Miss Ida M. Tarbell,
120 East 19th Street,
New York, N.Y.

My dear Miss Tarbell:

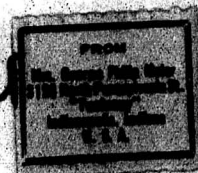

I am sending you my character reading made from the impressions of your hands. Naturally this is condensed for the chapter, which is termed "Their Tales are True." The others in the chapter are Elbert Hubbard, Oliver M. Saylor, Grace Gallatin Thompson Seton, Harry Carr (one of the directors of the Los Angeles Times, and the writer of the front page column "The Lancer" as well as books, etc.), Ellery Walter, Helen Christine Bennett, Richard Halliburton, William Allen White, and possibly Count Louis Hamong, known as Cheiro -- I am still in doubt about him.

I sent my last chapter to my New York agent August 31st and am now busy with revisions. It has been much more difficult than I had anticipated as I desire to verify all of my statements based on "scientific palmistry."

Hoping that you have had a pleasant summer and that I may have the pleasure of again seeing you when I come on to New York, I am

Cordially and sincerely,

Nellie Simmons-Meier
