Second Century Campaign is Launched Among Students

Will Announce Results Next Tuesday, May 10

Students Unanimously Adopt 100 Per Cent Slogan for Their Campaign

Unanimously adopting the 100% slogan for subscriptions the student body pledged their enthusiastic support for the Second Century Endowment campaign.

Results of the campaign among the faculty and students which will close next Tuesday will be announced for the first time on that day. This announcement will accompany the public launching of the campaign in Crawford County.

In chapel yesterday morning the campaign was launched among the students by Dr. Hancher, who called upon them to organize themselves in the interest of the new and greater Allegheny. His talk was followed by a demonstration of how publicity is made by Miss Willard. Miss Willard characterized publicity as "the ammunition which will enable you to hit the bull's eye at which you are aiming."

Before the close of the meeting F. W. McCluer announced that individual members of the student body are to make their subscriptions through the fraternities or similar organizations to which they belong. Each fraternity will chose a committee which will handle the subscriptions in that organization. This machinery was decided upon as the most effective at a meeting of the representatives of the various organizations held in the President's office Monday morning.

FIFTY-THREE GET COVETED KEY

Fifty-three Seniors in the University of Nebraska have been awarded the Phi Beta Kappa key. This number constituted one-seventh of the class. Thirty-three of these students are women.

NET MEN WILL MEET GROVE CITY SATURDAY

FIRST TOURNAMENT OF SEASON WILL BE HELD IN MEADVILLE.

With the first collegiate match of the season, with Grove City, only a week distant, Manager Cochran is very desirous of having all elimination matches played off before Friday. This is absolutely necessary as the two winners of the elimination tournament will be fourth and fifth men respectively on the college tennis team. The Grove City racqueters, captained by Bill Rudduck, of basketball fame, are coming up Saturday confident of adding another victory to their long list of athletic successes. Rain has greatly interfered with the progress the net men, but they are determined to beat Grove City at all costs

Stewart and Melcher have not been defeated thus far in the tournament, and they are favored by many to win.

CHESS MEN PLAY SATURDAY.

Saturday afternoon at Cochran Hall the Allegheny and Pitt chess teams clash. This will be the first contest of its kind in the history of Allegheny.

Mrs. F. E. Kirkpatrick, of Butler, better known as Marjorie Roudebush, of the Class of '20, made a visit with friends here.

Dr. Henke delivered a commencement adress in Springboro last week.

"Old Allegheny" Is Comprehensive Book

ALL PHASES OF COLLEGE HISTORY AND ACTIVITIES ARE RECORDED.

In the flowery days of spring, when a young man's fancy turns to thoughts of the object of his affections, loyal sons and daughters of Allegheny pause a moment in their steps in reverence to their Alma Mater. Freshmen and Sophomores admire the beauties of the campus, and mark in their memory the scene of the last class scrap. Juniors feel something a little different, something more reverent, more profound, more geuine. But to the Senior and to the alumnus, it is given to appreciate the full essence of Allegheny College, its tradition, and its lore.

D. M. Stephens, has been all of these, and in his book, "Old Allegheny, A Handbook of Information," he has succeeded in taking these more subtle and intangible qualities and so combining them with the tangible that the effect is startling.

A hurried glance through the book, which comes out this week, is well worth printing here. The book is bound in blue cloth, stamped in gold with an etching of Bentley Hall. It is printed on the best quality of glazed paper, a feature which causes the cuts to show up almost as in photographic reproduction. The first part of the book is devoted to a description of the city of Meadville and a chronology of the important events of Allegheny history.

The second part is devoted to general information and student life and activities. However uninteresting "general information" may sound, one can not apply the generalization to "Old Allegheny." Clubs, fraternities, college stongs, yells, and traditions are given a large section of this part of the book.

Part three is devoted to an historical sketch of the buildings and the campus. The history of each building, from the old log court house to the new gymnasium, is given in chronological order and well illustrated with cuts. Such shades of the past as Culver Hall, Hulings in the cupalo days, and Lake George are interestingly treated, as well as such corners of the campus as the Circle of Pines, the Sundial, and the Ravine.

