C/o Mrs Taylor

Dear Miss Tarbell,

What do you think about me. I am ashamed of myself for not having written to you sooner.

You will forgive me n'est-ce-pas! Knowing that I think of you very often and that I wish to hear ~~hear~~ about you as soon as possible.

As you know we have been in the West for two months and often, we have spent the autumn in the country, state of New York, and have been very busy with the little house — then we have come back to New York, where we are settled now —

I hope not succeeded for a situation in a school. On the other hand I have made up my mind to stay at Mrs Taylor as long as she will want me for Carlotta. I am as well as possible here We are accustomed to each other by now and I have a quiet, peaceful life as I like it. So everything is well and settled. Of course it is not what I wished - but life is like that: you must take it as it comes.

The little house of Mrs Taylor at Wellport is very old and full charm and I simply love it so I have enjoyed writing the story of this very particular little home and I would like you to read it. It is in French but I am going to translate it in English and I make the dream to see it in an English magazine — You dear Miss Tarbell who knows the world of the editors perhaps, you would be able to do something for my history; it has been done specially to show how much a French woman appreciate America in certain ways.

I wrote it with enthusiasm and truth.

I hope you are well and in good health. Did you receive my Christmas greetings? I love you, dear Miss Tarbell and I would be too happy to see you.

Mrs et Mr Du Bois from the Monday are there, in New York. They are very well.

I suppose you have known the illness of Mrs Jacocci and of the little Ned. They are perfectly well by now.

Hoping to hear about you and to see you soon I am chère Mademoiselle Tarbell votre bien affectionnée.

Marie Hélène.
