ALLEGHENY PLAYS EXCELLENT GAME

HOLDS HEAVY STATE TEAM TO FOUR TOUCHDOWNS.

Though the First of Allegheny's Season, the Boys make a Fine Showing—The Men Play a Fighting Game From Start to Finish—The Team Looks for Hearty Support From Students.

"Allegheny has sent a bunch of fighters up this time" remarked an old State football man, during the second half Saturday, as Allegheny's gridiron warriors bravely defended a seemingly tottering old gold and blue banner. And those words exactly express the spirit, and exactly describe the way Allegheny men went into the second half of the State game.

It was literally a fight from the beginning of the second half until the end and, although our own team came out considerably bruised up, they had the satisfaction of knowing that State had only secured four points, and those from a drop kick, in that half.

After a long hard trip, in which the team slept only six hours Friday night, utterly exhausted they arrived at State College about eleven o'clock Saturday.

The game was called for 2:30, but it was almost three o'clock when the referees whistle started the second game of the year on State's athletic field.

Allegheny received the first kick off but soon lost the ball on downs. State steadily advanced the ball by repeated line plunges and end runs until a touch down was scored. During this half twenty-two scores were made, four touch downs and two goals.

The only way to account for the score of the first half is that Allegheny didn't warm up to the game as she did in the second half. Several new men were used in the first half and naturally their inexperience made the line a little weak, although every new man fought like a fiend and the coach expressed himself as being very much pleased with their work. In this half Benedict and Braymer were knocked out several times but both pluckily stuck to their places until four minutes before the whistle blew for the close of the first half. At that time Braymer had to be taken out and Evald was shifted to full-back position. Stidger replacing Evald at right half. No points were scored against Allegheny during the remainder of this half.

The second half began with the same line up, except the substitution of Stidger at right half. State used several new men in this half and Allegheny had to buck up against a comparatively fresh team. This was the half in which Allegheny was to show her nerve, and, after a short but exceedingly forcible talk by the coach the men who wear Allegheny's colors went on to the gridiron with the fighting spirit showing in every face. There was not much talking among the fellows this half for every jaw was rigid and the only sound was an occasional grunt as the two lines came together in a determined effort to gain and check gains. Both teams were fighting hard and it looked as if State's 180 lb. backs would surely knock Allegheny's light line to pieces. But not so—Capt. Ginn's men were nerved to the supreme effort and State's men were repeatedly held for downs. When Allegheny received the ball they in turn were held for downs. And thus it was a battle royal of muscle and bones between the two goal posts. About the middle of this half Vorhis State's quarter, who replaced Henry, put a pretty drop kick between the posts from the thirty yard line. This chance score seemed to en-

JOINT RECEPTION OF ASSOCIATIONS.

Y. M. AND Y. W. C. A. ENTERTAIN MONDAY EVENING.

In the Gymnasium—Excellent Program of Music and Addresses Rendered—Refreshments Served and General Good Time Enjoyed.

The annual reception given by the Young Men's and Young Women's Christian associations was held in the college gymnasium at 8 p. m. last evening. As usual at these receptions the spirit of fellowship and hospitality ran high and it is likely that many a fortnight will elapse before a more enjoyable sociable event will take place.

The gymnasium room was prettily decorated with old gold and navy blue bunting and in one corner stood a large punch bowl, which was most liberally patronized.

The music by the male quartet was received with rounds of hearty applause. After prayer by Rev. Lucius H. Bugbee, pastor of the First Methodist church. O. C. Jones, '07, delivered the address of welcome.

Miss Alice McDowell rendered a solo which was well received and heartily appreciated. Dr. Camden M. Coburn, professor of English Bible and Philosophy, who succeeds Dr. A. C. Knudson in that position made a short address in his usual pleasing manner.

After music by the quartet and the singing of the song, "Thy Name, Dear Allegheny," the remainder of the evening was given over to the serving of refreshments and a period of general good feeling ensued. Following is the program:

Music—Male Quartet.
Prayer—Rev. L. H. Bugbee.
Address of Welcome—O. C. Jones.
Solo—Miss Alice McDowell.
Address—Dr. Camden M. Coburn.
Music—Male Quartet.
Song—"Thy Name, Dear Allegheny."

GYMNASIUM WORK SOON TO BEGIN

SCOPE AND PURPOSE OUTLINED.

Prof. Werner Will Have an Assistant A New Card System for Physical Examinations—Work to Begin Soon.

