We the members of the
hundred twenty-fifth year of Allegheny's growth and development present this book in an attempt to picture the Allegheny College of today, and to acknowledge the debt
which we owe to Timothy Alden, Samuel Lord and Thomas Bentley
upon whose efforts was founded the Allegheny of yesterday.

CLARENCE FRISBEE ROSS

Quietly, methodically, Doctor Clarence Frisbee Ross goes through life doing the things which he thinks should be done. So unobtrusively has he gone about his work that one scarcely realizes how integral a place he has occupied at Allegheny. Some of the students now on campus have heard that Doctor Ross was graduated from Allegheny, and received his master's and doctor's degrees here; that he had served, among many official capacities, as principal of the Preparatory School, professor of Latin, registrar, dean of men, vice president, and recently dean of the college. What only a very few have discovered is how, under his earnest, clearly expressed instruction, Latin came alive; how, when it was necessary, in his modest, efficient way he fulfilled the duties of president; and how he found time in his busy life to travel, to study, to be the kind and thoughtful head of his family, to take an active interest in outside activities such as the American Philological Association, Masons, and the Archaeological Institute, and, in such capacities as bank director, executive secretary of the Public Safety Commission, and representative of the Methodist Episcopal Church, to become an important member of the community.

Therefore we, the Junior Class of 1940, respectfully dedicate this 125th anniversary volume to a man who is steady without being dogmatic, a master of detail without being mechanical, a capable educator without being narrow-minded—to a man who epitomizes, in theory and practice, the true spirit of Allegheny—Dr. Clarence Ross.

COLLEGE

The Administration
The Faculty

WILLIAM PEARSON TOLLEY
PRESIDENT

Vigorous, courageous, far-seeing, active—these are the qualities which have brought his ninth year as leader of Allegheny College to a successful conclusion. They have won for William Pearson Tolley the respect and regard of students and faculty alike. His ready spirit of cooperation makes him often in demand in an advisory capacity. Tireless and determined, Doctor Tolley has been the moving force in the celebration of the hundred twenty-fifth anniversary of Allegheny's founding. He is an able successor to the men who have guided its destiny through the years.

ADMINISTRATION

Dean and Registrar

As student, member of the faculty, and as an administrative officer, he has known Allegheny well and long. His brisk alert walk characterizes his attitudes and interest in campus events. To all of us, Doctor Ross symbolizes the ideals and essence of Allegheny College.

LAILA SKINNER
Dean of Women

Equally at home behind desk or teapot, Miss Skinner performs the function of Dean of Women with charming graciousness. Her executive skill and capability are responsible for the efficient organization of the women students.

JOHN RICHIE SCHULTZ
Dean of Men

The sparkling mischievous twinkle in his eye belies the seriousness of his task of guiding Allegheny men in the capacity of Dean of Men. His friendliness and wit coupled with his sincerity and interest explain the admiration which Alleghenians past and present have for Doctor Schultz.

This organization composed of upperclassmen is designed to guide student activity and serve as a harmonious tie with the administration. It is composed of representatives of campus organizations.

Each representative has two main concerns: striving for the best interests of his own particular group, and at the same time coordinating his interests with those of his fellow workers. This action on the part of the whole council calls forth from the students a fine spirit of cooperation. Thus are the various branches of college activities integrated and related. The result is a stimulation of student thinking and opinion and a preservation of college tradition and custom.

The 1940 KALDRON

In this 1940 Kaldron the staff has attempted to produce a yearbook that would be fitting to commemorate one hundred and twenty-five years of Allegheny College. It is designed to give a cross-section of Allegheny from the students' viewpoint. Because this is not only a record of student activities but of the students themselves, the keynote of this year's edition has been personality.

The work of organization was an effort toward cohesiveness of material. To facilitate the task, several departments were created. Directing all of them were two juniors, Robert McVey and LeRoy Schneck. Mr. McVey was editor-in-chief and business manager of the yearbook, and Mr. Schneck was assistant editor. As head of the checking department, Donna Ochsenhirt made arrangements for the pictures and saw to it that nearly every student in the college had his taken. Supervision of the writing was done by Anna Mary Adams and Jean Megahan. To Georgia Seitz fell the task of mounting the several hundred pictures that went into the book. The sports section is always a popular one, since throughout the year the football, basketball, and

In this yearbook we decided to call the class representative juniors and sophomores. The change was made, because we feel that these twenty men and women are not persons merely elected to serve the purpose, but that they are representative of their classes.

