Miss Ida M. Tarbell,
120 East 19th Street,
New York City.

My dear Miss Tarbell:

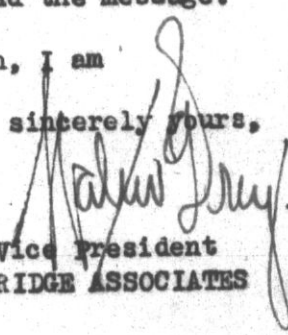

You may recall the picturesque phrase of Ezekiel - about eating the scrolls and the taste was like honey. In reading your life of Owen D. Young I can find no better phrase than Ezekiel's in describing my own experience.

Owen D. Young is a subject worthy of his biographer and the Biographer did full justice to her subject.

Perhaps the enclosed reprint of "Faith in America" may interest you. At least I hope you will feel repaid for the few minutes required to read the message.

With every good wish, I am

Very sincerely yours,
