VOL. XX No. 14. MEADVILLE, PA., JANUARY 20, 1904. NEW SERIES.

ONE MORE VICTORY

Allegheny Defeats Marietta in Hard and Fast Game, and Shows Championship Speed.

The Allegheny College basket ball team last Friday evening won the second game of the season by defeating the Marietta College team by the score of 28-11. The game was fast and clean, there being but seven fouls called during the entire game. The visiting team played pluckily to the end and it was not until near the close of the game that the home team felt themselves on solid footing.

Friday evening's program presented a pleasant novelty in the way of a preliminary game between the second team and a team picked from town players. The game was rather fast and served as a good introduction to the spirit of the game following. The second team put up a good game inasmuch as its practice has been limited. This was very evident in the manner in which they handled the ball. The picked team failed to get into the game and the second team had it much its own way during the entire contest. The collegians had a lead of six points in the first half, the score being 10-4. The second half terminated equally as favorable for the second team. The final score was 20-5.

Friday evening's game was a pleasant contest from the spectators' view. The game was clean and fast and never was lagging in interest. The playing of the evening was interspersed with brilliant work and some shooting that was little short of phenominal. A pleasing feature of the game and one highly appreciated by the spectators was the work of the officials. Although interested parties were concerned, the decisions were just.

The work of the home team showed a decided improvement over the game of the previous week. Each man was in prime condition and handled the ball in excellent shape. At but one stage of the game did the team seem to play a little carelessly. That was near the close of the second half when Marietta scored two goals because of the home team's loose guarding. Instead of the long, doubtful passes which characterized the game with Hiram, short, quick passing was used with telling effect against Marietta. At one or two stages of the game the visitors seemed to lose the ball, so fast was Allegheny's passing.

The Marietta team put up a strong, steady game for the most part. Their record of last season would do honor to the score book of any college. Many teams in southern Ohio went down to defeat before their aggressive playing. On Thursday evening, the evening just previous to the Allegheny game, Marietta played Geneva in a fast and by no means one-sided game. The visiting team was placed at a handicap by the poor floor on which they played.

The game was called at 8:30 p. ., and the score list was headed by Grassle of the Marietta team. For some time the ball was played in Allegheny's territory, however, without serious danger to its goal. Finally the ball was secured by the home team and in some quick team work the ball was passed to Turner who easily caged the ball. At this stage of the game the contest became intensely interesting and good plays were roundly cheered. McArthur secured the next goal. This was quickly followed by one by Neel. Turner scored three additional goals in the first half and Scott also secured one to his credit. The score now stood 11-8 in Allegheny's favor. The playing of this half was the fastest seen on the local floor for some time.

The second half was of even better work that the first. The men shot more accurately and played well in other respects. Comfort was the score maker of this half, securing four. The team work was even more manifest in this stage of the game than in the previous one. Some of the passing could not be improved upon. Several times goals were scored on single passes from center. Turner made a brilliant play during this half by blocking an out-of-bounds ball and dropped it into the basket before he could be stopped by his guard. There was a marked difference in the two teams' goal shooting. Most of Allegheny's score was made from positions close to the basket. Marietta on the other hand, secured many of her goals from longer shots.

The guarding of Lewis and McArthur was a feature of the game. Van Slyke was in the game for the first time during the first half and put up a good game at guard. Haas's passing was the cause of much applause.

Gymnastic Work.

New Men Reporting and Classes in Operation—More Apparatus Soon to Arrive.

The gymnasium work under the direction of Prof. Lewis has opened for the winter term very auspiciously. Nearly all of the new students have been enrolled and the classes are larger than ever before. Prof. Lewis reports that great interest is being taken in the work.

The new equipment purchased with the proceeds of the gymnasium exhibition will arrive this week. It includes a new striking bag, vaulting standards, traveling rings and other apparatus necessary to the furnishing of an up-to-date gymnasium. Thus this very important branch of the college will be fully up to the standard of the other departments.

The outlook for track athletics is very bright. There are a number of new candidates in the field for the track team that look promising. The new men that are out for the relay team especially look good. From them and from the old runners Allegheny should pick a team that will worthily represent her in the spring meet at Philadelphia.

Basket Ball Player Hurt.

Albert Comfort, Allegheny's Center, Receives Bad Fall—Will be Out Again Soon.