It was a century and a quarter ago that Timothy other teams are the centers of attention. As an interested follower of all of them, Robert Brossman assumed the job of collecting pictures and articles about the college athletes. Although they have no specific office, special mention is due Robert Miller and Paul Jones for working as free-lancers.

The heads of the departments have not completed their assignments entirely without assistance. There is not space to state the work of each contributor, for the number of participants was too large. There were so many that it has been necessary to substitute a group picture for the customary individual ones, Alden founded Allegheny College on the land called "The Crescent," given by Samuel Lord for this purpose. At the same time Thomas Bentley presented his two thousand-volume library to the college. The work of these men has lasted for one hundred and twenty-five years. We have not attempted to produce a book covering these years and their events. But we do have a record of the past year . . . our anniversary year . . . in The Kaldron.

The LITERARY MAGAZINE

Five times this year an expression of student thought has appeared on Allegheny's campus. We speak of a publication which encourages a creative spurt even among those who merely glance at its cover—THE ALLEGHENY LITERARY MAGAZINE.

This paper-backed edition has remained a distinctive figure on the campus for forty-three years. Through the latter period the magazine's life has been guided by Robert B. Wright. Its character changes slightly from time to time through innovations of the editor and the difference in expression of student contributors. Yet, there is a constant sprightly style retained in its personality which comes through the offering of the best of student thought for student consideration.

Articles are characterized by their close relation to the undergraduate's life or individual student experience. Such is evidenced by Robert Schutt's article about his summer work on the railroad, James Schultz's article on Carl Sandburg as he knew him from personal association, and John Megahan's discussion of student polls. The fiction, also, has this same close contact with student life, notably in the work of staff members Jane Lewis, Eleanor Fishel, and Hall Van Vlack. To round out the creative talents, the publication can't overlook the thought-providing poetry of Helen Hilker and Howard Beebe.

The annual freshman contest disclosed some promising talent which assures the future of the magazine—more so than in other recent years. In "Hellcats Wear Black" John Donahey, prose winner of the contest, reveals unusual ability of characterization. First prizes in the field of poetry were awarded to Janet Anne Smith for her "Thoughts on an Autumn Day" and to Mary Cooper for "We Are Youth," both of which denote keen insight into the problems facing young Americans today. This literary publication has gained a position representative of the majority of the student body at Allegheny. Some departments, coming to be almost traditional in the experience of "THE LIT," which were continued under Editor Robert B. Wright are: The Editor's Front Porch, The Faculty Sketch, and the Book Review. Contact with graduate editors has been maintained through "The Critic's Nest."

The cover designs of the publication have been linoleum prints. This art work was under the direction of Robert F. Miner. Expressions of individuality in this field were found in the contributions of Katherine Hill and Dorothy Jane Konstanzer.

This year's staff has added one more issue at commencement time, a special recognition edition for the one hundred and twenty-fifth anniversary of Allegheny College.

THE CAMPUS

To most of the men and women of Allegheny The Campus means Wednesday and Wednesday signifies The Campus. But to the sixty-one Alleghenians whose names are listed in The Campus masthead, the newspaper is the result of hours of hard work. They must gather news, write it up, and finally do the necessary technical jobs.

For sixty-four years The Campus has been bringing news to the students, faculty and alumni of Allegheny College—news of the college, of the nation, and of the world. Throughout the week, from Sunday morning when the first ambitious person gets up for an early walk until Saturday night when the last couple straggles in from a dance or fraternity party, The Campus reporters must have their eyes and ears open that no item of interest will be omitted from the following issue of the paper.

The four major departments include the news, feature, sports, and technical staffs. At the head of all of them during the year 1939-40 were the editors-in-chief, Miriam Fay and Elinor Kistler. They have responsibility for all the news printed and for the paper's policies. They have had to exert much time and effort in making the paper what it is. No matter how many other people might fall down on the job, the two editors must always be there ready to rise to any emergency.

