ALLEGHENY COLLEGE
MEADVILLE, PA.

If we can but be aware of our youth, if we can but realize that before us lies a wealth of experience—multicolored experience, ranging from dark chasms of despair to tall pinnacles of hope, with triumph and disaster and again triumph leading to ultimate achievement; if we can but acquire this insight, then will we develop a fine sense of proportion, a keen awareness of realities, a consciousness of the need for utilizing the present to prepare for the future.

The very spirit of youth is dauntless, but we need clear-eyed vision, stubborn determination, and boundless courage to face without flinching the problems of life which await us.

In the future, should we turn back to this record of a few happy years of youth, may we vividly recall our eagerness and enthusiasm and ambition, our discipline and dreams and expectations; may we be newly inspired to live!

PROFESSOR MORTEN J. LUVAAS

TO MORTEN J. LUVAAS—

BECAUSE his personality has won the affection, admiration, and respect of countless students and friends;

BECAUSE he is a true artist, with a great love for his profession, and with eyes fixed always on the highest;

BECAUSE he radiates a contagious idealism and enthusiasm for life as well as music;

BECAUSE he excels not only in his own field, but has all-around interests extending to amateur athletics, gardening, carpentry, and photography;

AND BECAUSE as a musician, teacher, and comrade he has proven a constant inspiration.

Through knowledge we are stimulated to a new keenness, to finer and more vigorous joy in life because we understand it more fully. Our contacts with the faculty aid us in discovering our abilities, in disciplining ourselves in order to grow; show us the value of work for the satisfaction of understanding and attainment, of play for relaxation and enjoyment; lead us to realize our responsibility for the future; teach us to appreciate fine personalities.

Members of the faculty are counselors rather than generals, advisers rather than task-masters. With patience and understanding they incite us to greater effort, to an earnest desire for progress in obtaining a genuine education.

FACULTY AS HUMANS

As well as being Carriers of the Word, they, too, have their lighter moments. It is then that we discover their human, fun-loving qualities, and learn to like and admire them as men and women. When we notice a weakness for hamburgs, hear a few mild cuss-words, watch them converse with dogs and monkeys, see them lose a trick in bridge or a ball in tennis, even a long string of letters after their names fails to awe us completely.

PROF. HARLEY MORRIS

Many are our jokes at their expense and many are the times it must try their patience to be good sports when our "sense of humor" is particularly irritating. Is Schultz leading a double life or are we to believe that the camera never lies? And what do these recall . . . grease on pancakes . . . what, class? . . . swinging a Phi Bete key while lecturing . . . the punning prof . . . the first question will be number one . . . what was the poem about the pelican? . . . and the bicycle wouldn't stop . . .

But what would we do without 'em?

CUSSEWAGO VIEW

SENIORS

JUNE. The campus is at the height of its summer beauty as the seniors meet the culminating moment of their college career. Who knows their thoughts—a mingling, perhaps, of the varied emotions of leavetaking to the past with plans and expectations for the future—as the black and white procession moves forward to receive the parchments that indicate they have finished with college life?

We are about to test the worth of our four years' experience; to continue to live, facing a more demanding yet more indifferent reality, this time with the thought of giving service, rather than receiving it.

The great, sturdy trees and the serenity of the campus bid a farewell of confident encouragement to its newest graduating class, traversing this walk for the last time as Allegheny undergrads.

The heart of college life, the midst of the fray, the center of this remarkable process of growing up . . . underclasses. Life is vigorous and newly free; we live it enthusiastically—and often thoughtlessly. We have moments of exultant optimism, of blue depression, of noble resolution, of harrowing indecision.

Competition is keen, discouragements are frequent, there is new responsibility with the new freedom; but we relish our position because it is a challenge.

Freshman, sophomore, junior . . . following routines of registration, lectures, quizzes; visits to the treasurer, photographer, adviser, tea room; activities, meetings, parties; ping pong, bridge games, roller skating . . . underclasses.

ART. VANGELI

MARJORIE JOICE

ED. CARNEY

The junior class elected as its officers Art Vangeli, president; Amy Bishop, vice president; Marjorie Joyce, secretary; and Ed Carney, treasurer. The man and woman receiving the highest number of votes for being representative members of the class are Annabelle Broomall and Dick Horn.

