Horne To Take Over As Lit Mag's Editor

On the recommendation of the Publication Board, the ASG approved Bill Horne as the editor for the Literary Magazine next year. Bill, a history major from Hicksville, L.I., New York, has been on the Literary Magazine staff for the past two years. He has also participated in intramural tennis.

Speaking of his plans for next year, Bill said, "The first thing which anyone appointed to an office generally feels dutybound to do is to sing the praises of his successor. On this case, it is a relief to be able to carol with clear conscience. Wilma Harmon, operating under the shadow of the lingering spirit of a defunct and discredited Allegheny Magazine, has turned in a performance which few could have surpassed. She has given unstintingly of her time, patience and advice; and the result may be seen in the upcoming crop of individuals, mainly in the freshman and sophomore classes, for whom the magazine is something more than the glorified debating society of past years. The college, and particularly those connected with the Mag, are greatly in her debt.

"In past years I have been exposed a great many times to criticism of the magazine: that nobody understands it but those who write it. Generally it has been my impression that this masterpiece of profundity originated with people who had never even bothered to pick up their copy. There is, however, a grain of truth in the statement. We have often been too clannish. Too often have staff members complained about 'reducing themselves to the common level of ignorance' Quite frankly, if a writer can do nothing else, he should at least be capable of communicating with his audience. A person cannot enjoy what he cannot understand. Writers are by nature egotists, given to placing their own opinions before everyone else's. But a writer without an audience is a fish out of water, and a magazine which goes unread is better dispensed with. I trust that in the next year we shall be troubled with neither problem."

New Men Resident Counselors Named

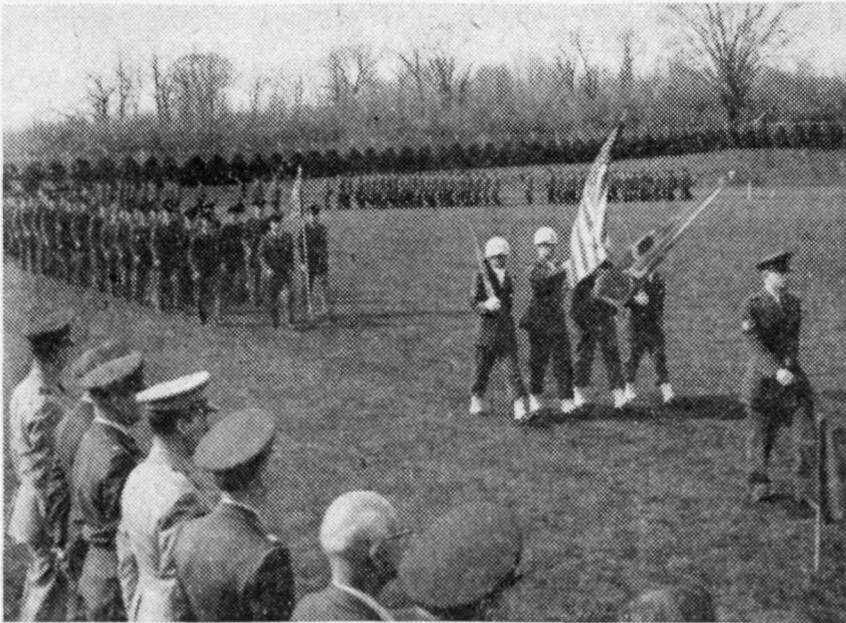

The new resident counselors for the year 1959-1960, who will serve as advisors to the freshman boys, have been chosen. They are as follows: Richard Borrison, Bill Coon, Ed David, Herbert Dyer, Dick Fulton, Dean McFall, Ron Maslo, Paul Reslink, Paul Telfer, Bob Van Handel and John Wible. Glenn Nellis and Gary Bergh are tentative candidates.

Alternates selected are: Ralph Dorman, Bill Faber, and Cliff Stranberg. Pete Elias, Dave McKay and Dick Butcher and possibly Dave Bowdie, present counselors, will be retained.