Albert W. Comfort, the Allegheny basket-ball center, received a severe accident Monday afternoon in the gymnasium. In the basket-ball practice Comfort in some way lost his balance and fell heavily, striking on his head and back. In an unconscious condition he was at once taken to his room in the Phi Psi House and Dr. Gamble was hastily summoned. The doctor advised his removal to the City Hospital where he was taken Monday evening.

It was given out Tuesday from the hospital that Comfort had passed a good night and was resting easy. His back has received a severe wrench and though his head is badly bruised the doctors do not fear there is any concussion of the brain. In all probability he will be out again this week.

Dr. Gilmore's Lecture.

Talk on "Korea" Given Under Auspices of Mission Study Class—Followed by Reception.

Our Mission Study Class gave its annual reception Saturday evening last at 7:30 o'clock. It was a success in every particular and reflects great credit on the committee of arrangements.

The feature of the evening was the lecture by Dr. Gilmore, of the Unitarian Theological Seminary. With the timely subject on which he spoke, Korea, Dr. Gilmore showed himself throughly acquainted, as well he might be, having spent some time in the land with special opportunities to study its people.

The leader of the class, Dr. Smith, introduced the speaker in appropriate language, and the interest of the audience was enhanced when he stated that Dr. Gilmore had been sent to Korea as representative of the United States on the Committee of Education to form the Royal College in the capital of the country.

Dr. Gilmore's lecture in part was as follows:

"Korea's importance in the East is because of its strategic position with reference to Japan. The power that controls Korea can drive an arrow, so to speak, into Japan.

"This country has two or three special claims on our interest. It has been rightly called the Hermit Nation. Up to 1876 all foreigners were strictly excluded. Shipwrecked sailors, however, were taken in and treated kindly though never permitted to leave the country. The first authentic account of the country we have from some Dutchman, who having been shipwrecked there, finally managed to escape to Holland.

"The second interest is that just now Korea is the focus of all eyes, being the bone of contention between Russia and Japan.

"Again, in the years I was there no foreigners stood so high in favor as Americans. When I arrived there I found that the American ministers stood first in favor with the people. They realize that the United States has no selfish interests in Asia; therefore any counsels we may give are regarded as entirely disinterested.

The People.

"First as to outward appearance. Most stories that come back to us tell of a people gigantic in physique. This is in comparison with the Japs who we all realize are of low stature. The average height of the men is 5 feet 8, of the women 5 feet 2. They are not so strong as they look. The Koreans are a rice eating people, and consequently lack the tensity of muscle that meat-eaters have. In an ordinary field of labor one of our men equals three or four of them.

"The women are seldom seen abroad.

Disposition.

"The Koreans are kind, considerate, courteous. Not an overt action came within my observation or that of any of my associates while I was in the country. The people have a great love for home. They are, in fact, the Swiss of the East. They have an innate respect for those they deem gentlemen. The avenue of elevation is education. Rank once obtained is eternal.

"The rate of wages is low. The men who made my tennis court got 12½ cents a day, which was above the legal rate. My residence which was furnished palatially in the eyes of the eyes of the Koreans for the sum of $500. An ordinary house is worth from $20 to $30.

Government Conditions.

"It is a squeezing process. The nobles press 'loans' from the poor peasantry.

"As aforesaid, the women are seldom seen. There is no courting there, or, if any, it occurs after marriage.

"Foreign life is very pleasant there. The natives look upon us almost as superior beings. There are in Seoul, the capital, golf and tennis clubs, and too many invitations to dinner.

Missions.

"We cannot understand the work of missions until we sympathize with the people. As the secret of oratory is action, action, action, so that of missions is sympathy, sympathy, sympathy. To any who may be thinking of going as missionaries to Korea, it is essential to remember in dealing with the people that they are men and women like yourself."

The lecture was interspersed with many humorous stories and altogether told in so genial a style, that the considerable audience was charmed.

After the lecture it appeared that the ladies of the class had been busy in the rear hall, for the audience was that room. The enjoyable evening was thus concluded in social merriment and intercourse.

Week of Prayer.

Devotional Meetings to be Held This Week—What the Program is.

During the week of prayer which begins on Monday and extends into next week a meeting will be held each evening from 6.45 until 7:30 o'clock. A twenty-minute address will be given each evening by some member of the faculty. The topic for the week is: The Christian Life.

