Miss Ida M. Tarbell,
120 E. Nineteenth St.,
New York, N. Y.

Dear Miss Tarbell:

Our historical work here has grown by leaps and bounds, and your prediction as to the success of our work is being and will be verified. I expect to visit my daughter in New Jersey the latter half of December, but will not fix the time before the first of December, and meanwhile I should be glad to know whether it will be convenient for me to meet you when there, as I have a good deal I want to talk about, and I know you will be interested. I appreciate that you are a busy person, and that your great work in the Lincoln Inquiry has perhaps been done. I do not want a brief for anybody in work of this character, but I am just now in our work featuring you in the current of events relating to the published and unpublished history of Abraham Lincoln's life in a place where you belong, and in a manner naturally different from anything you have probably experienced before this, and there are a number of questions of real interest to me, and I think will be of interest to you, that I wish to talk about with you.

Sincerely yours,

John E. Iglehart