The newly elected counselors must go through a training program in which they are confronted with case study material and human relations problems which they must solve. Counseling techniques

Wolf To Be Crowned By Last Year's Queen; Weekend Features Fashions, Floats, Banquet, Dance, Tea

Ten queens will make up the May Court this year. Sue Wolf, a senior, will be the 1959 May Queen. Sue has been both Homecoming Queen and Military Ball Queen this year and the Junior Charm Queen at last year's May Day. Norma Flinchbaugh will be the maid of honor, while Jean Haarbye, Susan Coates, Joan McDonald, and Malinda Hunt will be senior attendants. Charm Queens are junior Donna Stevens, sophomore Debora Barbieri, and freshman Mary Anne Graulich. The queen will be crowned by Martha Hart, last year's May Queen.

This afternoon the Court will model at a fashion show entitled "Long Hot Summer" in Brooks dining room. The clothes have been donated by the Mayfair Shoppe of Meadville.

The coronation will take place on the lawn in front of Bentley at 2:00 tomorrow. Assisting will be flower girls Natasha Cooper and Elizabeth Ann Lynn. After the coronation there will be entertainment in honor of the queen and her court. At 3:00 the girls will mount the floats for the parade about town. Class queens will ride on the class floats while the attendants and maid of honor will grace the floats of the social groups.

Later that afternoon they will sit on the platform at the May Day banquet, and at the formal dance in the evening they will again be honored.

On Sunday afternoon the Court will be guests at the Phi Delta Lawn Party with the theme "Teahouse of the August Moon." Here entertainment will include singers Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority and Phi Delta Theta fraternity — winners of the Greek Sing — as well as Choti Rider, soloist.

Physics Teachers Ass'n To Hold Meeting Here

The Spring meeting of the Western Pennsylvania section of the American Association of Physics Teachers is being held tomorrow in Wilcox Hall.

Some 50 professors and industrial scientists are expected to attend the morning and afternoon sessions. Arrangements for the meeting are being handled by Dr. Richard L. Brown and William H. Michener of Allegheny's physics department.

Newman Club Elects Kraemer As Prexy

At elections for Newman Club held last Sunday, May 3, Paul Kraemer was elected President and Fred Ernst, vice-president. Also elected were Bob Quinn, treasurer, and Posy and Jean Bates, recording and corresponding secretaries, respectively.

A banquet honoring the new officers will be held at the Cottage May 16.

The May day queen and her court will be presented by Dave Tippet preceding the intermission. The dance will be held in Brooks Hall from 9:00 to 1:00. Students and faculty are all invited.

Array Of Broadway Shows Highlights Mayday Along With Singers Concert

Float Parade Route

At 3:00 tomorrow afternoon in Brooks Circle a parade of nine floats will begin its journey. Themes of the floats are "Carousel," "Showboat," "Flower Drum Song," "Finnean's Rainbow," "Damn Yankees," "The King and I," "South Pacific," "Up in Central Park," and "Oklahoma." Floats will be judged on originality and adherence to the theme.

From Brooks the parade will proceed down Park Avenue to Walnut Street, West on Walnut to Water Street, down Water to Chestnut Street, up Chestnut to the Diamond, and back to the campus.

Grill Party

Tonight in the Grill there will be an informal "Hernando's Hideaway" party. Refreshments will be served and entertainment will be provided by the Innocents and Maida Marsh. Everyone is invited to come stag or drag between 9 and 12.

Singers Concert

Back from their recent tour, the Allegheny Singers will present a public concert on Sunday at 4:00 in Ford Chapel. Under the direction of Dr. Luvaas, the Singers will feature songs from their tour and records.

May Day Dance

"Broadway and Times Square" is the theme for tomorrow night's May Day Formal. Decorations characteristic of Broadway night life will lend an enjoyable atmosphere to an evening of dancing to the music of Dick Ford and his orchestra.

Last Monday night the women students met in the chapel. This was known as an AWS mass meeting. However, this year's spring meeting was unlike the lengthy ones held in the past in that it lasted for only one hour and five minutes. This fact might not appear to be particularly significant unless one realizes the amount of business which was transacted. Not only were the new officers installed and some outgoing officers' reports given, but constitution revision was also acted upon.