The World War Register of the college is given. Information pertaining to Alumni, officers of the college, a register of all living Alumni, and a student register form the last feature of the book.

In outlining the book, much detail has been omitted. In the most unexpected places the reader meets some bit of Allegheny tradition or history that has successfully evaded discovery in all other sources that may have been searched. The book fills a real need and makes a contribution to Allegheny College literature.

Y. M. C. A. Continues Its Financial Drive

PLANS LAID FOR NEXT YEAR EMBRACE MANY VARIED ACTIVITIES.

The Y. M. C. A. subscription campaign is still in progress, and will close only when each man in the student body has been personally interviewed. The results for the first drive, which took place in the chapel over a week ago, netted about forty-eight dollars. To date the amount received is about sixty dollars. This amount is hardly satisfactory, representing, as it does, the financial support of over three hundred men. The money given to this organization in such a campaign as is now in progress is the only financial support received.

From this fund the expenses for the annual Y. M.-Y. W. reception, for the charitable Americanization work, and for the Sunday School work are all paid. Moreover, it is very essential to the welfare of the local organization that at least two representatives be sent to the annual officer's training school. This will be held at State College this year, and will cost about twenty-five dollars for each man. To those who derive no more benefit from the Y. M. C. A. than the membership card, it may be said that those cards alone are well worth five dollars to any man who travels at all. By presenting such a card one may save considerable when staying at any Y. M. C. A. in the country. It is hoped by the President that the students will respond to this campaign in such a way that our Y. M. C. A. will be able to carry on its worth-while work. Those who have not yet subscribed and wish to do so, may turn over their check or cash to any one of the following men: G. R. D. Braun, Treasurer; C. H. Neely, J. E Larson, C. T. Boynton, or C. W. Havice.

With an increased attendance of enthusiastic and interested members the Y. M. C. A. started out for another mile-post of success last Wednesday evening. The retiring President, J. O. Russell, gave an interesting summary of the work of the past year, and offered many invaluable

ACTIVE SEASON IN ORATORY NEAR CLOSE

DEBATE WITH MT. UNION AND ORATORICAL CONTEST TO CLOSE YEAR.

With a debating contest at home and at Mt. Union College on May 5, and an oratorical contest at Washington, Pa., May 13, Allegheny will close its debating for the year. This debate will be held under the same rules as the debate with Ohio Wesleyan. The question is, Resolved, That the federal government should own and operate the coal mines in the United States, constitutionality waived. This time, however, Allegheny is to send its affirmative team away, its negative team debating the affirmative team from Mt. Union in the Ford Memorial Chapel. The two teams from Allegheny will have the advantage of previously trying out their arguments in the contest with Ohio Wesleyan.

The second contest is an inter-collegiate oratorical contest to be held at Washington, Pa. The colleges participating are, Colgate, Washington and Jefferson, Allegheny, Wooster, Ohio Wesleyan and the University of Pittsburgh. H. H. Buchanan will represent Allegheny in this contest. Mr. Buchanan, as the winner of the Wakefield Oratorical Contest of the past year, has been chosen for the place. His oration will be "The Crucible."

In this contest, Allegheny will have

Third place in Class D was Allegheny's record at the Penn Relays last Saturday. However, the time for Class D was the fastest of any of the college relays which makes the standing of the Blue and Gold team enviable.

Delaware College won the event in Allegheny's class. The time was 3 minutes, 30 and 2-5 seconds. The City College of New York took second place.

The best time in any other college relay was made by Howard College whose team covered the distance in 3 minutes, 33 2-5 seconds. Allegheny's time was slightly faster than that made by this school.

Although Friday and Saturday were rainy the spectators numbered 20,000 each day, the large bowl being crowded for each day's events. In spite of adverse weather conditions four records were broken during the carnival. W. Bartels, of Pennsylvania, threw the javelin 183 feet ¼ inches, the former record being 162 feet 8 inches.