One of the strongest needs of any college or university is a well equipped gymnasium and a thorough and vigorous system of physical exercise. It is only in the last ten or twenty years that colleges the country over have fully realized this, so that the institution is rare indeed which does not afford some opportunity of developing the physical man.

Allegheny is one of the colleges, which has met this problem face to face and presents to the student not only a fully equipped gymnasium, but a course of physical training as good as that presented by any college of the same standing, and better than most colleges of equal rank. We have the apparatus; we have the instructor. We want the enthusiasm of the students.

Those whose physical makeup will prevent them from ever becoming athletics are treated accordingly, and not until they are able to enter into full competition with those of normal condition are they permitted to enter into vigorous exercise. Their weak parts are pointed out to them and every assistance rendered to correct their defects.

The classes are carried through a course of training becoming gradually more vigorous, but never reaching a point where the recreative phase is not fully emphasized. The training is carried on in a systematic manner and the results are far reaching in

MISS TARBELL WITH AMERICAN MAGAZINE.

A PROMINENT MEMBER OF THE NEW BOARD OF EDITORS.

A Special series of Articles From Her Able Pen to Begin Soon—Will Tell of American Business History.

The impulse of the new board of editors of the American Magazine is to be recognized in every page of the current number. Already the "vision" of the editors as expressed in the editorial is in a fair way to be realized.

It is no small matter of satisfaction to the Allegheny people that Miss Ida M. Tarbell of the class of '80 has an important part in the future of this new venture that is being carried on by a board of the most competent literary people of America.

Among the many good things planned for the new magazine, is a series of articles by Miss Tarbell herself. The series is to begin in an early number and will deal with American business history of the period since the civil war. Miss Tarbell's fame, resting as it does on her excellent works on Lincoln and Napoleon, is sufficient to warrant a most enthusiastic following of all she has to say in this new field of special study.

DINNER GIVEN BY KAPPA KAPPA GAMMA

KAPPA KAPPA GAMMA ENTERTAINS.

Progressive Dinner Party Given by Young Ladies—Everyone Enjoys the Evening—Splendid Informal Good Time.

A novel and very enjoyable social event took place on Thursday evening, when Kappa Kappa Gamma entertained a few of their friends to a progressive dinner party.

The courses were indeed served in a royal manner, and all the participants enjoyed themselves immensely.

The first course was served at Mrs. T. J. Prather's on East Walnut St. After spending a short time with Mrs. Prather the company went to Miss Margeurite Fuller's home on Chestnut Street, where a delicious dinner course was awaiting them. The salad course was served at the home of Miss Florence Stem on Walnut Street and the dessert course was served by Miss Lorena Palm on South Park Ave.

A short time was spent with each hostess and almost an hour was spent at Miss Palm's before the company disbanded. After the good time socially, all returned home, feeling that this was one of the most delightful entertainments to be experienced throughout the year.

A GOOD TIME SPENT AT OAKWOOD PARK.

A Party of Forty Go in Special Car—Lunch Served in Cafe—Rain Did Not Dampen Spirit.

A special car ran up College Hill Saturday afternoon at three o'clock, and took on board the Kappa Alpha Theta girls with some of their friends. The destination of the car was Oakwood Park at Ponce de Leon Springs, where the party had planned to enjoy itself during the evening.

The party numbered about forty and although the weather was anything but pleasant, everybody had a good time. Games were played, and music was a special feature of the

SOPHOMORES PUT UP THEIR "PROCS"

MEADVILLE IS DECORATED.

Freshmen Get Busy However, and the Proclamations Dissapear Before Daylight.

The Freshies were routed out of bed about half-past seven Sunday morning by the news that the Sophs had posted the town. The news spread like wild fire and in about ten minutes, twenty half-dressed Freshmen were out. Some were armed with rusty scissors, while others carried knives, in fact all had some instrument or other with which to tear down the posters.

The Freshmen president being out of town with the team at State, the Sophs thought they would have every thing their own way. So they started early, that is for a Sunday morning, and left their proclamations on all the main streets in town. Therefore the Freshmen divided into small squads and went on tours of inspection.

They found telephone poles, brick-walks, bill-boards and even windows decorated. At Dr. Hamnett's house a poster was stuck on one of the windows. Here they were given a bucket of warm water and an old rag with which the window was cleaned in good style.

In about an hour all the posters were down and the different squads met on the Campus to make the result known to the girls. This they did by giving a hearty yell in front of Huling's.

