Allegheny Singers leaving Bentley Hall for Johnstown, first stop of tour.

TRAVEL BY SPECIAL BUS ON SEVEN DAY TOUR TO ATLANTIC SEACOAST

FAMOUS CHOIR DIRECTED BY PROF.
MORTEN J. LUVAAS

Large Audience Hears Chorus in Atlantic
City Municipal Auditorium

The Allegheny Singers will arrive in Meadville in the early hours of tomorrow morning, completing an extended tour of seven days through the East. Their itinerary took them through Johnstown, Harrisburg, Gettysburg, Atlantic City, Philadelphia, and several smaller cities. The schedule included concerts in high schools, churches, hotels, as well as several radio broadcasts.

"Our schedule is being carried out to perfection," states a dispatch dated May 8 from the special correspondent of "The Campus", on tour with the Allegheny Singers. "The concerts are going very smoothly, and we are being very well received by exceptionally large audiences. This morning we sang before a meeting of about five thousand people in the Atlantic City Auditorium at which Bishop Hughes of the Chicago area of Methodist churches was the speaker.

"Last evening, Saturday, we gave a half-hour concert at the Hotel Jefferson, where the men on the trip are living, and we just now have finished a concert at the Hotel Madison, where the women of the Singers have their headquarters. From here we proceed to the Hotel Morton opposite the Steel Pier."

Rapid Rise to Fame
The Singers, who are under the direction of Prof. Morten J. Luvaas, are rapidly establishing a reputation as one of the finest "a capella" choirs in the United States. Since their organization slightly more than a year ago they have sung before audiences whose numbers total high in the thousands. Their speedy rise to a position of national recognition has been due very largely to the energy and ability of their director, Professor Luvaas.

To Arrive Here Tomorrow
On Monday evening the group was scheduled to sing at the anniversary meeting of the Educational Board of the General Methodist Convention at the Municipal Auditorium, after which they were to enroute for Philadelphia, where Monday night was to be spent. The following day, according to schedule, was spent at Gettysburg and other points of interest en route to Carlisle, Penna., where a concert was arranged at the Second Presbyterian Church. This morning the bus was to transport the group from Carlisle to New Castle, where they will appear tonight in a concert given under the auspices of the Methodist Union. Immediately afterward, the schedule provides for departure for Meadville, and it is reported that the trip will conclude at 2 A. M. Thursday morning with a final serenade before Hulings Hall.

The "high spot" of the entire tour was reached at Atlantic City, where the General Methodist Conference is being held. Delegates from the four corners of the earth filled the mammoth Municipal Auditorium to capacity at each concert of the Singers. At the Anniversary Meeting of the Educational Board an audience of nearly 40,000 people heard the choir. At that time Dr. Henry H. Crane and President James L. McConaughy of Wesleyan University, Middletown, Conn., appeared on the program with the Singers.

"SENIOR SUPERLATIVES" AROUSE MUCH INTEREST

Balloting resulting in the application of certain titles to several members of the class of '32 commanded the attention of the members of the student body during Friday and Saturday of last week. Over three hundred ballots were cast in the "Senior Superlative" election sponsored by The Campus, and a great deal of interest was displayed by the student body in naming seniors for the more desirable titles.

Due to the fact that most students did not choose to make selections for the rather derogatory titles and that the voting for those titles was too small to be an accurate expression of the opinions of the students, The Campus decided not to publish the names of the seniors to whom these were applied. Every other title, however, was closely contested, many times only a few votes separating the winner and the runner-up.

The event evidently proved very interesting to the students, and The Campus took pleasure in providing the opportunity for making the selections.

Following are the "superlatives" and the seniors to whom they have been applied:

Handsome Man—Homer E. Moody.
Most Beautiful Woman—Marian Sleeman.
Most Popular Man—Robert Garbark.
Most Popular Woman—Winifred Ober.
Best Dressed Man—Homer E. Moody.
Best Dressed Woman—Marian Sleeman.
Man Most Likely to Succeed—Harmon H. Gilbert.
Woman Most Likely to Succeed—Claire Rodkey.
Best Dancer (Man)—Homer E. Moody.
Best Dancer (Woman)—Genevieve Bock.
Most Ambitious Man—Paul B. Cares.
Most Ambitious Woman—Isabel Stamm.
Wittiest Man—John M. Underwood.
Wittiest Woman—Lois Husk.
Most Collegiate Man—Karl K. Smock.
Most Collegiate Woman—Georgia Buckham.
It is believed that the success of this first election will insure its being repeated as an annual custom.