Other records were broken in the sprints and distance events.

LITERARY SOCIETY CELEBRATES 132D ANNIVERSARY.

Carlisle, May 3.—One of the oldest literary societies in the United States celebrated its 132d anniversary here. It is known as the Union Philosophical Society, one of the literary societies of Dickinson College, and was founded in 1781. Some of the most prominent men of the country have been among its members.

Men Will Vote Again on Constitution Amendments

Small Vote Makes a Second Election Necessary to Decide Issue

Saturday morning there will be another vote taken on whether the proposed amendments to the Senate constitution will be made effective. This second election has been made necessary by the results of the vote taken last Saturday. Out of 196 votes cast there was but one unfavorable one. This fact makes it quite apparent that the student body is quite in favor of the amendments. That the amendments did not pass is due wholly to the fact that students shirked their duty by not voting. To make these amendments effective it is necessary that three-fourths of the men of the student body must vote favorably. This means that no less than 239 men must cast a favorable vote this Saturday. Proxies are accepted but they must reach the office on time. Any person who wishes to become more familiar with the proposed amendments can do so by interviewing any one of the Senators.

Briefly, these amendments are for the purpose of giving each fraternity and non-fraternity organization on the Hill an equal representation. By adopting this new method of electing Senators, all political intrigues will be abolished. Another advantage to be found in these amendments is that no under-classmen will represent the student body. It is quite obvious that Seniors are the most logical men to govern our student body, in that they have had the more experience and have a more broadened point of view in such matters. The amendments have met the hearty approval of the faculty and of all those who have carefully studied the new method of election in contrast to the present system. The members of the Student Senate are making an emphatic appeal that each man cast a vote this coming Saturday morning.

CLUB SCORES IN "QUALITY STREET" PRESENTATION

To crown the success of the dramatic season of Allegheny College, Klee-O-Kleet chose J. M. Barrie's "Quality Street," for their production this year. The play which seemed to have been written around its leading characters enabled the club to claim highest honors in Allegheny's dramatics last night, when they enacted the play in the chapel before a capacity audience.

Both in presentation and in stage equipment, the atmosphere of Quality Street, which might have been most anywhere in London, during the days of the Napoleonic wars, was faithfully reproduced. The costuming was beautiful and delicate in the effect produced. One instinctively thought of lavendar and old lace—the atmosphere was there to that degree of perfection that one felt it rather than saw it. Draperies, pictures and bits of characteristic furniture were correct in every detail, even to the little old spinnett from the Quill Club rooms and the Louis XV ottoman. A blue and gold color scheme was effected by appropriate selection of chairs, rugs and draperies.

The curtain rose on the blue and gold room of the home on Quality Street, London, where the two sisters, Phoebe and Susan lived. There was nothing extraordinanry in the life of the sisters, but romance began to creep into the quaint, simple little parlor on Quality Street when the "dashing Mister Brown" entered the life and the affections of Phoebe. But soon the Napoleonic wars came. Mr. Brown went to war, seemingly forgot the home on Quality Street, and did not return until ten years later. During the absence of Brown, the two sisters were forced to conduct a private school for the children of the street because an investment made at the advice of Brown had resulted in a loss of all their money.

But there came a time when the wars ended and when the, then, Captain Brown returned. He had lost his left hand in battle. He visited the home on Quality Street. Here it was that the best acting of the play began. Miss Phoebe believed that Captain Brown could not love her again because she was rapidly growing aged by care and worry. In a moment of regret for her spent youth, she put on the gown she had selected for her wedding dress and did her hair up as in the days when her life was free from troubles. Captain Brown appeared unexpectedly and in explanation for her appearance, Phoebe was introduced as Miss Livvy,

Ohio Wesleyan Wins Both Ends of Dual Contest

Allegheny Loses Twice on Federal Ownership of Mines Question

On last Friday evening Ohio Wesleyan won a debate from Allegheny. The Ohio team presented the negative side of the question, "Resolved, That the Federal Government should own and operate the coal mines of the United States." The debate was one of the finest ever held in the Ford Memorial Chapel. An unusual amount of earnestness was shown by both sides. The Ohio debaters were conceded to be the most polished in point of delivery. The decision in favor of the negative side was two to one.

