March 7, 1932

Dear Mr. Case:

I came in from three days in the country last night and found your letters of March Third and Fourth. This explains the delay in acknowledging.

Will you not thank Mr. Young for his kindness for writing so sympathetically to Mrs. Judd. It is a beautiful letter and will soothe her disappointment. Of course I did not myself see how he could possibly do it.

Thank you for the Typical Day. It is just what I want. I have already covered less effectively certain of the points you make in the manuscript now in the hands of the printer, but I shall have a chance in the proofs for revision.

Much of your manuscript I can work into the final chapter.

Thank you very much indeed.

Very sincerely