Next Tuesday and Wednesday evenings services will also be held from 6:45 until 7:30 o'clock. Thursday is the day of prayer for all colleges and on that day Dr. Frank Gamewell will deliver the principal address.

In addition to the meetings which the two Christian Associations of the college arrange, on that day there will be a morning and afternoon service.

RHODES SCHOLARSHIPS.

Statements Concerning Eligibility of Contestants Issued.

President Crawford, who is a member of the committee on the Cecil Rhodes Scholarships for the State of Pennsylvania, has received from Provost Harrison, chairman of the committee, the following statements referring to the first electon of scholars in the United States under the Rhodes bequest, which will be held between February and May, 1904:

"First. As scholars are eligible up to twenty-five years of age, alumni may present themselves as well as those who shall have completed their second year.

"Second. Candidates for scholarships should, during the coming month of January, 1904, notify the chairman of the committee for the State of Pennsylvania of their intention to present themselves for examination."

INTER-CLASS DEBATES.

First of the Inter-class Debates Soon to be Held.

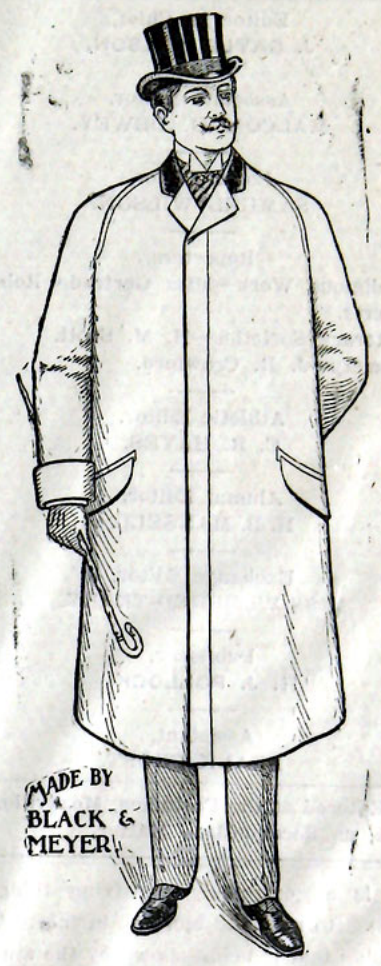

The first debate of the series of the Inter-class Debates will be held in the chapel on the evening of February 8th. On this occasion the Junior and Senior classes will contend. Mansell and H. Stockton will represent the Senior class and the Juniors will offer as champions, Reynolds and Pollock. Dr. Smith will preside at the debate. By way of preliminaries there will be a half hour of singing by the students before the main event.

Classical Club.

The regular meeting of the Classical Club will be held in the Classical room in the Library on next Tuesday evening. The new casts ordered by the club have arrived and are on exhibition in the Classical room. One of them is a relief of a Wingless Victory which admirably shows the supremacy of the Greek sculptor. The other is a very handsome cast of the head of the Olympian Zens, standing about two or three feet in height. In these casts the club has established a precedent that assures the furnishing of the Classical room in a handsome manner.

SCIENTIFIC CLUB NOTICE.

All college students interested in the formation of a Scientific Club will meet in Wilcox Hall on Wednesday, at 4 o'clock. This meeting is for the purpose of adopting a constitution aud by-laws.

Club Life.

It is an extremely gratifying thing to note the increase in interest that is being shown by the students toward the clubs of the college. Both the Quill Club and the Classical Club are flourishing. The membership of each is well up and the meetings are enthusiastic. A movement to organize another club—which is to be of a scientific nature—is well on foot and the two older organizations will doubtless soon be called upon to welcome a younger but no less lusty sister.

In many other colleges and universities the clubs form one of the most important features of the college life. They have charge of many of the social events. They are regarded as the mouthpiece of the student body. Their alumni look back to them with pride and love. To be elected to membership in them is one of the highest honors the student can receive.

The clubs at Allegheny, while perhaps they do not rank comparatively with those of similar institutions are nevertheless daily becoming much more important. It is inspiring to attend their meetings. Their ideals are high and the tone of their programs is lofty. They not only are one of the great conserving elements of college spirit at Allegheny but they undoubtedly do much to foster and cultivate it. In fact the nourishing of college spirit is a main purpose with one of the clubs. The added interest in the clubs is a sure indication of the progress the college is now making.