PRES. W. P. TOLLEY WAS MADE LIBERAL ARTS HEAD

Five Colleges Represented at Second Annual Convention Here.

Faculties of five colleges were represented at the second annual meeting of the Association of Liberal Arts Colleges of Northwestern Pennsylvania, which was held here Saturday, May 7. The schools represented were: Grove City, Geneva College, Westminster College, Thiel College, and Allegheny College.

In the opening session, which began at 3:45 in Ford Memorial Chapel, two addresses were delivered: one by Prof. Frederick G. Henke, secretary of the Association; the second by Prof. Walter B. Jones, of the University of Pittsburgh. Dr. Wier C. Ketter, President of the Association, spoke briefly on the purpose of the organization and of its founding.

Professor Henke, choosing the theme of the conference as his subject, spoke on the "The Improvement of College Training", approaching the discussion from three angles—that of the professor, that of the student, and that of the administration. The Liberal Arts College, in order to attain its purpose, must promote a complete understanding between the student and the professor, he said. There is a tendency, in the modern school, for instructors to become self-adequate, thus failing to link the work of their departments with that of other branches of learning. In addition, they sometimes devote too much time to the development of the higher grade student.

In the student there are two types of shortages—that of fast reading ability and the knowledge of when and where to study. The third phase of the question—that of administration—has its problems also. There are the considerations of faculty meetings, scientific experimentation and research, libraries, and educational gatherings.

Professor Henke closed his address by enumerating solutions which have been tried in these three fields, and the practicability of their results.

Prof. W. B. Jones, the second speaker of the afternoon, used as his subject, "The Work of the Educational Records and Research Bureau", and explained that the organization functions in a two-fold capacity of educational research and research fellowships. In the first function, the bureau has divided the school life of the average student into two parts—the period from the 7th to 12th grades, and the undergraduate days. Tests have been made over a number of years to ascertain the progress of each scholar. In regard to the educational research fellowships, work is done on an annual contract basis, under the guidance of the bureau staff. The address was continued on page 4.

Four Freshmen Men Will Compete For Oratorical Prizes

Plans for the Philo-Franklin Oration Contest, to be held in the Playshop Theatre, Arter Hall, on Tuesday, May 17, are rapidly nearing completion with four freshmen having submitted their names as entrants. Those who have signified to Professor H. R. Anderson their intention to enter include: Charles Bartberger, John Corcoran, Earl Green, and Norman Olson.

With no stipulation in the rules as to the subject on which the orations are to be based, the contest next week will offer a diversified program. Charles Bartberger will speak upon "God Turns Scientist"; Earl Green will speak on "Pull"; John Corcoran's subject will be "Eyes That Cannot See"; and Norman Olson will use as his subject "Quo Vadimus?" To the winner, the Forum will present a prize of $25, while the man presenting the second best oration will receive an award of $10.

The contest was inaugurated three years ago with remarkable success. Last year Paul R. Smith won the first award, and Cecil Bartholomew the second prize. The prize money comes from a permanent endowment which was secured by the old Philo-Franklin Literary Society before its dissolution.

FRESHMAN DEBATERS ENGAGE GROVE CITY

Six of Allegheny's freshmen participated last night, in the second annual dual debate with Grove City College. The question discussed was "Resolved that Capitalism as a system, of economic organization is unsound in principle." No decision was rendered.

Earl Green, Wesley Miller, and John Corcoran defended the negative side of the question in the Playshop Theatre, while Harold Rowe, Charles Bartberger, and Norman Olson traveled to Grove City to support the affirmative.

The contest last night was the sole debate scheduled for the freshmen, and since that one contest was handled so well, their season must be considered successful.

