

March 24, 1923

Mr. Robert Lincoln,
Washington, D.C.

My dear Mr. Lincoln:

I am taking the liberty of sending you the first chapters of a piece of Lincoln work which is now appearing serially in a group of newspapers, and which next year will be published, with necessary corrections and revisions, in book form by Harper Brothers.

In these first chapters I have attempted to reproduce from documentary sources the life of your ancestors in this country. I hope that you may find the chapters worth your attention.

I am expecting to be seen in Washington. May I come to see you? It will give me great pleasure, and I hope not be a fatigue to you.

Very sincerely yours,