It has been the work of News Editor Robert Brossman, his two assistants, James Gettemy and Richard Taylor, and their staff, to collect any bits of news of interest to The Campus readers. They have interviewed faculty members, campus guests, fraternity and sorority presidents, and the chairman of each organized group at Allegheny. All events, whether past, present, or future, have been included.

To give a bit of variety in adding a little of the amusing and intellectual, the feature department is established. Adele Horner has been feature editor for the past year. In each issue of The Campus at least one article of this type has been printed. The features have varied from stories on juvenile courts to Rhett Butler.

To David Kinzer, sports editor has fallen the business of seeing that every football and basketball game, each swimming, tennis, and track meet, and all the various tournaments, whether at home or away, were described. He has, with his assistant, Arthur Diskin, and his staff, included line-ups, high points of the games and meets, and praise for the outstanding players.

Then there is the side of The Campus not seen by the public. This is the technical department under the leadership of Patricia Van Ostrand. Were it not for the fifteen members of this staff, the paper—no matter how much material it had—could not appear. Not only has the technical staff worked Sunday and Monday nights in The Campus office on the third floor of Bentley Hall, but several members have spent Tuesday afternoons working in the printshop downtown. There the finishing touches are put on the paper that it may be handed to the Allegheny students the following noon.

Through its editorials The Campus has supported every worthwhile movement originated by students or faculty. What would have happened to Dutch Treat Week or the mock Republican convention if The Campus had not stood in back of it with wholehearted support? The Campus staff is always eager for new ideas and movements and willing to support any suggestions made by either students or professors.

In spite of the worries of a journalist, every member of The Campus staff loves his work and is glad of the opportunity to participate in publishing the college newspaper. Each one tries to carry out the policy of the paper through writing timely, interesting and unbiased news. It is because of this spirit that The Campus this year and in years past has been such an asset to Allegheny College.

MORTEN J. LUVAAS

It is a day that stands out as one of the brightest spots in the history of Allegheny, that day in the fall of 1930 when Morten J. Luvaas became a member of the faculty. Until that time there had been no music department at Allegheny. Now dormant talents were suddenly awakened. A men's and women's glee club, known as the Allegheny Singers, was created. They followed an idea then comparatively new in college circles, the idea of the a cappella choir.

That first year was a tremendous success; it was estimated that approximately 40,000 people heard them, excluding those who heard them over Stations KDKA and WLBW.

From that time to the present this organization has never failed to be an excellent advertising agent for Allegheny College. Their extensive spring tours, usually between Pittsburgh and New York and at some time or other during the year including Cleveland, have spread their fame. Whether appearing in Carnegie Music Hall, Pittsburgh, Town Hall, New York City, or in Allegheny's own Ford Chapel, the Singers always sing before a capacity audience.

By 1937 this was one of the most highly ranked choral groups in the eastern states. It was as such that on May 4, 1938, they rated two high honors: an appearance at Town Hall and a broadcast from Radio City on a nation-wide hookup.

This past school year, after several short jaunts to Clearfield, Franklin, Kane, Sharon, and Cleveland, on April 29 they started on their long trip. In the customary manner, it included Pittsburgh and New York as well as various other towns and cities along the way. They returned to the campus just in time to sing for the High School Day program.

The first year the works of such noted composers as Palestrina, Glinka, Christiansen, Kalinnikol, Gretchaninoff, Lvovsky, Tschaikowsky, Sodermann, Glokey, and Kibalchick were included in the repertoire. About 1935 Johann Sebastian Bach, an early eighteenth century composer but still unsurpassed, rose and claimed his place on the program. Today masters of the art still hold their ground. Like all masterpieces they will never go out of style. But the arrangements of a modern master have become of great importance to the Singers. Morten J. Luvaas' own arrangements, especially those of his favorite folk songs, have indeed rightfully gained their recognition.

Through the efforts of this one man, known to Singers and people who know him as "Luvy," the whole idea of the Allegheny Singers was conceived and has been added to and built up until it really is "a thing of beauty and a joy forever." It is through them that the students of Allegheny have been helped to a fuller knowledge and understanding of the best in music, and it is, in turn, from "Luvy" that the Singers learn their appreciation and means of interpretation.

Much as the good that the entire college and others have derived from this group is, it is the experience which Singers gives the individual that is most significant.

There is a deepening of emotional life and an appeal to the finest feelings—an appeal to the beautiful—which will be of life-time value to all who have been members of the Singers.