The freshman team has been invited to the Delta Sigma Rho banquet to be given tomorrow evening. At that time, individual awards will be presented to the men in recognition of their work throughout the year.

An intelligence test at the College of the City of New York shows that students in campus activities have a higher intelligence than those not so engaged, although their grades are lower.

PROF. LEE LECTURES ON EINSTEIN THEORY

Prof. Richard E. Lee, head of the Chemistry Department, attended the spring meeting of the Ohio section of the American Chemical Society, held in Akron, Ohio, last Thursday evening. There, by request, Professor Lee delivered a lecture on the "Foundations of Relativity." Because of Professor Lee's knowledge of the Einstein theory, climaxed by his work at the California Institute of Technology last spring, he is considered the foremost lecturer and authority in this section of the country on matters pertaining to relativity. As a result he has received numerous requests to lecture on the theory but has been obliged to refuse many of them because of time required to pursue his duties at Allegheny.

COLLEGE TREASURER AT OHIO MEETING

Mr. Dana B. Reed, treasurer of the College, attended a meeting of the Ohio Association of College Treasurers at Kent, Ohio, held on Wednesday and Thursday of last week. Important matters concerning the college treasury were discussed at the meeting.

Directors at Oxford once voted against putting baths in the men's dormitory because the students were there only eight months of the year.

JOHN C. FISHER MADE NEW YEARBOOK CHIEF

John C. Fisher, '33, has been appointed Editor of the Kaldron, according to an announcement made public today by Prof. Hurst R. Anderson, faculty adviser, and John M. Underwood, '32, the present editor.

Mr. Fisher has had a very active journalistic career at Allegheny, serving as a member of the Editorial Board of "The Campus" and as a department editor of The Kaldron during the past year.

The new editor will assume his duties next fall, and the 1933 edition of The Kaldron will be published under his direction.

ALLEGHENY PROFESSOR HONORED AT CORNELL

Dale E. Thomas, associate professor of biology at Allegheny, on leave for graduate work at Cornell University, was elected to the Cornell chapter of Sigma Xi, national honorary society which gives recognition for outstanding scientific research.

Announcement of the election of members to the Cornell University chapter of Sigma Xi was made Saturday by Howard B. Adelmann, secretary of the chapter.

Wellesly officials have decreed that all students must buy their cigarettes from the college. This is an effort to increase the endowment fund.

THE INTERFRATERNITY COUNCIL.

With last week's information that new members had been elected to the Interfraternity Council the student body was suddenly reminded that such an organization was in existence, and that like many other organizations on the Allegheny campus it was performing only its biological function of perpetuating its species.

The Interfraternity Council began its existence with the opportunity of becoming a potent agent in Allegheny fraternity life. Its organization gave promise of satisfying one of the greatest needs of the College. It began with very sincere purpose and with duties to perform which were entirely its own, but its accomplishments, we are forced to admit, are rather negligible.

At the very inception the Council failed to do the one thing which was essential to its reputation and its very existence. Its first step should have been to build confidence in itself among the fraternity men, which could have been accomplished most expediently by rendering certain small but noticeable services which would have brought it to the attention of the student body. Instead the Council drifted into the habit of holding meetings at irregular intervals. These meetings degenerated into nothing more than "hash" sessions with little or no action taken. The most important problem confronting Allegheny fraternities at the present time, that of rushing, was practically neglected during the entire year.

It is with profound regret that The Campus expresses itself thus against the Interfraternity Council, for it realizes that in a college where fraternities play such an outstanding role in the daily life of the student as they do at Allegheny the Interfraternity Council should occupy a most conspicuous and active position. We hope, with the student body, that it will quickly renew its activity on a more sound basis, and The Campus pledges its whole-hearted support to any effort to bring about this revival.

PROF. HENKE WOULD MAKE DRASTIC CHANGES

Would Require Master's Degree for Permanent Certificate.

More extensive preparation for secondary teachers was advocated in Prof. Frederick G. Henke's report to the Association of College Presidents of Pennsylvania at their meeting on April 27, at Harrisburg, Pa.