AMY BISHOP

RICHARD HORN

ANNABELLE BROOMALL

Annabelle is president of the women students, a member of Phi Sigma Iota, Phi Beta Phi, and the Allegheny Singers; Dick is on the men's senate, the Kaldron staff, the football and wrestling teams, and a member of the Allegheny Singers, Phi Beta Phi, and Omicron Delta Kappa. They were elected not only because of their long list of activities but because of their efficiency and dependability, and their likeable personalities.

BETTY ELLIOTT

ARCHIE TATE

ELEANOR MILLER

Three men and three women were elected as representative members of the sophomore class. Eleanor Miller, Mary Virginia Jones, and Betty Elliott are active in Cwens. Other interests include playshop and campus work. Keith Hutchison, Bob Byers, and Archie Tate are members of the Allegheny Singers. Athletics—especially basketball and soccer—also attract them.

MARY LOU WAHA

FRESHMEN

To be elected a class representative is an honor, for it implies a wide general popularity that cannot be accounted for only by participation in activities. The activities of the freshman class have led us to expect a great deal from them. The six men and women representatives offer a sample of their future attainments. Mary Lou Waha and Betty Seibert are members of the Allegheny Singers; Aileen Rockenbach is active in publications and debate. Mary Lou is also president of the freshmen women.

REPRESENTATIVES

JACK McFARLAND

AILEEN ROCKENBACH

Jack McFarland, Benny Raskin, and Ray Shaffer represent interests in debate and athletics, especially football, basketball, and track. They have also ranked high in academic achievement.

The well-rounded interests of the class of '38 promise four years of enviable accomplishment.

No picture of student life is complete without its "charm section." Demonstrating that Allegheny has its share of comeliness, student vote has elected the May Queen to preside over the annual spring festivities, and the four women whose pictures follow, as the 1935 representatives of loveliness. Observing, we realize that it is a far cry back to the frivolous lipstick and racoon coats of the "rah rah" college era.

Henceforth, who can believe that beauty and brains are antithetical?

"Frater," brother . . . Common interests and aims uniting groups in bonds of mutual friendship, with visions of ultimate leadership through discipline and earnest endeavor . . . Swords and lamps and stars were secret symbols of the greater power and wisdom and service to which they aspired . . . And so evolved fraternities.

These emblems can still be shown to have value today; with resolution, they can be proved not meaningless, ritualistic idealism, but worthy and practical guideposts in college and afterwards. . .

Memories of fraternity life will always center about "the house": decorating for parties, putting up the new placque, welcoming alumnae, entertaining faculty at dinner, practicing for the interfraternity sing, cramming for exams, borrowing ties, preparing for initiation, having endless dinner-table arguments about politics, or dates, or N.R.A.

More than a half-century ago, college women founded sororities, desiring the recognition of their right to higher education, and of the theory that women's abilities are not inferior to men's. Their organizations, too, were bound together by mutual affection and purposes; purposes which their rituals reveal to be a search for the finest things in life, with a setting and maintaining of high personal standards.

Theirs is the task of developing efficient womanhood; of encouraging and producing women who are intelligent and able, poised and courageous.

As the men remember their houses, the women will recall the suites of rooms on Hulings' fourth floor: meetings, initiations, feeds at midnight—playing bridge and drinking coffee, with the radio turned low; teas for alumnae, teas for faculty, teas for mothers—buying candles, borrowing silver, making sandwiches; afternoons of study; seeing from the window the campus below in all its moods of calm and storm, sun and rain; fancying its similarity to life.

Membership in an honorary organization implies a keener interest, a fuller understanding, a greater achievement in a particular field. Rather than undertaking the development of a well-rounded personality, they contribute toward that end by emphasizing and rewarding special attainments.

They are centers of academic pursuit, encouraging progress, offering understanding companionship to students who derive satisfaction from common sources, recognizing work well done.

The extra-curricular program permits us the most advantageous use of leisure time and aids us in achieving more evenly balanced lives. Activities are a preventative to one-sidedness and a diversion from academic pursuits.

In music, dramatics, debate, publications, athletics, we may find opportunities for self-expression and the development of individual resources, and a means of broadening our mental horizons and enriching our personalities.

THE KALDRON

The KALDRON is published each June by the Senior class. It serves as a resume of their final year in college and as a memento for future years.

Under the editorship of Milton Maloney, the staff has attempted to produce this year a KALDRON that in content, set up, and photography is a departure from the style of all previous Allegheny year books.