We hesitate to say that the reason all went so smoothly was because of disinterest among the students; rather we hope it was due to the efforts of the senate representatives who presented many of the proposed changes to their respective sections weeks before the mass meeting took place.

We will not continue by praising the efforts of an "unsung hero" (or heroine if you prefer) because we feel to many it would appear to be a farcical treatment of an area which has been the target of many caustic attacks. This is unfortunate in that so many times we fail to realize the worth and purpose of organizations such as this.

It is gratifying to know that some people do not believe AWS stands for Allegheny Without Sex and that Brooks as a brothel is not desirable. We feel there is much to be gained in realizing the purpose of AWS as it was presented at the Monday night meeting: responsibility to ourselves, to the college, and to each other.

We would like to take this opportunity to commend Kiki for her work during the past year. It is our sincere hope that Robin will have the cooperation of the students because she has the foresight and vision necessary for leadership and is willing to work for a continuing, strong Associated Women Students.

A NOTE TO CLASS-CUTTERS

It comes to our attention that May Day Weekend is not, in essence, a national holiday. Therefore, if anyone is not in his class tomorrow, which incidentally will probably be held at the same time and place in spite of the many preparations for floats, etc., his absence will be counted as another cut unless excused.

Scholar Discusses Lincoln Biographers

by Ellen McKee

Mr. David Mearns, chief of the manuscript division of the Library of Congress and author of several books and monographs on Lincoln, spoke in Henderson Auditorium last Saturday. His topic, "Engrafted Angel," dealt with some of the biographers that have furthered the Lincoln legend. The speech was in honor of the Sesquicentennial Year commemorating the birth of Abraham Lincoln.

Mr. Mearns began by describing the opening of the Sesquicentennial Year by Carl Sandberg in an address to Congress. Mr. Sandburg, 81, is considered to be a leading authority on Lincoln. Congress gave Mr. Sandburg's speech a great ovation which, Mr. Mearns pointed out, was only fitting for the spirit of Lincoln because "a nation is known by its heroes."

Carl Sandburg and Ida Tarbell, Mr. Mearns felt, have brought the Lincoln story closer to more people than any other authors. Sandburg used Tarbell's work as a source for much of his work. In the introduction to The Prairie Years he praised her as a researcher and said he was indebted to Miss Tarbell's "wisdom and integrity."

Miss Tarbell, an alumnus of Allegheny, was not the first woman to write a biography of Lincoln. She was preceded by Mrs. Phebe Ann Coffin Hanaford of Nantucket, Mass. Mrs. Hanaford was a dynamic woman, becoming the first woman pastor of the Universalist Church to exchange pulpits with her son, officiate at her daughter's wedding, and officiate at a New England Legislature. Much affected by the death of Lincoln, Mrs. Hanaford composed a hymn in his honor and at the suggestion of a Methodist Minister undertook a biography called Lincoln — His Life and Works. This was not a very original or profound book, but it was popular and helped to further the Lincoln legend.

After describing this first woman biographer of Lincoln, Mr. Mearns generalized — "Each generation will have its own Lincoln." Through the years and by the works of numerous biographers the legend of Lincoln has grown, and in the process the characteristics of an angel have been grafted onto the character of Lincoln as a man. Nevertheless, Mr. Mearns felt the story of Lincoln will keep on growing, offering something new for each Lincoln student.

Letters . . .

To the Editor:

With an artistry unmatched by anything seen on this campus in recent years, one of our lesser-known and insufficiently-appreciated activities came forward last week to disprove many of the allegations commonly levelled at Allegheny students.

It is all too frequently charged that students here are unimaginative conformists, disinterested in culture, insensitive to course work beyond the immediately impending exam, and utterly incapable of being impressed by "the finer things of life."