The recommendations, which were treated briefly in last week's issue of The Campus, included an increase of three hours in the present requirements for a provisional college certificate, and the possible requirement of a Master's degree for a permanent college certificate.

As president of the Association of Liberal Arts Colleges of Pennsylvania, Professor Henke recommended the increases in requirements for teachers' certificates.

Prof. Henke's report follows in part: "The colleges represented desire to retain the certification privileges as now exercised; that is, that teachers be granted the provisional certification on graduation from college.

"It is recommended that the number of semester hours of strictly professional work required for provisional certification be eighteen in addition to general psychology, which shall be a prerequisite for educational psychology.

"Relative to the details of the undergraduate professional requirements for the provisional certificate in the field of secondary education, the association recommends the following:
(a) Introduction to Teaching—to include, if possible, minimum of ten hours in observation under the guidance of the Department of Education of the college in which the student is registered—3 semester hours.

(b) Educational Psychology—General Psychology is a prerequisite—3 semester hours.

(c) Principles of Education or Educational Sociology—2 or 3 semester hours.

(d) Practice Teaching—a minimum of 120 hours, of which 30 hours are to be actual teaching, with the remaining 90 hours distributed among group conferences, observation and participation—6 semester hours.

(e) Electives in Education selected from the list offered in "Certification of Teachers," Bulletin No. 2, The Teacher Bureau, December, 1928—3 or 4 semester hours.

(Three semester hours, if three credits are to be obtained in either Principles of Education or Educational Psychology; or four semester hours, if the student has two credits.)

"On the completion of the above professional requirements and appropriate subject matter requirements, the candidate will be granted a provisional college certificate good for five years.

"The Association recommends the following two plans relative to the permanent college certificate, giving preference to the first.

"Plan 1. The permanent college certificate shall be based on the Master's degree, which shall include a minimum of twelve semester hours in education, twelve semester hours in one content subject or field, and six semester hours either in Education or in the above mentioned subject or field.

"Plan 2. The permanent college certificate shall be based on thirty semester hours of graduate work distributed as follows: fifteen semester hours of content, nine semester hours of education of advanced nature in professional courses, and six semester hours of electives in either (or both) of the above fields."

The Campus wishes to join with the student body in expressing its sincerest sympathy to Mr. Warren Bugbee on the recent death of his uncle, Mr. Harry Webster Hughes of Meadville.

It is with sincere regret and sympathy that the student body learns of the recent death of Mr. Otis Carpenter, Sr., of Meadville, father of Mr. Otis R. Carpenter, a member of the Allegheny faculty.

STUDENTS MAKE GOOD SHOWING IN CARNEGIES

Miss Katherine Milhoff Scores Heavily in General Culture Examinations.

The general culture tests of the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching, taken by Allegheny students on Tuesday and Wednesday of last week, show that the college students as a group have made very satisfactory progress during the last two years. These Carnegie examinations are given to practically all the colleges within the state. The results of the English tests have not yet been compiled, and are not included in the following statistics on the general culture test which covered the fields of science, foreign literature, fine arts, and history and social studies.

The present senior class made a definite, measurable, and statistically significant gain over their 1930 tests, raising their average 56.38 in the two intervening years. The class averages progress in definite steps from the freshman class through the senior group.

*N—Number of students taking tests.

The Foundation's rating of Allegheny College will not be known until some time during the summer months.

The following fraternity and sorority figures show that the averages of the fraternity and sorority groups are essentially the same as those of the non-fraternity and non-sorority. There is a noticeable difference between the average score of the women and the men, favoring the men by 20.05 points.

The list of the 14 highest students in the college in the general culture test shows that no particular department has a monopoly of the high scores. Five students scored over 600, but Katherine Milhoff was the only student to pass the 700 mark.

Five other colleges will also be represented. They are: Colgate University, Western Reserve University, Albion College, College of Wooster, and Ohio Wesleyan University.

There will be one speaker from each school, and his oration may be on any question concerning modern economic, social or political life. Mr. Olson will use as his subject, "The Merry-Go-Round Has Stopped," an analysis of the psychological changes that accompany the present economical conditions.

