

The American Magazine

381 FOURTH AVENUE

NEW YORK

EDITORIAL ROOMS

July 24, 1917.

Miss Ida M. Tarbell
Rutland Court,
17th & Riggs Street, N.W.
Washington, D.C.

Dear Miss Tarbell:-

I certainly was disgusted when I found out you had been up here over Sunday and feel quite "put upon" when I missed you.

J. S. P. told me of the good visits he had with you. I think it is fine Clara going down there. It certainly will be a great experience for her.

J. S. P. seemed to think you were trying to take care of yourself. I am afraid you are running in some real weather now. We are having it here to-day. I am thankful it has held off as long as it has for your sake.

Yours,

P.S. Your note of the 23rd just received. I would love to have heard you and Peter having your conflagration.

What are you doing with McMillan?

AAB/LB

Robin was in a sweat you could find out something about this "great pregnancy" in the spring months and what about it.