THE CAMPUS

The Campus, weekly news publication, is entirely under student management. Orin Hawkins has confined his editorials almost exclusively to campus problems, praising and criticizing with frankness all phases of Allegheny life.

The Campus encourages free expression of student opinion, and has been instrumental in presenting to the student body a clear picture of the defects and assets of the college.

ALLEGHENY SINGERS

As well as being one of the college's most valuable means of advertising, the Allegheny Singers offer rare opportunity for individual appreciative and emotional development. Many well known critics have commented favorably on the high type of music the choir sings, their professional manner of presentation, and the excellent musicianship of their director, Professor Luvaas. The Singers are noted on the campus for their fine spirit of unity and friendship.

Trips this year included a ten day tour of New York state, with Buffalo, Niagara Falls, and Binghamton the high spots, a five day trip to the Pittsburgh and Cleveland districts, and two evening concerts in Sharon.

OLIVE FORMAN

CHARLES BARTBERGER

THE LIT MAGAZINE

The Allegheny Literary Magazine appears four times yearly. It encourages student literary expression in all forms: narrative, poetry, essays, book reviews, discussions.

Olive Forman as editor has stressed the importance of student writers choosing subjects with which they are familiar, of finding material within their own lives and experience about which they can write convincingly and realistically.

DEBATE

The debaters, under Mr. Anderson, Mr. Cares, and Mr. Haberman, had a very active and successful year. Both men's and women's teams travelled through Ohio and the east, arguing on "Arms and Munitions" and "The New Deal." The freshman team also made a trip to Pennsylvania State College and Washington and Jefferson.

Throughout the year the system of non-decision debating was adhered to. The large number of interested students and the success of the year's ambitious program is gratifying.

ALLEGHENY PLAYSHOP

The consistent excellence which Playshop productions have displayed can be due only to long practice, great skill, and absolute cooperation both behind the scenes and behind the footlights. Under the direction of Miss Alice Spalding and Mr. John Hulbert, six successful plays were presented this year.

"Candida," "The Fan," and "The Pot-boiler" were given again; "Twelfth Night," "Big Hearted Herbert," and Ibsen's "Ghosts" were presented for the first time at the Playshop Theater.

Three of the plays were also taken out of town; to Warren, Pennsylvania, Titusville, and Warren, Ohio.

ATHLETICS

Athletics is a vital part of an extra-curricular program. The rewards of physical activities and competition are numerous:

Physical health is a prerequisite to a clear and healthy mind. Physical fitness enables full and enthusiastic living.

Team members receive valuable training in cooperation and leadership.

Individual skills are developed, and students gain satisfaction from able participation, aside from the pure fun of playing.

Athletics offer health, teamwork, skill, ethical training, recreation, enjoyment. Victory is a matter for natural pride, but the benefits remain, regardless of the score.

MEN'S INTRAMURALS

The men's intramural athletics program aroused a great deal of interest this year among the student body. Results may be summarized as follows: winners of the golf and tennis tournaments, Phi Delta Theta; bowling and touch football, Sigma Alpha Epsilon; cross country and wrestling, Phi Gamma Delta; basketball, Phi Kappa Psi.

WOMEN'S INTRAMURALS

To Kappa Alpha Theta go intramural laurels for victories in four tournaments: basketball, volleyball, shuffleboard, and archery. Kappa Kappa Gamma won the deck tennis contest, and Alpha Gamma Delta was victorious in badminton.

Louise Reynders, Kappa Kappa Gamma, was proclaimed women's ping pong champion. Hazel Dixon, Kappa Alpha Theta, was winner of the tennis tournament, with Isabel Hepler, Alpha Xi Delta, runner-up.

FOOTBALL - 1934

The 1934 football season showed a marked improvement over that of 1933. While the team won but two games, and tied one, this was better than finishing without a score as was done the previous season.

The 'Gators started with a 6-0 win over Clarion State Teachers' College, boosting the morale of both the team and its followers. The next week, hopes of the campus were further raised when the team held the strong Alfred eleven to a 7-7 tie, in Allegheny's first night game. But the 'Gators ran against a snag in the form of the Dickinson team which defeated them 21-0, due partly to poor playing and partly to the weakened reserve strength because the freshmen could not be used.

Against Grove City the following week the 'Gators pulled one of the biggest surprises in football for the season. On a field ankle-deep in mud, and with snow blinding them, they defeated the supposedly overpowering Grovers, 6-0.