College Sings.

At a recent basket ball game a number of Allegheny enthusiasts tried to put a little life into the audience by starting to sing college songs between the halves. But the attempt was a dismal failure, either because the audience was too scattered or else because it did not know the songs.

It is a fact, however lamentable, that the college spirit at Allegheny is below par. If there is any feature of the college that generates enthusiasm it is athletics and if any one game is more potent than another in this it is basket ball, yet at the conclusion of a recent game one of the players had to ask several persons as to the outcome of the game because owing to the lack of applause he inferred that his team had lost.

It is an urgent matter that college "sings" be held at once. The interclass debates are only a few days off. The Washington birthday banquet should receive the benefit of the sings. Then if there were singing at the basket ball games it would undoubtedly add much to the enthusiasm and spirit of the spectators.

Baseball.

Allegheny will have a strong baseball team this spring. Nearly all of last year's regulars are back and it now looks as if we will have a winning team to say the least.

The management desires that those who have had experience in pitching and that all others who have any ability along this line will come out to the gym for practice. No matter with what skill the fielding positions of the team are filled, if the pitching staff is weak it is practically impossible to have a winning team. So it is of vital importance to start the season this year with a corps of trained pitchers in good condition, and the only way this can be attained in a team which does not have the advantage of training in the South is for the pitchers to practice faithfully during the winter in the gymnasium.

ALUMNI NOTES.

Charles E. Locke.

Reverend Charles Edward Locke, now the pastor of the Delaware Avenue M. E. church, of Buffalo, has accepted a call to the pastorate of the Hanson Place M. E. church, of Brooklyn. The transfer will be made during the coming spring conference. The Hanson Place church is one of the largest churches in Methodism, having a membership of 2,300, and a Sunday school with an enrollment of 1,300. Dr. Locke will have the aid of an assistant pastor and a well organized official board both of which are essential in so large a church. Dr. Locke is a member of the class of 1880 and has as classmates Congressman Bates, of this district; Miss Tarbell, editor of McClure's Magazine; Mrs. Beebe and Dr. Miner, who are in China.

Governor Francis H. Pierpont.

Dr. Crawford recently called the attention of the student-body to the statue of ex-Governor Francis H. Pierpont, of West Virginia, which that state has placed in Statuary hall at the capitol. Ex-Governor Pierpont was a member of the class of 1839 His classmate, Dr. Hamnett, remembers his coming to Allegheny more than 60 years ago. When Dr. Hamnett first saw him, Governor Pierpont had just come from his home in Middletown, Va., and had all his belongings tied in a bundle fastened to a stick which was carried on his shoulder. While in Allegheny he lived in one of the college buildings which stood on North Main street above Ruter Hall. This building was known among the students as "Starvation Row," if the reports are true it well deserved the name. Governor Pierpont belonged to that class of boys who were not and are not, for their tribe is not extinct, afraid to work their way through college.

Wesleyan Sophomores Are Suspended For Hazing.

President Raymond, of Wesleyan University has suspended 6 sophomores and ordered them to leave town by Saturday. Among them are Clarence E. Hancock, of Syracuse, and Ralph M. Cole, of Tottenville, N. Y. The students are charged with hazing Frank D. Taylor on December 16th.

When the sophomores first attacked Taylor's room he drove them off with a revolver. Later they returned in force and Taylor fought his way through the gang with a screwdriver. Howard Richards, of New Haven, was stabbed over the eye and lost the sight of the eye.

The students object to the president's action, because as they claim that there were many implicated in the hazing, and it is unjust to single out six men for the punishment.

Meeting of the Quill Club.

The Quill Club will hold its first meeting of the term at the Phi Delta Theta House on Thursday evening at 8 o'clock. A very unique program has been arranged. A certain improbable situation has been given to five members who are to write stories in which the situation occurs. An interesting evening is assured.

Exchange Department

The new catalogue of Princeton University, which has just been published, shows a total registration of 1,431 students as compared with 1,583 last year. This is a loss of 48.

Dr. Francolini, of Rome, publishes a statement declaring that the source of the Clitumnus, a small Umbrian river sacred to the ancient Romans, may contain radium. He bases his opinion on a description by Pliny and on passages in the works of many writers from Virgil to Byron and Carducci. The waters at the source of the river are the color of violet.

