policy of non-intervention. Therefore, we believe that only the Cuban people themselves should, on occasion, be the ones that judge their government and leaders."

"The Mexican position has been clearly defined through meetings in Washington, the Organization of American States and the conference of Punta del Este. My personal opinion follows this completely; and since this information has already been published sufficiently, I have nothing to add."

"I completely approxe of Mexico's policy of no intervention. In Mexico we follow our own principles of the 1910 Mexican social revolution."

The students are in the United States on a 30 day trip to study the internal structure of the Organization of American States, the United Nations and student governments of several colleges and universities. On their itinerary of several large cities, Allegheny represents a small liberal arts college not located in a big city area.

The students were guests of the Spanish and Political Science departments and attended several classes during their two day visit.

Corps Not Propaganda Says Representative

"The Peace Corps is not intended to wage ideological warfare or spread political propaganda," explained Mrs. Marie Ross, field representative of the United States Peace Corps who spoke at Allegheny last Friday, March 9.

Speaking before Allegheny students in Henderson Auditorium following the presentation of a film on the Peace Corps in Tanganika, Mrs. Ross said the main purpose of the Peace Corps is to give direct aid to countries in Asia, Africa, Latin America and Europe which ask for United States aid.

The Peace Corps supplies invitations to "middle manpower"—representatives who train native people to help themselves. "Much hard work is involved, but it is interesting and stimulating," she said.

Seventy per cent of the present need for volunteers is for high school and elementary teachers.

Any American citizen over 18 may apply. There is no upper age limit.

Mrs. Ross says that many Asian, African and Latin American countries, and some European countries are asking the Peace Corps to send them American teachers, agricultural specialists, health and medical personnel and persons with technical, trade and industrial arts experience. These are the special skills, she pointed out, that the emerging nations need in their struggle for social, economic, cultural and industrial growth.

Dean McKean has been appointed Peace Corps Campus Liaison by Allegheny President Lawrence Pelletier. Students interested in further information should consult Dean McKean.

Pray for good weather, Girls!

With Luck, No Rain Annex Will Rise

With luck and good weather, 122 Allegheny women will move into brand new living quarters next September. "We're holding our breath. We've done it for the last three summers," says Dr. Allen B. Edwards, treasurer of the college.

Construction of the annex to the Hulings - Pfeifer - Brooks - Walker complex is now behind schedule, but hopes are high that the Atlantic Construction and Design Corporation (Washington, D.C.) will be able to meet the deadline this year as it did two years ago with South Hall.

The annex will have 58 double rooms, six singles, and one suite for a resident adviser. There will be luggage and laundry rooms on each of the three floors and a large laundry with washing machines in the basement. Plans are for a main lounge and office on the first floor and several student lounges, study and typing rooms throughout the building.

The completion of the annex will make possible the housing of all upperclass women in a single building. There is a chance that more transfer women will be admitted. Tarbell House and Highland Hall will be used for men. Lee House will not be used for college housing.

Nobody ever gets anything for nothing, but a lot of people keep trying.

Committee. These activities have included investigation of the integration problem on campus, of student reaction to the proposed radio station and student opinion of the prior management of the grill.

In other business AUC approved the appointment of Spencer Watson as chairman of the Traffic Committtee for the duration of the present administration. Watson then presented a report on the reorganization and activities of the Traffic Committee. An executive committee has been established to divide responsibility among committee members. Financially, this committee has collected $1,486.96 in fines and fees this year.

In stating the aims of the committee, Watson included simplification of regulations, stricter enforcements of the regulations and strong student support of the committee and its work.

Alleghenians To Play At Slippery Rock

Two members of the faculty of Slippery Rock Teachers College, Edward Simms and LaMonte Crape will be the pianists.

The program will consist of trios by Mozart and Gade, and a sonata for violin and piano by Schubert. The event will be held at the Emma Guffey Miller Auditorium of Slippery Rock Teachers College.