At 8:00 o'clock the contest will take place in the Playshop Theatre. The orations will be judged by the faculty representatives of the League, each judging all speakers but the one from his own school. Allegheny College, as this year's host, will provide the prizes of $30 and $20.

THE result of exhaustive wind-tunnel tests of conventional trolley car models revealed that at speeds of 70 and 80 miles per hour, 70 per cent of the total power was consumed in overcoming air resistance. Streamlining saves approximately 20 per cent of the power.

When the Philadelphia and Western Railway Company decided to replace its cars with faster and more efficient equipment, it chose "electric bullets"—new streamlined cars—each powered by 4 G-E 100-hp. motors. The cars, constructed of aluminum alloy, with tapered noses and tails, are much lighter in weight and capable of greater operating efficiency.

In developing transportation apparatus, college-trained General Electric engineers have conducted extensive tests to improve operating conditions. On land, on sea, and in the air, to-day's equipment is safer, swifter, more dependable, and more comfortable.

New Athletic Coach Makes Preliminary Training Contacts

Allegheny's new football mentor is losing no time in getting things organized for the coming season. Coach Tippin has called a meeting of all football candidates for Tuesday night, May 17th, in Alden Hall at 7:00 o'clock.

At the first meeting Coach Tippin will talk over plans for next season with his prospective cohorts. He will outline briefly some steps and phases of work upon which most emphasis will be placed in building the '32 edition of Allegheny gridders. Obviously coaches differ in the way in which they develop football teams, and Tippin, realizing this, will set forth his policy so that training will begin promptly next fall without the problem of adjustment between the coach and his men.

On Wednesday, the following night, the football group will assemble again, this time on Montgomery Field at 7:00 o'clock. The program for that evening will feature the new rules which will be demonstrated and discussed. Tippin has made a thorough study of the new rules since their introduction and undoubtedly he should have something to offer regarding the recently adopted regulations. This spring Tippin has gathered some first hand experience on the matter by having the Meadville High School gridders play several games under the new rules. The squad will also enter into elementary phases of the work with stress laid upon fundamentals. Nothing has tentatively been planned for any meetings after this, although Tippin will in all probability assemble the squad several times more this spring to talk things over.

MUSHBALL SCHEDULE ARRANGED FOR WEEK

Postponements due to the many social activities of this month, and adverse weather conditions have caused a setback in the schedule of intramural mushball. However, games are scheduled for nearly every night this week, and despite the many interruptions no appreciable amount of enthusiasm has been lacking.

Schedule for this week: Wednesday, the Sigs versus the Chi Rhos; Thursday, the Phi Gams against the Phi Deltas; Friday, the Beta Kappas and the Phi Psis; Monday, B. U.'s against the Sigs; and Tuesday, the B. U.'s versus the B. K.'s.

Result of games played:

Chi Rhos	3
Phi Psis	9
B. U.	0
S. A. E.	12
B. K.	4

LEAGUE B

TRACK MEET POSTPONED

A postponement of the Interfraternity track meet until May 23, 24, and 25 was announced by the athletic department last week. Due to various difficulties the dates of the meet have been changed twice.

By the time of the above date varsity track will have been terminated for the season, and the intramural meet will come in for more consideration and interest both from the students and the athletic department. Weather conditions should also be much more favorable than at the previously set dates. Another advantage is that the entrants are now afforded ample time for training and conditioning, a factor which should go far in raising the standard of the competition.

Thus the meet will be the final act on this year's intramurals. Interest will be sustained until the plaque is awarded instead of fading out in the middle of the spring.

At Colgate the students decided that the admission price at a nearby theatre was too high so they unanimously decided to boycott the movie house. Needless to say the boycott was short lived and the matinee price was reduced to twenty-five cents and the evening price to thirty-five cents. *Alleghenians please note.

Track Men Prepare to Compete at W.-J. Friday Afternoon

Leaving Meadville tomorrow, the Allegheny trackmen will embark for Washington, Pa., where they will contest the Washington and Jefferson outfit on the following day, Friday the 13th. It is the Alligator's second meet of the season and although they were repulsed by Oberlin in the opening meet, hopes are high that the Blue and Gold will come out on top.