Receipts from football at the University of Pennsylvania this year amounted to $47,810.90. The expenses of the team were $22,052.99, leaving a balance of over $25,000. Baseball brought in $5,214.05, the track team $3,981.52, while the contributions for rowing were only $370.55. The cost for maintaining the crew was $23,781.27, a much larger amount than usual, owing to a new coaching launch.

After defraying the expenses of all other sports, all of which lost money, and after paying a deficit of over $2,-.0, there is a balance of $780.36 in the treasury.

Professor Ellers Hausen, a German, has invented a method of extracting zinc white from refuse slag. He and Sir William Ramsey successfully experimented at Hafan mine in North Wales recently, showing that a ton of zinc white can be extracted from fifteen tons of slag by a far simpler and cheaper process than is now used in a roundabout production from spelter.

A new department of Physical Education has been formed at Columbia University. It forms part of the Teachers' College, and is to provide teachers and supervisors with training in the various phases of school hygiene and physical training. The professional course demanding as a requisite two years of special work, and covering two years of special work in physical education, will lead to the bachelor's diploma at Teacher's College and with certain added courses to the degree of Bachelor of Science from Columbia University.

Harvard's catalogue, recently issued, shows the University to have a population of 6,718. This includes all those connected with Harvard in any way, as well as the pupils in the Summer School last season and Radcliffe College. In Harvard University there are 4,328 students. Of these 2,073 are in the college, 548 in the Laurence Scientific School 402 in the Graduate School, 52 in the Divinity School, 728 in the Law School, 383 in the Medical School, 115 in the Dental School, and 32 in the Bussey Institute.

The catalogue shows that Harvard has in its various libraries 639,700 volumes, exclusive of 280,000 pamphlets in Gore Hall and a number of pamphlets in the department libraries.

A number of the eastern universities have received invitations from the Automobile club of the University of Pennsylvania to participate in a series of auto races for the intercollegiate championship. If the invitation is accepted it seems probable that there may grow up as great a rivalry in connection with automobile contests as now exists in football, base ball, etc.

The Universities of California, Washington, and Leland Stanford, Jr., expect soon to complete negotiations with Cornell for the purchase of three racing shells, to be used in the regatta to be held between the three western universities next April. The cost of transporting these shells to the Pacific coast would be $300, which matter has caused the athletic associations considerable trouble.

On the big stage of the Washburn College chapel at Topeka, Kan., there was a fierce fight between the girls of the freshman and sophomore classes. Tables and chairs were overturned, the president's chair was smashed to pieces, clothes were torn, hats were lost and eyes blackened in the fierce rough and tumble fight. The occasion was the annual cane rush. It was at least twenty minutes before the faculty could separate the two bands and restore peace.

THOMAS O'TOOLE.

A Story from Ohio Wesleyan Apropos the Fact that Each Student Must Sign a Pledge Not to Smoke During the Present Year.

Thomas O'Toole peered furtively around the corner. Then he carefully laid his extinguished cigar on the top of his auburn hair, and replaced his hat just as he plumped squarely into the arms of the Dean.

"Begging your pardon, sir, I'm yours," said Thomas, holding his hat in position.

"Excuse me," said the Dean, "but do I smell tobacco smoke about you?"

"Just came out of a tonsorial butcher's, I have no smoke-weed in me pockets, see?" replied Thomas frankly.

"I'm glad I'm mistaken," said the Dean, as he resumed his walk.

"Thomas O'Toole moved on, unmindful of the gentle rolling of the cigar over the tangled shock, and the occasional thump against the sides of his hat, for he saw Maggie O'Shane, encumbered with books, and beating her way against the wind.

"Me adorable fragment of undiluted confection," muttered Thomas, accelerating his steps.

"Maggie, me charm," he exclaimed, swinging his hat through the air, "it makes me heart—"

The cigar had struck Maggie and fallen to the sidewalk.

"Mr. Thomas O'Toole, what does this mean?" coldly, as she watched him brush the snow from his semi-consumed cigar.

"It means, Miss Maggie Katie O'Shane," looking her acridly in the eye, "that I carry me charoots from now on in me bonnet. I can wash the smell out of me hair, but not out of me coat and vest.

Miss O'Shane considered him with an impassioned stare. "So you have broken your pledge, Mr. O'Toole. I shall return your frat pin. I can go to the Hall alone."