The ALLEGHENY PLAYSHOP

"At college, a young student's fancy often turns to thoughts of the stage." Those thoughts began to take on character when in 1891 elocution was first added to the college curriculum. By 1910, due to the activity and guidance of Miss Alice Spalding, Allegheny boasted of two dramatic clubs: the Duzer-Due (Dues are Due) for boys, and the Klee-O-Kleet for girls. Using the gymnasium for a stage they were producing high quality drama. The year 1916 saw the organizations combined and the struggling "little theater" moved to Bentley when it continued to do fine work. The cry for better facilities brought one of those familiar drives for funds. By 1929, with the production of Dear Brutus, the Allegheny Playshop in Arter Hall was formally opened.—1931—a string of lights; an ingenious stage set; a touch of snappy stage business; and a "walk"—Mr. Hurlburt appears on the scene.—Fashions, The Bishop Misbehaves, Ghosts, Candida, The Fan, Twelfth Night, Bury the Dead, Inspector General, Cradle Song—all passed by with growing applause.—1939 brings Mr. Crawford, a make-up box under one arm, and a piece of corrugated paper under the other, to the Playshop faculty. So we come to the present year which demands a personal touch and a bit more detail.

The first performance of the year, Petticoat Fever, shows "M. L." Gingenbach, always the perfect heroine, turning up with the right man at the close of the play. Rumor has it that she turned down Charles Liggett because of a queer odor coming from the atomizer he used. But the truth of the matter remains (according to the plot) that Patty Ann Green, the possessive gold-digger, is much more his type.

Judgment Day, with a cast of forty, followed. In this performance Pat Reilly played the tragic role of Madam Kuman. Chuck Miller carried his wise-cracks to the stage to become a successful judge.

Jack Wolford took his dining room job to heart to become a real Mussolini. Helen Litten was a bribed witness, Dick Snead played the perfect dope, Eleanor Harter sold tickets, while Jean English dashed about with grease paint in every pocket. Many new faces showed outstanding abilities in this performance, namely, Mary Stewart, Jim Barnes, Jim Gettemy, Wally Hanson, Ellis McKay, Barbara Hunt, Bob Miller, and Rolf Arentzen. The final major performance was the historical play Timothy Alden. This was written especially for Allegheny's 125th anniversary celebration by Marcus Bach of Los Angeles, California. "Slicker" Wood, climaxing his four years of stardom at the Playshop, recreated Timothy Alden. By his excellent interpretation the founder of our college lived, dreamed, and planned again.

One of the most interesting experiments of the year was the work done under the direction of Miss Anne Cook from the American Association of Colleges. "The Living Newspaper," as the work is entitled, is an experiment in creative drama. In this production Mike Enserro will always be endeared to the hearts of his classmates by his picturesque impersonation of the fountain in the alumni gardens. A series of one-act plays utilized the new studio stage and radio workshop. This new equipment on the second floor of Arter has opened a new field of opportunity for those students interested in various phases of radio work. One of the plays presented here, Happy Ending, was broadcast from Ashtabula. Members of the cast were Jane Port, Esther Ebenhoc, and Edgar Wood.

The techniques of the Chinese theater were demonstrated to several audiences in the one-act play, Turtle Dove, directed by Jean Megahan. Another one-act play of note was His Master's Valet. This play was translated and adapted from its French original by Hall Van Vlack.

"At college a young student's fancy often turns to thought of the stage." Through the decades Allegheny's dramatic department has grown until now we say "At Allegheny a young student's fancy fondly turns to thoughts of rehearsal schedules, costume fittings, call buzzers, pungent odors of paint and make-up, spot-lights, Mr. Hulburt's directing, Mr. Crawford's crews, curtain calls, Arter Playshop."

DEBATE

The Philo-Franklin Union this year is celebrating its hundredth anniversary. Under the leadership of James Gettemy, it opened its program with the annual men's extemporaneous speaking contest which was won for Phi Delta Theta by Edgar Wood, '40. The women's contest was won by Miriam Fay, '40, of Kappa Alpha Theta. The war conditions in Europe was the subject of a panel discussion presenting "The World Today." The panel was made up of members of the faculty and student body, Mr. Giddens, Mr. Luvaas, Mr. Benjamin, David Robertson, '41, and Robert Oberlin, '41, who had recently traveled in Europe.