The Gator squad has had almost two weeks of rest from competition, although workouts have been unusually strenuous in the last several days. Trials in most of the running events were held last week, while trials in the field events were begun Monday. From these trials men will be selected for the trip. Every man on the squad will be available for action—another factor which will make the Gators' slight favorites against the Presidents. However, remembering the top-heavy score by which the Alleghenians triumphed over the Red and Black last year, W. and J. will undoubtedly fight hard to gain revenge, so that a close struggle is anticipated.

AN ANCIENT LAW

An ancient law still on the books of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania applies to the act of kissing one's husband or spouse on Sunday. The law reads, "If a man shall kiss his spouse on the Lord's Day, commonly called the Sabbath, or a woman shall kiss her husband on the Lord's Day, commonly called the Sabbath, then they shall each be guilty of a felony and sentenced by a magistrate or a Judge to spend a period of three days in the county house of correction."

HARVARD WANTS DREAMS

The psychology department at Harvard has requested all people dreaming about the Lindbergh baby to report their dreams to the clinic there.—F. and M. Student Weekly.

In line with Harvard's move in abolishing Yale locks from its dormitories it won't be long until Vassar puts a ban on Smith cough drops and Yale takes drastic action against the Harvard classics.

THIS AND THAT

As another school year rolls around to a close we look back to see what progress has been made in the nine months of campus activity. In a year that has been of a revolutionary nature—changes in college administration and the like—we find that less important improvements are sometimes unobserved. We must not overlook the unusual progress that has taken place in Allegheny's intramural athletic program.

Until a few years ago intramural sports at Allegheny were practically non-existent. True, there was a certain amount of competition between the fraternity groups in some sports, but as a whole nothing was properly supervised. Systematized intramural athletics were not really inaugurated at Allegheny until two years ago when Mr. Way took over the management of the athletic department. He promptly proceeded to work out a program that threw a good percentage of the male students into competition.

This year even more events have been added to Allegheny's rapidly growing intramural athletic system. Boxing and wrestling were added and as a result came Intramural Night, an outstanding success. Almost every common sport in which students can conveniently participate has a place on the intramural calendar. But the significant fact is that the program is still in the building. Obviously several years of experience will be necessary before a standard list of competitive sports will be determined.

Bethune-Cookman College is seeking to obtain through gifts from friends of Negro education all over the world sufficient funds to enable it to remain open for the rest of the term. Ten thousand dollars are needed before the end of May. Its financial problems are greatly complicated, however, by the fact that many students arrive at the college with no means of self support, depending upon the school to provide jobs by which they may earn their living expenses.

Students who live in fraternity houses at Marquette University must have their names and characteristics listed with the police.

Dr. Skinner Aids in Foundation of Health Association

Dr. Skinner attended a convention of college health officials held at State College on Saturday, May 7. The purpose of the meeting which was called by Dr. J. P. Ritenour, director of the College Health Service at Penn State College, was to consider the advisability of organizing a Pennsylvania section of the American Student Health Association.

Although many colleges were not represented, it was unanimously agreed that a Pennsylvania section should be formed with Dr. Ritenour of State College as president, and Dr. Bull of Lehigh University as secretary-treasurer.

Western Pennsylvania was represented at Saturday's meeting by Pennsylvania College for Women, Carnegie Tech, Slippery Rock, and Allegheny.

A fine program was presented, featuring Dr. Dean Smiley of Cornell University, President of the Association. Dr. A. O. DeWeese of Kent State College, Secretary-Treasurer of the Ohio Association, Mr. Arthur M. Dewees, Executive Secretary of the Pennsylvania Tuberculosis Society, and Dr. B. Moore Campbell, Director of the Bureau of Communicable Diseases, Harrisburg, Pa.

Following the program the representatives were shown Penn State College's new 21-bed hospital and a large dispensary, both with the finest of equipment and staffed by two full time physicians, eight trained nurses, and a record clerk.

The Association was organized in 1920. Ohio has been the most active in student health work.

It is hoped that student health service in Pennsylvania may be greatly improved through the newly formed Pennsylvania Section.