The first speaker on the affirmative was M. E. Graham, who made his first point by proving that great profits were made by the coal operators during the past few years, of from eighteen to eight hundred per cent. He showed how this business was conducted on a system of irregularities so that the operators could make great profits. Over 600,000 men have gone on strike because of these unjust practices. Mines shut down in the summer so as to juggle supply and demand. This causes a loss of over twenty percent. of the total number of working days. Mr. Graham proved that enough coal was lost every year in the United States to heat every home in this country for forty years.

The second speaker on the affirmative was E. H. Hickman, who attempted to prove that Government control would eliminate this evil. He also made the points that fair prices and the eradication of labor troubles would be obtained.

Mr. Melcher, the third speaker on the affirmative side, pointed out that Government operation was for service and not for profit; that it would guarantee better wages to the miners and lower prices to the public.

The negative stand was opened by Mr. J. C. Hover, who tried to show that Government ownership means inefficiency and increase of the national debt. He stated that it would destroy individual initiative and all forms of competition. This speaker pointed out that the coal supply of the United States would be exhausted in a very short period of years and that the coal problem was slowly being solved under the present system.

A. D. Rodgers, the second speaker on the negative, wanted to substitute government regulation for government ownership and operation. He also thought that government ownership would be corrupted by politics and that politics would be corrupted by government ownership. This was one of the strongest points made by either side.

G. S. Churchill completed the debate for the negative side. He attempted to show that the United States was not now in a position to pay for the coal mines. He also stated that government control had failed in Germany and in Canada.

Principal A. G. Crane, C. C. Crawford and Principal E. G. Frail, acting as judges, gave a decision in favor of the negative of two to one A vocal duet was given by the Misses Hovis and Perkins, while the judges' decision was being waited. The piano accompaniment was by Miss Mariott.

Allegheny seems to have been particularly unfortunate in selecting this question for debate for the negative team from Allegheny, which went to Ohio Wesleyan, also lost. The debaters on this team were J. O. Russell, J. H. Bozic and W. Carney. The affirmative side of this question presented the greatest difficulties and it seems that Ohio Wesleyan kept its best team at home, a nice bit of psychology

EDITORIAL

Discouraging, indeed, was the outcome of the election held last Saturday on the proposed amendments to the constitution of the Men's Senate. The most unfortunate feature of the polling was, not that the proposal did not carry, but that there were not enough men voted to decide the issue either way.

One is led to believe that student government at Allegheny is a failure since not enough men take an interest in it to cast a deciding vote on proposed amendments to the constitution.

According to the present constitution a three-fourths vote of the men in college is required to carry an amendment. Since there are at present 318 men in the undergraduate department, 229 favorable votes are required to carry the changes proposed. On Saturday there were only 195 affirmative votes cast while but a single voter signified that he was not in favor of making the change.

Since such a result seems to indicate that the student body as a whole favors the proposals the Senate has decided to call another election this Saturday. It is essential for the welfare of the college that the proposal be carried. As has been pointed out numerous times before the Senate has not been able to function properly because it has not been sufficiently representative. The amendments which are to be voted on will do away with this difficulty.

With the additional endowment which this college is to have in the near future it is about to enter upon a new era of educational service and activity. It is only fitting that the organization which represents the men of the college be put on a footing which will be in harmony with the greater and increasing facilities which the institution will be able to provide. Above all, it is necessary that the students show that they have an interest in the increasing efficiency of their Alma Mater.

Are you alive to the possibilities of Allegheny College? Are you loyal to this, your college? If you are, cast your vote at the election Saturday!