For one group of students, at least, such assertions have now been clearly exposed as calumny by the Orchestral show of 1959. Using material from G5, adapted in ways which prove they understood and appreciated it, this group of women students, ably assisted by talented men, blended poetry with dance, music with light, clever staging with imaginative choreography to present a highly sensitive interpretation of the American Civil War in an artistic totality of a very high order.

The Allegheny community should be grateful not only for the delight which the performance gave to all who saw it, but also for this refreshing reassurance that imagination, ingenuity, diligence, and sensitivity are strong among us still. Any college whose students can conceive, organize, and produce so stunningly artistic a performance has much of which it can be vigorously proud.

Very truly yours,

To the Editor:

As you may be aware, early this week the imaginative idea of one of Allegheny's trustees was presented to the student body. He suggested that Allegheny close its doors for a day in the fall and that the entire student body migrate to Pittsburgh to visit its industries, thus making businessmen aware of the existence and worth of our college. The purpose of the visit would be to encourage Pittsburgh to contribute to our development fund.

As Chairman of the Independents, I am especially interested in appealing for support to the independents, but I would also hope my remarks would have meaning for the rest of the college community.

Why should Allegheny's students support this project?

1. It would be a lot of fun.
 2. It's free. The plans include the bus trip and meals.
 3. Assignments and classes would be called off for the day.
- But more important:
4. Allegheny could benefit to the tune of $2,000,000.
 5. The publicity such a unique move would receive would undoubtedly boost Allegheny's prestige.

Because we need the wholehearted support of every student to carry out this idea, I must know how you, as Independents, feel. Please let your Independent representatives know if they can vouch for your support. See Mike Bavar, Richard Butcher, Tonda Taylor or myself by next Tuesday.

Sincerely,
Lynne Moore

Students, Faculty Show Interest In Independent Study Proposal

by Robin Biggs, Chairman of Independent Study Subcommittee
Editor's Note: This is the second in a series of articles by members of the Academic Committee concerning the intellectual attitude on campus.

Both students and faculty members are interested in increased independent study despite the impossibility of immediate expansion into an honors program, a recent survey conducted by the Independent Study Subcommittee indicated.

Formed last fall for the purpose of determining student and faculty interest in independent work, the committee also explored the possibility of expansion of the present program into one similar to Swathmore's — concentration in the junior and seniors years on a limited and integrated field of studies.

To gauge student interest, a questionnaire was sent to approximately 75 members of the Dean's List, second semester, academic year 1957-1958. This group was selected because the committee felt it would provide a good cross-section of those qualified to do independent work. To evaluate faculty interest as well as departmental potential for independent work, questionnaires were sent to faculty members, excluding the physical education and ROTC departments. In addition several faculty members were interviewed.

Of the approximately 75 people given the questionnaire at registration, 48 returned them. The return was lowered by the rush to complete registration. Of these, 75% expressed an interest in doing independent work, while 96% felt capable of handling research on their own under faculty guidance. Only 27% of the upperclassmen had taken advantage of the independent program available in their department, and reasons cited by the 73% who had not were no desire, no time, and unawareness of availability. The unawareness of availability seems an important factor in not doing independent work, since 69% of these Dean's List students said that such work had not been recommended to them by their faculty advisors or department heads. Of interest is the fact that 65% are interested in doing independent work outside their field, a tribute to the liberal arts tradition.

While these results are not completely valid because many majors are not represented or are represented only by one questionnaire, the high (75%) interest is undeniable.

Interest among the faculty was just as certain. 90% felt that their department had the facilities and potential for independent study.

Of the thirty-one faculty members returning the questionnaire, 52% felt their department staff was adequate to handle some additional students doing such work, but 51% stated that any expansion of the present program would be impossible without additional faculty, financial support and administration planning.

84% were willing to devote time to guiding independent work, and 95% felt their students capable of such study within their departments. 71% felt students interest in such work had been indicated in the department, and 71% were willing to accept students from other fields for independent study with certain requirements. 52% thought that requiring independent work aside from a comprehensive would have merit for students, and 45% expressed the desire of Allegheny's expanding into a program similar to Swathmore's sometime in the future.