From this point on, they seemed to lose the necessary punch. Three defeats followed on successive Saturdays: Oberlin, 6-0, lost through bad breaks; Thiel, 31-0, an expected loss, and a game which placed seven Allegheny men on the injured list, weakening the team for its last game; Ithaca, 14-7, which should have been Allegheny's third victory of the season.

The team may have won only two games, but the victory over Grove City made the season a great success, and the number of losses seemed considerably smaller.

COACH W. S. TIPPIN

CAPTAIN BOB EDWARDS

In the fall of 1934 a new intercollegiate sport appeared upon the campus; that of soccer. The new team was a means of carrying out the plan of the physical education department to get the largest possible number of men in varsity competition. While the soccer team did not turn in an enviable record, it did well for a first year team and gave promise of a successful season next year, as only one man will be lost through graduation.

SOCCER - 1934

The team opened its season against Slippery Rock and suffered a 5-0 defeat. The next game, against Dickinson, was no more successful, the team returning with a 6-0 defeat. However, Grove City proved a bit more in their class and they held the score down to a 2-1 loss. Slippery Rock returned for another game and this time the 'Gators carried off a 2-0 win, the only one of the season. The final game, against Grove City, resulted in another loss, 7-1. Total results were one victory and four defeats.

BASKETBALL 1934-35

The Allegheny basketball team started the season with the same team used during 1933-34, with the exception of the center position; this, however, was amply filled by new material.

A loss to Youngstown Y.M.C.A., 33-29, gave the season an inauspicious beginning. This was quickly followed by a victory over Clarion, 45-34. Playing a charity game in Erie, the 'Gators lost to Findlay, 47-40 in a hard fought game. Then came a reversal of form and the team beat its two oldest rivals: Grove City, 43-19, and Thiel, 24-23. In the next game, Slippery Rock, one of the strongest teams in the district, defeated the 'Gators, 33-11.

Early in February the team went on the road, with a result of one win, over Fenn, 32-31, and one loss, to Oberlin, 42-21. Then Grove City turned the tables in a return game, winning, 48-31. Slippery Rock again defeated the 'Gators by a score of 42-19. Late in February the team was again on the road. The result was three losses: to Alfred, 40-29, Hobart, 38-31, and Rochester, 35-22.

The most thrilling game of the season was the win over Hamilton, 46-41. This was followed two losing games: to Thiel, 30-28, and to Geneva, 43-18. The 'Gators closed the season with a victory over Alfred, 44-28.

Swimming, a newly inaugurated sport, proved to have the only varsity team able to show more victories than losses. As a result of its fine balance, its good performers in all events, it won five meets and lost only two.

The team opened its season at Case, which has one of the strongest teams in Ohio, backed with experienced swimmers. As was to be expected, Allegheny lost, 49-17. The next week, however, found the team gaining its winning stride which it kept, with one exception, for the rest of the season. They defeated Slippery Rock, 48-27.

After losing to Oberlin, 47-28, their second and last defeat, the Allegheny team won two victories each over Thiel and Grove City; Grove City, 62-13 and 52-23, Thiel, 30-16 and 47-19. In the first meet, Grove City received a minimum number of points.

The prospects for next year are good: only two men from this year's team will be missing, and some of the material that saw little service this year gives promise of developing into point winners.

TRACK - 1935

In the track season of 1935 the 'Gator team took part in four meets: Carnegie Tech, Washington and Jefferson, Grove City, and Clarion Teachers.

With a veteran group of tracksters and several good freshmen the team was well provided with runners. At the beginning of the season the field department was somewhat weak, especially in the weight division, but this was remedied and the team proved to be the best balanced one that Allegheny has put into the field for several years.

Coach Way and Coach Daniels deserve a great deal of credit for the success they have had in rounding out their material. Their attitude has been that of developing men and good sportsmanship, rather than winning teams.

As the seniors are embarking on a new phase of life, so have we embarked on a new venture in this, the KALDRON of 1935, our last participation in the activities of Allegheny College.

We have tried to present a true picture of our life here, to express our appreciation of its value, to show the new seriousness of college students.

May we extend our sincere thanks to every member of the staff for his cooperation, and especially to Mr. Kurt C. Glaubach—not only for his excellent photography, but for his constant interest and enthusiasm which have made our work with this book an enjoyable and a valuable experience.