With the publicaiton of this issue the present staff of The Campus retires. For the rest of the year the paper will be published by the new staff headed by Mr. Buchanan.

During the three years that the present editor has been connected with The Campus a steady improvement has been possible. This improvement is due in part to the new system under which the publications are managed and in part to the increasing interest and co-operation on the part of the student body.

In this last editorial, our swan song, then, we wish to call attention to the earnest efforts which have been made by Dr. Schultz in bettering the publications of Allegheny. Also, while extending our thanks to the present staff for their loyal and persevering service we wish those who are to take over the work from now on the best of success.

The Campus Staff meets every Friday at 1:15 o'clock in the Campus office in Bentley Hall.

CO-ED'S MORAL CONDUCT NO BOTHER OF COLLEGE DEANS

Chicago, May 4.—Parents whose daughters attend coeducational institutions in Illinois are to receive a circular letter from the women deans telling them they must teach their girls self-reliance, and saying the schools cannot be responsible for their moral conduct.

This was decided on by the deans of women's colleges at a meeting at Northwestern University, where they looked into the co-ed problem from many angles.

Hosiery, thin dresses, toddle dances, bobbed hair and other features that set the modern co-ed apart from her predecessors were discussed, with the general consensus among the deans that, although this is a nervous age, it is a healthful, clean one. Jazz music came in for some criticism, but the criticism was launched at the orchestras which render it rather than the composer who writes it.

Knee skirts and the toddle dance were pronounced healthy and calculated to banish prudery, and the deans decided that hereafter college dances in the state will be unchaperoned, and that self-reliance will be preached morning, noon and night at the girls who come to learn.

"It is a very nervous generation with which we have to deal, but it is a healthy one and we are all optimistic about it," said Dean Ruby Mason, of the University of Illinois, who presided at the conference.—Erie Dispatch.

SENIORS TALK AT Y. W. C. A. MEETING

GIVE NUMEROUS SUGGESTIONS ON MAKING THE MOST OF COLLEGE LIFE.

"Experience is a wise, though brutal teacher," so the Seniors said at a Y. W. C. A. meeting led by Miss Ruth Titus, '21, Sunday evening.

The Misses Helen Millhoff, Anna Jane Walker, and Marjorie Dean gave interesting discussions. From their wider experience these Seniors were able to make many valuable suggestions as to how to make the most of college. A broad outlook on college life as a whole, more time spent in making friends and less wasted in idle talk, religion as a positive, not a negative, force are purposes which if adopted would help to broaden college life.

to compete with the formidable Wooster. Earl Meadows Dunbar will represent Wooster. Mr. Dunbar has won first in the Wooster-Ohio Wesleyan contest, second in the Ohio Valley Oratorical contest held at the University of Wisconsin, and on May 5 he will compete in Fargo, N. D., for the Mid-Western Inter-collegiate championship. Mr. Dunbar is a remarkable speaker and is expected to give the best men there a hard race.

WHAT THE CAMPUS PRINTED 35 YEARS AGO THIS WEEK

We call attention to the description of the wedding of Mr. J. W. Kinnear, '82, with Miss Edith Rich, ex-'83, that appears in the Alumni department. These young people have hosts of friends, both in college and out who wish them God-speed in their venture on the matrimonial sea. The Campus extends congratulations and is glad to regord their happiness.

"The best school of journalism in the world," said Chas. F. Thwing, "is the editorial board of a college paper."

Henry Ward Beecher's average grade at Amherst was but 57 on a scale of 100. "Lives of great men all remind us——," etc.

The Delta Tau Delta goat has been ridden more than any other in college this term. The Delts are good workers, and deserve success.

The following bit of conversation in reference to Mr. Heckel would seem to indicate that he is very popular with the Hall ladies, or at least with some of them: "Oh, hush up! You are everlastingly talking about him."

Thirty Years Ago.

Professor Elliot now rides a new safety wheel, except when it turns the tables.