In November the Union sponsored a debate for which the subject, "Coeducation Fits One Better For Life," was chosen by student ballot. The annual Wakefield Oration Contest in December was won by Rachel Mumbulo, '40.

The international commentator on the February program was Senator Gerald P. Nye of North Dakota. In his lecture, "Uncle Sam, Watch Your Step," he forcefully supported his isolationist policy. He pointed out similarities between conditions in the United States at present and those of the years 1914-18 and warned against following a parallel course. In the spring Philo-Franklin Union took an active part in the mock Republican convention. The freshman speaking contest closed the season.

One of the youngest of Allegheny organizations is the Speakers' Bureau, which is rapidly becoming one of the most popular. In one short year the number of programs offered has increased from 37 to 80, and the number of participating students from 33 to 55. Seniors this year were particularly active in the work of the bureau. Margaret Turner's humorous verse, the dialect readings of Edgar Wood, and Michael Enserro's play reviews bespeak the popularity of subjects in the field of dramatics. A speaker in another line who was in demand was John Megahan, whose discussion of the "New Frontiers of South American Friendship," won much comment. "Do We Like to Be Fooled?" asked Lew Davies of numerous audiences, and answered his own question with an exposition of exaggerated advertising.

These serve as illustrations of the varied types of programs offered before service clubs, community forums, civic organizations, and church and school groups in the Ohio, Pennsylvania, and New York district. In addition to providing worthwhile entertainment the organization is designed to give students practice in public speaking by actual experience.

"M-Day," preparations for mobilization in the United States, was the subject of an enlightening panel discussion. Members of the panel were John Megahan, Richard Miller, Edward Robinson, and Charles E. Irwin, Instructor in Speech. Student opinion was stimulated by the revelation of the extensive government mobilization program.

"Resolved: that the United States should pursue a policy of strict economic and military isolation toward all belligerents outside the western hemisphere." This was only one of the timely topics pursued by Allegheny debate teams. Activities, under the direction of Coach Charles E. Irwin, included fifty inter-collegiate debates and eight tours in the tri-state area. The subjects chosen were questions of national importance and included discussions of the basic blame for the present world conflict, the suppression of un-American activities in the United States, and the presidential third-term issue.

The women's debate team made an extensive southern tour. For two reasons they did not go east this year: they wished to avoid bad weather and to meet more women's squads. Conversely they had three days of rain, one of snow, and met only one women's team. Particularly active on the trip were Rachel Mumbulo, Nancy Martin, Mary Brock and Miriam Mumford.

An innovation this year was the verbal encounter with W. and J., via radio. Robert Oberlin and David Robertson represented Allegheny on the question of federal ownership and operation of railroads. Other members included on the men's debate squad are: Richard Miller, John Megahan, Paul Krantz, Howard Beebe, Arthur Diskin, Stuart Schaffner, Robert Shutt, James Gettemy, Reynard Stone, and Robert Hoover.

Injuries to key men together with a dearth of reserve material made the 'Gator football lot an unhappy one, and the meagre squad was able to eke out two ties while losing the rest of the contests on a seven-game schedule. A 27-man squad, boasting a mere seven veterans, confronted Coach Karl J. Lawrence at the opening workout in September, but each time the mentor looked he found the group further depleted by injury. On looking back there is not much to be said in praise of the season results in unemotional scores, but the Haverford and Grove City engagements gave temporary relief to feeling although they themselves resulted in unsatisfactory deadlocks. The Haverford junket looked successful for a while as the locals went ahead, 13-7, in the first half on a spectacular pass from Cook to Hartwell after the 'Gators had seized the lead when Alf Hartwell sneaked through tackle early and dashed a mad 64 yards for a score, only to have the main liners retaliate swiftly by marching steadily 75 yards to knot the count. But local elation was short-lived in the final period when the Philadelphians reached into their repertoire of legerdemain to dazzle their way all the way to the 'Gator goal. The attempt at conversion was wide and the final whistle blew as the locals were hammering at the Haverford goal, leaving the count tied at 13-13. Soon after this debacle the Blue and Gold squad was thinned by injury and it was with difficulty that enough men could be found for two complete teams in scrimmage. With this scanty crew, Lawrence used all his wile, but the local forces, after fighting to a stalemate at Grove City, dropped the last four games on the card. Before had come the Homecoming fixture with Oberlin with returning alumni watching a heavy visiting eleven smash the locals for a 27-0 triumph. Then the journey to Grove City with the old theme, revenge, uppermost in players' minds. But the Lawrence forces had to be content with a scoreless tie in a lack-lustre affair that saw both teams doing little or nothing without fumbling. A 'Gator chance went by the board in the last canto when a bobbled ball was recovered by the Crimson after a local thrust had reached the Grover 32-yard stripe. From this battle on, the history of the 1939 footballers is not nice reading and the team dropped four out of four contests to wind up the season.