Intramural Champs Get Trophies at IFC Banquet Saturday

by Jim Baxter

The intramural champions in the major sports of the year will receive trophies for their performances at the Inter-Fraternity Banquet which is being held Saturday, March 17.

The major sports winners who will receive trophies are the Phi Psis, the Phi Gams, and the Phi Delts. The Phi Psis will receive their awards for clinching the title in both football and bowling which was just finished this week. The Phi Delts went undefeated during the intermural volleyball season, clinching their first place trophy, and the Phi Gams ran away with the intermural basketball championship.

Recognition will also be awarded to the Phi Psis for their championship in golf, and to the Theta Chis for their first place finishes in softball and the Turkey Trot.

These are not considered major sports, and the champs will not receive trophies, but they will be recognized. The same will be done for the winners of the intermural swimming finals this Wednesday and for the handball champs if this tournament is completed in time.

The intramural basketball season was completed last week with the Phi Psis closing up second place by defeating the Sigs in a high scoring contest by a score of 58 to 45. Andy Shapiro dumped in 20 points for the Phi Psis as they overcame a confident Sig team led by Mike Lipitz with 14 points.

The Chi Rhos sewed up a fifth place tie with the Independents by beating Theta Chi 39 to 25. Vic Nery scored almost two-thirds of the points for the winners as he dumped in 23 points. The Theta Chi scoring was a little more balanced as Johannesmeyer led the losers with seven.

The basketball season is now completed, and the final standings are:

Phi Gamma Delta	7-0
Phi Kappa Psi	5-2
Sigma Alpha Epsilon	4-3
Phi Delta Theta	4-3
Independents	3-4
Alpha Chi Rho	3-4
Delta Tau Delta	1-6
Theta Chi	1-6

The intramural bowling season also came to an end last week as the Phi Psis finished on the top with the Delts right behind them.

The Delts finished off their season with a 3-1 victory over Theta Chi. Marty Goldberg had the high game of the day as he turned in a 222 in a losing effort. John Swanson again turned in the high game for the Delts, a 203.

Theta Chi also closed up the Phi Psi season by losing to them 4-0. In this match Glenn Beckert turned in a 181 for the high game for the victors while Harry Healey bowled a 204 game for Theta Chi.

Losing by a score of 1-3 to the Phi Delts and winning by an identical score over the Sigs, the Phi Gams neared completion of their season and the intramural bowling season. In their match with the Phi Delts the Gams watched Al Moss bowl a 202 for the winners while Len Cerrato turned in the high game in the Sig match, a 175.

Theta Chi and the Phi Gams ended their bowling seasons as the Ox-men defeated the Phi Gams, 3-1.

Little action was evident on the handball scene last week. Three matches still have to be played in the quarter finals before the semi-finals can begin. Andy Shapiro is the only one who has reached the semi-finals, as he defeated Brian Hathaway in his quarter final match.

Dance, Concert Begin Greek Week

The Greek Week concert and dance will be held in Brooks Hall tomorrow evening for ALL STUDENTS, FACULTY and ADMINISTRATION. The evening's main attraction will be a vocal jazz concert by the Lambert, Hendricks and Ross Trio of New York (twice voted the nation's outstanding vocal jazz group by Playboy Magazine's poll.)

Preceeding the concert will be the annual Greek-Week banquet for fraternity men at 5:30 in South Hall. The jazz vocal trio will begin their concert shortly after 8 p.m. An intermission with refreshments will be held in the Pine Room. Immediately following the brief intermission will be the ALL COLLEGE dance featuring the Jerry Betters jazz group of Pittsburgh.

IFC and PanHell have assembled the makings of the year's best weekend for the college according to Curt Fee and Sam Hester, IFC social co-chairmen. They add that this is as far as any organization can go, "The ultimate success, obviously, will depend upon STUDENT SUPPORT. You have requested a big name attraction—here it is; and if student support is favorable, there is strong reason to believe that attractions of this type can be arranged more often in the future."