"Very well, Miss O'Shane, me choice between to love and to smoke is to smoke. Concentrated tobacco smoke is thicker 'n ink. An' hain't I got a right to puff an' to get an education? When me Uncle Timothy signs a check for a chair in demogogy, an' says, would they give Tommy another show, for he has the makin's of a man in him, they sized up Uncle Tim's pile. Me uncle made a haul out of a lottery, and then heaped up his dough in the smoke-weed business. Then he got to be a natural born Methodist."

The Dean passed the couple. Thomas softly touched the rim of his hat out of respect to Maggie.

"I never sponged me cigars off me uncle. O'Toole's are independent, an' the miles of cheroots I've bought from me uncle is awful, an' his profits on me is tremendous. So now, Miss O'Shane, ain't I got a right to set at the frontmost leg of that chair in demagogy, and be learning something? Didn't the profits on my cigars build it?"

"You mean pedagogy, Mr. O'Toole," corrected Miss O'Shane gently but Thomas ignored her.

"I cannot be separated from the weed. The fog hides me troubles and gives me sweet dreams. To not sign the pledge is to get fired again, and me mother's heart would be broke. Our trip's done, so a long farewell, Miss O'Shane."

And Maggie clung to a pillar as she sighed, "Good-bye. Go and marry your filthy weed, if you wish, Mr. Thomas."

"An' may I come back, Maggie, me heart?"

"Yes." She darted through the portico.

And Thomas went back to his room, adjusted a large funnel to a hole in the stove pipe, and for a half hour poured delicious clouds of smoke through it. Thomas' room offers no incriminating evidence.

NEXT SEASON'S FOOTBALL RULES

This Year's Changes Well Thought of. Tendency to Make Play Still More Open.

The many football men and others, who, in the early season were dissatisfied with the new rules of this fall, have come to a favorable view of the same after the try out of the season.

Now that the season is over there is no longer any doubt that the new rules have come to stay; or rather, the more open style of play brought about by the new rules has come to stay. The rules themselves will probably be further modified along the lines of the changes made last winter and the tendency is to lessen still more, smashing and hammering tactics of the game. Since early in the season there has been heard in no quarter the criticism that the new rules were confusing. There was much talk to some such effect on the part of the old time coaches before the season actually got under way, but when once the new rules got a practical test and their use showed beyond question that open play, end runs and spectacular gains went with them of necessity, talk of that sort died away and during the playing of the important games of the last few weeks, with their superabundance of kicking and open play of all sorts, not a single word of real complaint has been heard in any quarter against them. On the other hand, the cry is for more changes along the same lines.

One eminent football expert and critic says on this subject:

"One thing further! Let the rules committee go further another year and abolish utterly the 25-yard limit. The public in general is absolutely disgusted with the massing tactics that hammer a man to pieces. The truth may as well be admitted one time as another. It is simply brutality compared with what was in the minds of the original progenitors of football.

"Nothing has been accomplished in football in five years that has done so much for a general modification of the rules committee last winter, and they can do no better this coming season than to eliminate all restrictions and make it the same kind of football from one end of the gridiron to the other. It will have to come eventually and those in charge of the game may as well settle their minds to that fact one time as well as another. If it isn't done in the East it will be done in the West and then a conflict will ensue which will be an annoyance to all who admire the sport. More open work makes better football for everybody."

Literary Monthly Board.

The present board of the Literary Monthly retires at the end of this term, and their successors shall be determined upon according to the work done by competitors. The honor of editing one of the college publications or of having a place on the board is no small one and well worth striving for. The status of the Lit is far ahead of what it has ever been before. Now's your chance!

A New Breed.

"I think he's the most intelligent hunting dog in this country," said the owner of the animal, proudly exhibiting him to his friend.

"When he makes a 'point,' he turns his head and looks at me a moment and asks as plainly as if he spoke it, 'Shall I go ahead and flush that bird?'"

"I see," said the friend. He's an interrogation pointer."—Ex.

A Doubtful Prospect.

"Dat wuz mighty poor comfort dey give Br'er Thomas on his sick bed," said Brother Dickey.

"What dey tell him?"

"Preacher tol' him dey wuz a bright prospect ahead of him."

"En what he say ter dat?"