Playing their last times in Blue and Gold uniforms were the graduating seniors Bill Cook, honorary captain of the team and standout halfback, Bill Scarpitti, bulky tackle, Frank Lemme, versatile end, and Gordon Barrett, Scarpitti's running mate at tackle.

Back to bolster next year's gridders will be George Hartwell, shifty backfield man who counted all the points made by the 'Gators this season, Gail Burkett, Clark Saylor, Eddie Doolittle, Frank McKnight, Ralph Marasco, Glenn Peiffer, Bill Shuster, and Bob Spears.

The 'Gator natators took the first meet of the year, but then the old ills that usually beset swimming set in and the squad finished out of the money in the rest of the meets carded. Coach Bruce T. Brickley at the season's outset had a fair team, which demonstrated its worth by soundly thumping Grove City in the opener, 44-22, and annexing six of the eight first places in the process. Paul Herre and Ed Marvel demonstrated prowess in this clash, but it wasn't long before they both had quit competition and Brickley had no standout distance man or sprint star. This weakness was soon made evident as the swimmers went into a dive and couldn't break into the win column again during the season. In justification to the team it must be mentioned that this year's schedule was by no means an easy stint. On the card were such powerful foes as Case, Rochester, undefeated last year, Oberlin, and Slippery Rock, in addition to the redoubtable Grove City combination. Only senior on the squad is Wayne Knight, and next year's team will be made up of such veterans as Bob Burrows, Bob Shane, Fred Lichtenfels, Al Brandt, Don King, Fred Zimmer, George Richardson, and Jim Aiken.

After a brilliant start that saw them win two games and tie another in their first three starts, the 'Gator soccer team subsided quietly and finished out the card to end the season with a record of two games won, three lost, and another tied. With a team composed almost equally of veterans and new men, Coach H. P. Way expected a great season and allowed himself to be quoted as saying it was the best soccer team he has coached here in the sport's short six-year tenure. And for a while it looked that way, too. The local booters succeeded in cleaning up an old debt to Slippery Rock as they tripped the Teachers 3-2 on goals by Meredith George, Jim Baldwin, and Bill Stunder. And there was nothing to disprove the statement in a tidy tie with the Carnegie Tech club which ended 1-1 after a final ten minutes saw a reciprocity agreement whereby each team allowed the other a freak and unearned goal. Still the boast held when the locals came from behind to best the Buffalo State club here to the tune of 3 to 1. But from there the demise was swift and the Blue and Gold booters saw no more victory for the remainder of the campaign. Lost to next year's team through graduation are Meredith George, Neil Roha, Arthur Gratz, and Captain Alex Hart, all of whom braced the team and provided the steadying influence to the more untried members of the squad. Expected to bolster Coach Way's aggregation next year are Howard Beebe, John Caputo, Jim Baldwin, Bill Stunder, Dick Doncaster, Jim Gilmore, Bob Miller, Dick Graft, and Don Starr.