We noticed several of the Hulings Hall girls standing in front of a pawn shop, on Market street, the other day. We pity the ladies, and we can sympathize with them.

Theta Nu Epsilon has been holding numerous meetings lately. The usual spring initiations will come off soon. Patented lock-burrs have been secured for the wagons.

Rumor whispers that finally something has occurred; that the Sophomore fraternity, Theta Nu Epsilon, has absorbed its youthful rival, Alpha Nu. This is undoubtedly a profitable move both to the college and to the members concerned.

Class fraternities, from their very nature, are in need of close guarding. With an institution of its kind, and a goodly supply of level heads in control there will result great benefit; but with two societies of such character, necessarily bitter rivals, there is continual danger of resort to extreme measures. A dangerous shoal has been piloted by, and safe sailing is a promise of the future.

niece of the sisters. The Captain became infatuated with the young girl because of her resemblance to Phoebe as she appeared before the wars. From here on there were many heartaches and love-pangs, but all pointed toward the inevitable—the winning of Phoebe by Captain Brown.

Much credit is due to Dr. J. R. Schultz and Miss Elma Daw for their faithful and capable direction and supervision of the action and artistic effects of the play.

Playing against this splendid background, Eloise Fink interpreted the role of Miss Phoebe with a sympathy and wealth of feeling that immediately won, and held the audience throughout the play. As a charming young Miss of twenty and as a maiden lady of thirty, threatened with spinsterhood, she was equally pleasing to the audience. Playing opposite her, Helen Shaffer enacted the role of Valentine Brown, reading into her lines all the gallantry and dash of the Napoleonic days. But, however, perfectly Miss Fink and Miss Shaffer played their parts, they could not have created the spirit of the play without a Miss Susan, a part ably supplied by Ruth McLaren.

Grace Runninger, Wilhelmina Traum and Mary Whitfield, as three gossipy old maids, afforded some of the lighter spots of the drama, while Marjorie Lillie starred as a typical housemaid. Clara Weller, Virginia Grinelle and Dorothy Mussler credibly acted their parts.

Mary Barnes, Helen Bowman, Sarah Coulter, Sarah McQuiston, Mary Rankin and Margaret Hild were equally true to life as school children. Sarah McQuiston eliminated enough years of her life to be taken for a quick and mischievous boy of eight and Helen Bowman was a perfect dunce. Mildred Steele and Eleanor Diffin completed the cast.

CLUB DISCUSSES THE "OPEN FORUM"

DR. BEILER HEADS DISCUSSION AT REGULAR MEETING OF ORGANIZATION.

Discussing the "Open Forum," the Thoburn Club spent a profitable hour in the Chapel Oratory on last Thursday afternoon. Following a short business meeting, Dr. Beiler took charge of the discussion and a very interesting talk by him was followed by considerable comment by other members.

The leader cited his own experience in various pastorates, in connection with the proposition at hand. The method which he advanced as the most practicable was that of holding meetings bi-weekly or monthly led by a prominent layman at which any discussion could be engaged in. These discussions, in his own history, were usually of theoretic points with reference to their practical nature. He mentioned some interesting examples of this. Mention was made of places in which the "Open Forum" method had been successfully used.

Track Team Goes to Tech for First Meet

PLAID TEAM IS RUMORED STRONG

ALLEGHENY'S SHOWING CONSIDERED SUPERIOR AT PENNSYLVANIA.

Not only the athletic element, but the entire college is looking forward to the track meet with Carnegie Tech this Saturday, which will take place on the Schenley Oval in Pittsburgh.

Captain Bender has not made definite selection of his team to date. There is quite a little new material to be considered.

It is probable that Bender and Bittner will defend the Blue and the Gold in the hurdle races. Croasmun, Kinney, Bittner and McCreary would be a reasonable selection for the sprints. In the quarter, it seems that Wimmer will run a solo for his Alma Mater, and it looks as though Kirchner will do the same thing when it comes to the mile run. Beattie is a probable candidate for the half. The two mile run will be a strong event for Allegheny with such men as Bacon, Secor and Brevoort to choose from.