JUDGE FRED G. BALE

fair trial, he continued, pointing to the fact that practically all the newspapers have attacked the amendment from its outset. The speaker said that he was inclined to agree with Sinclair who said of Prohibition at the conclusion of his story, The Wet Parade, "Let's try it."

The most ardent wet does not want to restore the regime of the saloon, said Judge Bale, and yet this is exactly what the abolishment of the 18th amendment will mean.

The advancement of civilization depends on education—upon Christian education—said the Judge in closing. Christian education has taken a forward step in Prohibition, and it must not change its stand unless some better Christian plan is presented.

When introduced by Dr. Woodring and asked to say a few words to students, Dr. Albert Bushnell Hart, beginning with a humorous story, spoke briefly of Washington, commenting on the famous general's ability as a writer.

'THE CAMPUS' REVIEWS 'THE JEALOUS WIFE'

The Allegheny Student Playshop is fast accumulating a tradition of fine productions which are a joy to the seasoned playgoer, who, warmed to reminiscence by a delightful evening's performance, loves to recall past triumphs over a midnight cup of coffee. Since its opening three years ago, The Playshop has maintained a high standard of excellence almost without exception in the field of amateur dramatics. Whether it be Shakespeare or Shaw, Colman or Kelly, or Barrie or Dane, the lover of the theater has come to see, he has gone away with satisfaction and delight.

But for the lover of the eighteenth century and the student of the history of the drama, this season has been a rich one. The traveling London company's rollicking presentation of Gay's Beggar's Opera was a unique experience for a Meadville audience. It is a real tribute, then to Miss Spalding that she should place confidence in her students to risk the inevitable comparison with this professional performance, and undertake to present another eighteenth century play. If the Londoners took away the laurels with them last February, last Saturday night The Playshop brought them back in triumph and placed them at their director's feet. Miss Spalding— and this took courage—did not rely upon Goldsmith and Sheridan for the contest, but, instead, undertook George Colman's little known but none the less delightful comedy, The Jealous Wife, or, The Folly of Idle Suspicions. While Colman may lack some of the sparkling wit of Sheridan and the keen sense of dramatic suspense which Goldsmith possessed, as manager of the Drury Lane Theatre, he knew the pitfall of so much dramatic writing of his time, and wrote a play which deserves the popularity it has had, even when compared with The School for Scandal and She Stoops to Conquer.

In presenting The Jealous Wife, The Playshop was successful in every one of the tasks it faced with such an undertaking. I say it was successful throughout because it refused to dampen the true spirit of the eighteenth century manner in which it was given by any technical difficulties that might be involved. In the first place, the play was skillfully cut and shortened, without allowing plot or characters to suffer in any way. In the second place, the settings were admirably contrived so that little time was lost and the vis comica did not lose its contagion in long and restless intermissions. In this respect, The Playshop rivalled its performance of Much Ado About Nothing. From the declamation of the Prologue to the apologetic pleadings of the Epilogue (and she could have charmed us for an hour!) the play moved swiftly and gallily to its riotous conclusion. In the third place, the sets were all we had hoped for and more. They were authentic and colorful, serving as admirable background for the costuming. Here again The Playshop had to work strenuously to outdo the beauty of the sets in Arms and the Man. If Harriot ran away from her irate father, Squire Russet, with an amazing trunk-load of gowns, Mrs. Clive never looked lovelier in her distress than did Miss Merwin. Miss Lindsey is to be congratulated upon her designing, and the humble seamstresses, the Misses Ashe, Dalley and Evans, for executing them so splendidly.

It is always a delightful anticipation the seasoned patron enjoys (though he may share some of the director's trepidations) to see what the newcomers on the stage of The Playshop Theatre will do under Miss Spalding's direction. The poor Oaklys, Miss Miller and Mr. Smith, were a joy! Every gesture and line revealed their sad plight, and the final scene was the ridiculous fruition of all their distresses for which they had so skillfully prepared themselves. Mr. Clarke as Sir Harry didn't smell quite enough of the stable, but his striding exits and halloing of hunting terms made up for all that. Even the servants, newcomers too, admirably supported the spirit of the play.