BASKETBALL

By winning their first six games in a row, by breaking two long-standing scoring records, and by winding up the season with a record of twelve wins and but three losses, Coach Karl J. Lawrence's 1939-40 edition of the basketball 'Gators stamped themselves as one of the most successful squads ever to wear the Blue and Gold. It was a campaign studded with impressive victories as the Faloon, Hart, Gratz, Cook, and Robinson quintet rolled along in high gear to compile an average total of more than 50 points a game. Local supporters, reconciled to mediocre football and soccer seasons, responded eagerly as the cagers gave indication from the opening whistle of the first clash that this was no ordinary team, but one destined to make for itself an awe-inspiring reputation in district court circles. First indication of what was to occur came with Fenn opener as the 'Gators moved to an easy 52-23 decision. From this beginning the locals went on to annex win after win, bogging down only momentarily when they bowed to Hiram and Western Reserve in close succession. Bounding back from this lapse, the Lawrencemen finished the card without accident save for a close decision dropped to Washington and Jefferson toward the close of the campaign. In retrospect, several high-spots clamored for recognition as the Blue and Gold courtmen battled their way to fame. First standout event of the season was the single-point win over the powerful University of Rochester combination which came to town fresh from triumphs over such vaunted fives as Michigan and Dartmouth and boasting a string of fifteen straight victories. Later on, the cagers—their four seniors-one junior lineup still intact—made basketball history as they pressured a scrappy Buffalo State crew for an all-time record decision at 59-26. Meanwhile, Lanky Forward Art Gratz garnered himself 31 points to remove from the books the individual scoring record that had stood since 1906. Not to be lightly dismissed are the two-in-a-season victories over an old antagonist, Grove City. Praise aplenty should go to the five men who remained a steadfast unit throughout the season. Graduating Stars Eddie Robinson, named honorary captain of the team, Art Gratz, Bill Cook, and Alex Hart, and Junior Bill Faloon will leave a gap that will be more than difficult for Coach Lawrence to bridge come next season. Returning to the wars again for another campaign will be Jimmy Baldwin, Ralph Marasco, Hank Frye, Hec Caravacci, Larry May, Bob Welday, Frank McKnight, Roger Flint, and George Dennison, in addition to six-and-a-half-foot Bill Faloon, to ease, in part, Lawrence's worries.

After sprinting off to an encouraging start by humiliating their first two foes, the 1939 trackmen went into a rapid downward glide from which they were powerless to emerge and ended the running season with a balanced mark of two meets won, two meets lost. Opening the campaign with a veteran squad, Coaches H. P. Way and Karl J. Lawrence were a pair of happy men when their charges galloped through the opener with Kenyon, annexing ten of thirteen first places for an 80-46 verdict, and continued the surge by chastising the Grove City runners by an 81-45 count. But their enjoyment was short-lived when the 'Gator thinclads hit the skids and dropped the last two meets by close scores. Outstanding member of the team was Captain Al White, senior distance star, who reached the height of his track career against Rochester invaders as he stepped off a new record for the mile event. Among the prominent and important departing stars were Bill Nye, Charles Cares, Milo Connick, Bob Dugan, Don Jones, Red Lavelly, Earl McCrea, Elmer Swanson, Mike Verecke, Earl McClurg, Wayne Spray, and Gene Ochs. Returning to add wisdom and strength to this year's squad are Art Aey, George Hartwell, Bud Saylor, Bill Cook, Don Starr, and the usual complement of sophomores.

TENNIS

To the 1939 tennis team went the honor of the best record of 1938-39 in intercollegiate competition, as they hung up a record of eight victories and two losses. Outstanding bit of the season was the hair-breadth 5-4 decision over Pittsburgh, which verdict was in doubt until the final doubles match was run off. Seniors lost last year are Captain John R. McVey, Dan Boyer, and Herb Rosen, while Art Gratz, John Topper, Bill McEwen, Bob McVey, Bruce Harper and Glenn Loveday are back this year to embark on another campaign under Mentor Joseph L. Fisher.

GOLF

The niblick and putter wielders from Washington and Jefferson came to town last May and stayed long enough to defeat a field of eight entries and carry off the cup symbolic of the winning of the Second Annual Allegheny Golf Tournament. Allegheny golfers hit the strong competition and pulled up in fifth position with a 356-stroke aggregate as compared with the W. and J. low, 324. Lane of W. and J. posted a brilliant 78 to carry off individual honors.

PRIDE, COMPARISON, and PROFIT are the determining factors in all purchases, including your daily purchase of MOORE'S MILK. There are PLUS factors, too, when buying SEALTEST-APPROVED milk: It is milk coming from constantly inspected cows — safe milk. Pasteurized and bottled under strict laboratory control in a plant that excels in good housekeeping — clean milk. And a blend of Jersey and Guernsey milk, the flavor of which is safeguarded in skilful handling — good milk and ice cream.