While approving in general of an increased amount of independent work, the faculty indicated some reservation as to the calibre of work resulting from such study and some questioning of student ability to carry out a project without "prodding". As one professor put it:

"Mustn't the academic tone of the student body adjust to such demands as are made by individual study? Where intellectual curiosity and endeavor are suspect, encouragement and support for individual study will not be forthcoming."

Boots And Saddles Sponsors Horse Show

On Sunday, May 17 at 12:30 p.m., the Allegheny College Horse Show will be held at Crawford County Fair Grounds. There will be over 300 entries, including members of the Boots and Saddles Riding Club and riders from Ohio, Pennsylvania and New York. Performance of riders and horses will be judged on the Inter-County point system.

The show, which is sponsored by the Boots and Saddles Club, has been an annual event for the past four years. There will be 20 classes, with a $2.00 entry fee for each class. To help cover costs, a $5.00 general admission fee for spectators will be charged.

Co-chairmen of the affair are Nancy Burton and Edward Penn. The announcer will be Milton Nodler and the Ringmaster will be Leon Weikal.

ACF Panel Discusses Code Of Behavior

by Jackie Kovacevic

"Is there a campus code of behavior?" This was the question put before Dr. John Wolf of the Unitarian Church, Dr. Charles Ketcham, Miss Yvonne Reed, and Mr. Harry Blaney, as they shared in a panel discussion before a group of twenty-five ACF members on Sunday evening.

Dr. Ketcham opened the discussion by pointing out the three aspects of such a question.

1. One's relationship with others
2. One's personal integrity
3. The direction in which we are all moving

The question, as Dr. Wolf phrased it, was "what ethic?" He pointed out that the college student, as he enters college, takes on a new sophisticated way of life, and as he does, finds his old mores and gods dead or damaged. He must find new ones.

Miss Reed also pointed this out as a college dilemma but said that the big thing was that the question of direction becomes important to one's integrity. She asked also where we might look to determine the right direction, and she felt that such direction could not be entirely found on the campus.

"Did the old gods die because of their inadequacy or because we really didn't understand them enough to have them stand up to other values or other people without values?" This was the basic train of thought pursued by Mr. Blaney. He pointed out that we do not have understanding and often put up finite gods painted in our own image — gods which we order around. "We cannot, however, command a living God to be dead," said Mr. Blaney.

When asked where we could find direction, Dr. Wolf cited the scholarship on campus as a source as well as the New Testament.

Upon pursuing this line of thought, Dr. Wolf stated that he felt there were no "guts at Allegheny — no radicals."

The rest of the evening was spent on the problem of the inertness of the students here. A number of reasons were suggested for this lack of "guts."

1. One needs to produce those grades for the record and doesn't find time for anything else.
2. Parents often regard college as the last fling and do not press responsibility on their offspring.
3. It was felt that the faculty has not only become more conservative but that the administration has become more repressive.
4. Some felt that the Christian

Mr. Robinson To Be Group Leader For Experiment In International Living

John K. Robinson, graduate of Allegheny College in 1951 with a B.A. degree and currently assistant professor of languages, has been appointed group leader to Italy for the 1959 summer program of The Experiment in International Living, Gordon Boyce, president, announced recently from the United States headquarters in Putney, Vermont.

Graduating from Allegheny College with honors in French, Robinson spent his junior year abroad studying at the Sorbonne and the summer of '51 in Germany serving as a volunteer with the American Friends Service Committee. In '53 he earned his M.A. degree from Columbia University, and the year '55-'56 he was awarded a Fulbright scholarship for dissertation research at the University of Turin. Presently he has just completed requirements for his doctorate at Columbia.

A three-time leader of Experiment groups abroad, Robinson first led to France in 1949 and 1955 and to Italy in 1958.

"With his experiences in living abroad, his enthusiasm for promoting international understanding and his teaching background," Miss Susan Fleisher, program associate of The Experiment, said, "we feel that Mr. Robinson possesses the qualities we look for in our Experiment leadership program."