But, of course, it is the familiar faces that bring sure delight. Mr. Shindlecker, as Tom the stable-boy, was a happy re-appearance of the poor, half-frozen cabin-boy of the Ile. Though we had only a fleeting glimpse of Miss Holman as the chambermaid, we rejoice that she has recovered from her "molluscy." And we rejoiced, too, to see Mr. Shaw and Mr. Murray rescued from the stupidities of an overgrown one-act play. Like the Oaklys, Russet was never better than in the final scene; and Mr. Shaw, essaying the role of the sentimental Charles, successfully avoided all irritating mannerisms that the unflinching amateur so often falls into in such a part. His heroic declamation of the Prologue would have set Miss Cecilia all a-flutter. Major Oakly was so reassuring, and Mr. Elliott was a most inspiring model for bachelorhood, though he should be wisely advised against the wobble of poor Charles' knees and Mrs. O's temper (and, as poor Tom Meggot, speak from experience).

Captain O'Cutler, the blundering Irishman, was a real stroke of characterization for Colman, and Mr. Boetcker did him full justice. His bellowing and swash-buckling, his patched eye and scarred cheek, made us come home to Smollett with new delight. Mr. Carlson has never failed in a character part,

TOLLEY MADE HEAD

vantages of such a fellowship are the intensive study of a pressing problem which is conducted under some scientific procedure, and the benefit to the institution which comes from intensive graduate study in company with students at work on similar problems.

W. P. Tolley Named President
At the close of Professor Jones' address, a short business meeting was held. At this time, Pres. W. P. Tolley was elected President of the organization for the forthcoming year. Prof. H. G. Gebert, of Thiel College, was elected secretary. The association then adjourned to Arter Hall for departmental conferences.

At 6:30, a banquet was held in Cochran Hall. Ex-President Ketler acted as Toastmaster, and President Tolley delivered the address of welcome. Following this, President Tolley gave a critical discussion of the place of the small arts colleges among other institutions of learning. Twenty years ago, it seemed almost inevitable that the small college would be crushed between the large universities and the junior college. Now, the small college is able to train the student for the position of wage-earner, teach him the proper use of leisure time, and develop him as a future citizen. In addition, there is a tendency on the part of the large school to become liberal, thus making the position of the small college more secure. To offset this, however, there is danger of becoming smug, the question of libraries and the salaries of instructors. "On the whole, however, the present situation is much brighter for the liberal arts college of small size," said Pres. Tolley.

In the final address of the meeting, President R. Galbreath, of Westminster College, drew from his personal experiences in Europe, and gave a valuation of some of the sights the traveler will see there. He dwelt particularly on the annual pageant which is given by the British army. Last year, scenes depicting the various battles in which the British had been engaged from the conquest of the Romans to the World War were enacted. The view from the hills about Jerusalem, although a scene of an entirely different nature, also impressed Pres. Galbreath. The fact that it was the place in which Christ had suffered, made the territory sacred to him.

At the close of the meeting Pres. Ketter thanked the faculty and administration of Allegheny for the preparations which had made the success of the assembly possible, and extended an invitation for the group to meet at Grove City next year.

whether comic or tragic, and if Colman made the part a bit farcical, Lord Tricket was the top he was, and like Sir Harry and the Captain, every exit was perfect. Miss Merwin, who first won our heart as the dream-child in Dear Brutus, was never more perfectly cast and beautifully arrayed than as the wilting Harriot. Pamela and Clarissa were flesh and blood after all. And, as for Lady Free love, well, no one has better than Miss Slacum the knowledge of the value of every gesture, of every phrase, of every dramatic possibility in her part. That she should speak the Epilogue fittingly concludes the triumph achieved by her and her companions.

You may not remember me, Miss Spalding, but back in the days of Dick Steele and The Spectator papers, I, trying to be another Major Oakly, found myself in an abominable predicament with the Freemans, who quarreled like the Oaklys; but, unlike Mr. Spectator, you and Mr. Colman have dissolved my difficulties in the laughter at your Jealous Wife, and I beg to remain

Your most humble servant,
TOM MEGGOT.