There is a great deal of uncertainty concerning the weights, but MacGowan and Cunningham are doing promising work. Miller and Kofford will probably vault for Allegheny, and Miller and Bittner will probably be the strongest broad-jumpers. Crumrine seems to have the high-jump cinched.

Aside from these more stable men, there is the new material to be considered, as well as one or two erratic performers.

Weights, hurdles, and dashes seem to be Allegheny's strongest bets, in fact, anything but first place in these events would hardly be considered by the old Blue and Gold.

OBERAMMERGAN TO REVIVE PASSION PLAY.

Peasants of Oberammergan are preparing to revive the world-famed Passion Play. Food shortage, due to crop failure and war conditions, led to postponement in 1920, the regular time for portrayal of the crucifixion story.

DR. NORTH PREACHES AT SUNDAY SERVICES

IMPRESSIVE SERMON IS DELIVERED TO SMALL CONGREGATION IN CHAPEL.

The Chapel speaker on Sunday morning was the Rev. Frank Mason North, D.D., a member of the Board of Foreign Missions of the M. E. Church, and a man who for several years has had much to do with shaping the policies of the church. Dr. North was the author of the hymn, "Where Cross the Crowded Ways of Life." Mrs. Arthur V .Leberman sang the offertory solo, "Open the Gates of the Temple."

"The Secret of the welfare of the world," said Dr. North, "is lodged neither in politics, nor in armaments, nor in the satisfactory adjustment of land claims among the various nations of the world; rather, in those people who have the kingdom of God in their hearts." The purpose and plan of God cannot be expressed without spiritual and moral virtues.

"Life is an investment with all kinds of opportunities where training is very valuable. Man invests in intellectual processes and discussions to gain profit. If man sees limitations to his investments, a glance upward and outward will reveal realms of new opportunities. The college man can train his mind and body, discipline his disposition, develop personal power and character. The application of the personality of Jesus is what can change the world of today, into the kingdom of Jesus."

Y. M. C. A. CONTINUES DRIVE

suggestions which make for success. Mr. Russell told what the Y. M. C. A. means and has meant to him. He expressed the belief that this organization has meant a great deal to the men in other years, and that it should mean even more to the men from now on In concluding his remarks he offered his co-operation to the incoming cabinet, which he thought had been wisely selected.

When President Neely assumed charge of the meeting, he congratulated the out-going officers on their work, and enumerated some of the things which they had accomplished. Before beginning to outline the new programme, Mr. Neely thanked the members for their confidence in him. He made it very emphatic that nothing could be accomplished without their aid and co-operation, and asked that they would offer suggestions and criticisms at all times for the good of the organization.

The schedule for the year is a well-rounded one, and will be found very interesting and profitable. Each month there will be a special speaker with a special message. No reasonable expense will be spared in securing such speakers, and they will be well worth the attention of every man in school. Informal discussions of wide-awake topics will also feature the meetings. The topic of discussion for a particular meeting will be announced in the previous chapel service. Music will take no small part of the meetings, and special musical numbers will be featured from time to time. The dominant characteristic of all meetings, regardless of the programme, will be their brevity and to-the-point style.

One important change has been made. The meetings will begin promptly at seven o'clock, instead of at six forty-five as formerly. This change will give the men more time for dinner, and will make it much more convenient for all concerned.

KISS FOOTBALL PLAYERS.

Ten thousand enthusiastic fans invaded the football field after a game between the French and English Co-eds, and insisted upon kissing the footballettes.

The English girls insist that ten thousand men against twenty-two girls is a handicap slightly too large, and declare that no future matches will be held unless a force of police is on hand to keep the admirers out.

But the French girls have not objected,—in fact, they seemed to enjoy it.—Cincinnati University News.

"Where did you get these El Cabbiagios, George?"

"Harry sent them up from Havana."

"He sure knows the ropes down there, doesn't he?"—Puppet.