Mr. Robinson will be taking part in a program involving some 1400 young people, aged 16-35, who are going abroad this summer with The Experiment to gain firsthand knowledge of another country's customs and culture at the person-to-person level.

Chosen because of their knowledge of the country, proven leadership ability and interest in international understanding, Experiment leaders act as friends and advisors in helping the ten members of their groups adjust successfully to life in another country.

A pioneer in the field of international education, The Experiment is an independent, nonprofit organization maintaining offices in 28 countries with its United States headquarters in Putney, Vermont. Founded by Donald B. Watt, who originated the idea of homestays as an educational tool, the Experiment program includes an individual family living experience in every phase of its annual program. Now in its 28th year, The Experiment has enrolled over 10,000 people, aged 16-35 as participants in its programs, sending them to live in communities on five continents.

Experimenters spent their first month abroad living as members of separate families, and the second month exploring the country visited in the company of the young people of their host families. A visit to a city such as Paris or London is a part of the summer's experience, and opportunity for a few days of independent travel is provided for those who qualify.

The Experiment administers four programs: Outboard (U.S.-to-other countries); Incoming (other countries-to-the U.S.); the Community

Academic Honesty Policy Stated For Clarification

This statement of college policy is being sent out not because of any pressing situation but simply to avoid confusion or misunderstanding on the part of any students and thus avert the unfortunate consequences that would be involved. In spite of efforts of instructors to clarify matters of academic honesty, there has always been some lack of uniformity and some confusion not only on the part of freshmen but of upperclassmen as well. The college believes a clear and uniform statement will be valuable and helpful. This statement is an effort to clarify the responsibility of the student with respect to intellectual honesty. Faithfulness to the ideas of liberal education compels the Faculty and the Student Government of the College to be concerned that all Allegheny students have respect for intellectual integrity. Although an individual instructor may have his own requirements about the specific forms for acknowledgement of assistance received by an individual, the principle of intellectual honesty remains the same within the limits not only of Allegheny College, but also of the world at large. To this principle the College subscribes wholeheartedly, and the penalties attached to violations are severe, not from vindictiveness, but from a sense of loyalty to truth.

STATEMENT Conduct: Examinations

The purpose of a test or examination is to determine an individual's knowledge of a subject and his ability to use the knowledge intelligently. To rely in any way upon or to furnish unauthorized assistance is dishonest.

Conduct: Preparation of Essay, Term Papers and Laboratory Reports

The purpose of an essay or term paper is to develop a student's ability to think clearly about a subject and to express his ideas fluently. The purpose of a laboratory report is to develop a student's ability to record observed phenomena and to interpret them correctly. If a student perverts these purposes by receiving unacknowledged assistance, either from another person or from some written source, he is guilty of plagiarism. To avoid any suspicion of such dishonesty, a student should acknowledge any work not his own (i.e., language, ideas, diagrams, charts, etc., which are not original must be properly documented.) In general, each instructor who assigns a paper or report will advise his student as to the style they are to follow for footnote and bibliographical documentation. What ever style is followed, these rules must be observed.

1. Any sequence of words appearing in a student essay and not original with the student should be enclosed in quotation marks, and its source identified fully and accurately in a footnote or in the text. Note that quotation marks are necessary. Great care must be taken that quoted matter be quoted accurately.

2. A paraphrase should not be enclosed in quotation marks but should be marked with an asterisk or a footnote number, and the source should be given in a footnote.

3. An interpretation based upon a book or other source of information must be identified in a footnote or bibliographical note.

4. No work submitted for one course may be submitted also for credit in another course except with the explicit approval of both instructors.

The Consequences of Dishonesty

A student who has been dishonest in his academic work is asked to appear before the College Court. The Court attempts to judge each student individually and fix a fair penalty for each offence; the maximum penalty is dismissal from college. In fairness to the ideals of the College, to generations of students who have observed them, and to those who presently do so, the Court must act with resolution. A student who violates the precepts of intellectual honesty must be prepared to accept the consequences, not only as imposed by the Court, but by his own conscience.