"Tol' 'em dat what wuz a-worryin' er him—it wuz so bright it wuz blazin'!"—Ex.

Geneva Elects Martin Captain.

At a meeting of the Geneva College football team D. Martin, '05, was elected captain for next season. Martin is a Pittsburger, and for two years played guard in the Pittsburg High School. Going to Geneva he made the 'varsity in his first year, and for three years has played left tackle. He is the son of Rev. Mr. Martin of the East End, and is very popular with the members of the team.

Who Were They?

Six couples of young people drove over from Meadville on Monday night and spent the evening with the family of ———, in this place. His daughter, ———, who is attending business college in Meadville, being in the party. The young men were students of Allegheny College and the way they let out their college yells, leads us to think that they did not use their voices much between towns. Perhaps, as it was a cold night, deeds counted more than words with the ladies.—Conneautville Courier.

THE LITERARY SOCIETIES.

Allegheny.

The first meeting of the society was held in their room in Bentley Hall, on Monday evening, January 11.

The meeting was well attended and the following program was rendered:

Essay—C. Henry, Main.

Reading from "Huck Finn"—La Bounty.

Current Topics—R. McKinney.

Debate—Resolved: That the United States was not justified in recognizing Panama. Affirmative, Darrow, Kingsbury; negative, Purdy, Lingo.

The debate was won by the negative.

Philo Franklin.

Monday evening, January 11, Philo Franklin held its first session. It was a successful meeting, though rather poorly attended. Among other things Hart gave a very interesting discourse on bicycles, dealing with their history and development. But the debate was particularly good. The topic was, Resolved, that students getting over 40 per cent. in class be excused from public examination. The debate was ably contested on both sides, but the negatives won.

In "Miscellaneous Business" a committee was appointed to see Dr. Crawford about a subject for the coming Freshman Essay Contest.

A committee was also appointed to make arrangements for the "Rally" to be held on February 1. It is intended to make this meeting a drawing card for the society.

Mason was received into the society as a new member, also McLaughlin.

Program for January 25.

Essay—Hart.

Declamation—Elkins.

News Items—Doings of Congress—Humbert. European Asiatic Affairs—W. Miner.

Oration—Mansell.

Impromptu.

Depate—Resolved, that Philo-Franklin should admit the women of Allegheny College to its membership. Affirmative, Dye, Wood; negative, Mason, McLaughlin.

Program of Cosmian Society, January 25—Opening Night.

Declamation—Miss Dickey, Miss Lupher.

Essay—Mollison, Sherwin, Milward.

Debate—Resolved, that Reed Smoot should be deprived of his seat in Congress.

New College Elective.

A new college elective has come to the fore. At Ruskin University, at Glen Ellyn, Demoris, the young women have had added to their studies "the psychology of husbands," one branch of which study is to be dressmaking, a fact which seems to grant the correctness of the belief of some people that dress has not a little to do with both acquiring and the management of a husband.—Augusta, Ga., Herald.

"Can you squeeze in here?" asked the young man with the red necktie, as he and his lady clambered into a well filled car.

"Well you can if you want to, mister," replied the man from the country, "but I'm thinkin' it would look a triffle better if you reserved that mark of affection until you reached the lady's home."—Ex.

TREES IN WINTER.

Majestically unadorned they stand
In solemn outline 'gainst the clouds-less sky,
And in their silence dignified and grand,
A benediction give to passers-by.

But faithless eyes, with vision yet unbound,
Will see alone the bareness of the trees,
And mourn the leaves now sleeping on the ground,
Or sigh for summer shade or vernal breeze.

But beautiful to him who loves them now
Becomes the thought—and 'tis a happy thing—
That in the bare and unpretentious bough,
There lies the beauty of another spring.

Mid joyous songs and in a world of love
The leaves burst forth—and then, in due time fall;
But he who knows a guiding hand above,
Can see but good and beauty in it all.

—Leverne Alden Marsh, '03. In Pittsburg Christian Advocate.

A Tight Squeeze.

The trolley car was crowded
From front to very rear—
Bawled out the conductor within,
"There's no more room in here."

But a maiden on the platform climbed—
With beautiful face and hair—
And in a squeaky voice she cried,
"May I be squeezed in there?"

—Ex.

The college men are very slow,
They seem to take their ease;
For when they graduate,
They do it by degrees.
