

May 23, 1922

Mr. H. C. Metcalf,
Bureau of Personnel Administration,
17 West 47th St., New York City.

Dear Mr. Metcalf:

Your generous letter of May 12 found me in the country where I went for a piece of urgent work last week. It was very nice of you to write me. I am so glad that you and the class found my talk worth while. It was a fine, serious audience, with just enough challenge in it to prod one up a bit, and I am particularly glad that you should have been pleased, for I realize, I think, something of the fight that you must have been going through in the last few months. I am sure you will win out.

And now as to speaking in your course next year on the topic which you mention - "Goodwill, the Best Business Asset,"- I would like to try it. And of course I am proud to be one of so fine a group as you have secured.

As to the check, I don't know that I ought to keep it; but I am doing so, thinking that you would prefer that I should.

With all good wishes and renewed thanks for your kindness in writing me,

Faithfully yours,