Sinfonietta, Chapel Choir Present Annual Spring Concert May 13

The Allegheny Sinfonietta and the Allegheny Chapel Choir will present their annual spring concert at Meadville Area Senior High School auditorium on Wednesday, May 13, 1959, at 8:15 p.m.

The program will be highlighted by the presentation of excerpts from the musical narration, "Alice In Wonderland," with the Choir providing accompaniment for dancers of the Arita Lee Dance Studios of Meadville.

Dr. Herbert Neurath, conductor of the Sinfonietta, has chosen a varied program of musical selection. They include: Vivaldi's Concerto in F Major, opus 3, no. 9 with solo violins and cello. Violinists are Gale Scholes, Alice Rhinesmith, Michael Godfrey, and Virginia Frye. Celloist is Sue Rhinesmith. Handel's suite from "The Faithful Shepherd," arranged by Sir Thomas Beecham, will be performed by the full orchestra. The Sinfonietta recently received favorable press reports concerning its previous performances of the season in the area.

The music which the Chapel Choir will perform is "... Contemporary yet tuneful ..." to quote the director of the choir, W. S. Wright North. The choir's repertoire is "Darest Thou Now O Soul," "Arise, My Love," "By the Waters of Babylon," "Young Joseph" and the "Alice In Wonderland" Medley.

Transportation will be provided for those so desiring it. The bus will leave the College in front of Cochran Hall at 7:45, and the cost is 25 cents.

Allegheny Grad., Cervone, Composer Of Concert Song

by Jane Hile

The beautiful words from the Book of Solomon will be musically presented in the performance of "Arise, My Love", by D. Donald Cervone when the Allegheny College Chapel Choir in conjunction with the Sinfonietta presents their musical concert on May 15, 1959, at 8:15 p.m. in the Meadville Area Senior High School auditorium.

The composer, D. Donald Cervone, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel D. Cervone of Kennedy Hill Road, Meadville, Pa.

Mr. Cervone graduated from Meadville High School in 1950 and attended Allegheny College from 1950-1952. He graduated from Eastman School of Music in 1955 with a Bachelor of Music in composition and theory. He received his Master of Music in composition at the University of Illinois.

He recently won first prize in the Choral Composition Contest of Religious Art Festival sponsored by the Central Presbyterian Church.

This will be the first performance of his number, "Arise, My Love," in this area.

Loshbaugh Designs Concert Costumes For Chapel Choir

by Jane Hile

If one would have poked his head into the costume shop of the Allegheny Playshop, he would have seen ten to fifteen girls busy making lobster, snail and whiting heads and lobster claws.

After the initial shock, one would have realized that these ambitious girls were members of the Allegheny Chapel Choir who were making costumes for their Medley of songs from the musical narrative "Alice In Wonderland."

Dancers from the Arita Lee Dance

Studios will provide interpretation for the musical medley.

The main problem confronting the designing of the costumes was getting lightness yet durability in the costumes and headgear.

Concerning the costume designing, Mr. Loshbaugh added, "In the theater, we are always looking for new ways of doing things and techniques developed into something that may be very useful in future costuming."

THINKLISH

English: NEARSIGHTED PROFESSOR

Thinklish translation: This fellow has so many degrees, he looks like a thermometer. He's so myopic, he needs glasses to view things with alarm. Though quite the man of letters, the only ones he favors are L.S./M.F.T. "I take a dim view of other brands," he says. "Give me the honest taste of a Lucky Strike!" We see this chap as a sort of squintellectual (but remarkably farsighted when it comes to cigarettes).

HOW TO MAKE $25

Take a word—television, for example. With it, you can make commercial TV (sellevision), loud TV (yellevision), bad TV (smellevision) and good TV (swellevision). That's Thinklish—and it's that easy! We're paying $25 for the Thinklish words judged best—your check is itching to go! Send your words to Lucky Strike, Box 67A, Mt. Vernon, New York. The basic screening of all candidates was started in March, with personal interviews of all applicants

Dr. Wharton concluded by saying that, "... We should like to thank everyone concerned for his interest. Selections were difficult to make because so many people that were able to fill the position applied."