With good appetites after their long run the Freshies then returned home vowing vengeance to their rivals, the Sophs.

This event is only a forerunner of the very lively scenes which will soon be enacted, when the two classes clash together in the canerush and other class fights.

RECEPTION TO FRESHMAN CLASS

GUESTS OF THE PARK AVENUE YOUNG PEOPLE'S SOCIETY.

A Delightful Musical Program Was Rendered and Remarks Were Made by President Crawford, Dr. Chase and Col. Walker.

A pretty social affair was given in the parlors of the Park Avenue Congregational church Friday evening when the Young People's society of the church tendered a reception to the freshmen class of Allegheny college.

An informal musical program added not a little to the enjoyment of the evening. Vocal solos were rendered by Miss Alice McDowell, Dr. Wells and Maxwell Lick and Miss Hall contributed several instrumental numbers.

Appropriate remarks were made by President William H. Crawford, Rev. C. Thurston Chase and Col. Lewis Walker.

The Game.

We express our admiration for the plucky boys, who, with barely a week of practice, made such excellent showing against one of the most formidable teams of our schedule.

The Freshmen.

Without wishing to cause a disturbance, we suggest that the Sophomores use great discretion in selecting the shade of green for the caps of the people who took the lead last week.

A Hint.

We all know of that majestic Irish son of toil, who at the first note of the dinner call, threw down his pick and cried, "Niver a tap of work will I do after the whistle blows." We regret that this beautiful sentiment native in all mankind is being crushed out in these days of rush and grind.

The Football Situation.

Out on the gridiron, men are daily laying aside personal interests, sacrificing the best of their time and strength for the honor of Old Allegheny. Just now there is the field of service. The need for men was never greater. Let every student possessing the smallest degree of ability regardless of sacrifice entailed, regardless of personal considerations involved, gladly volunteer to help in winning glory and distinction for the gold and blue. Only such sacrifice and determination can be attended by any degree of success or achievement.

College Spirit.

The proverbial barrels of ink and reams of paper have been expended in an endeavor to analyze that mysterious element in college life known as spirit.

A silent, unknown something it lies dormant in capricious indifference, or breaks forth in sudden swiftness, carrying all before it in joyful, reckless abandon. The frown of conservatism does not after all, allay our crying need of a stronger and more general spirit. We need the devotion to Alma Mater that will gladly offer on the altar of her honor, personal interests, comfort or convenience. We need to be fired with a potent irresistible enthusiasm, that will send the boys in blue and gold into any contest, through any obstacle, confident of ultimate victory because for the love of the dear old college they cannot accept defeat.

The College and Convictions.

Convictions make the man. A man without convictions is not really a man. History has been colored by men of convictions. Nations have been destroyed, empires built, and religions made to reign—all by men of convictions. College ought to fill a man with convictions. If he feels that honesty should be an incarnate principle in business life, the college ought to ground that and make it a conviction. The college ought to persuade a man that truth alone prevails; then he will go out into life and, first last and always, do what he believes is right. A man with such a conviction influences, not only his own life, but the lives of those around him. Men of vacillating creeds flock about and cling close to his creed. He is hailed as leader and the weaker follow in his footpath. Influence never dies, and if the college man will go out into the world and live strenuously his convictions, the world will be a better world and colleges and universities will not have been founded in vain.

"NINETEEN-SIX" FACES WORLD.

Every Member Busy at Some Vocation—Class Scattered Half Way Round the World.

The "Hippity-ix" of the good old class of 1906 is no longer heard on the campus. It is safe to say that never again will all their voices be joined in the old class call under the campus trees. A glance of the present class register shows that they are already scattered half way around the globe. It is also to be noted that they are separated in many useful callings, and that they are seriously engaged in life's battle after the good training of their "little fostering mother."

Exchange Department

Here is one for the "old settlers" of Allegheny. Abram Bowers, a student of Chicago University has for fourteen years been enrolled on the register. Last summer he was granted a Ph. B. as a reward for his faithful and persistent effort.

Pres. Jordan of Stanford University estimates the damage done to college edifices by the earthquake as being between two and three millions. The buildings are being rapidly restored, and the University will soon be on its former footing. Dr. Jordan says, "It is men, not buildings that make a University."

One of the exchanges deserving special mention is the Wesleyan Literary Monthly. In this splendid publication are found all the requisites of a first-class college magazine. The weighty literary article, the clever short story, snatches of witty verse and the timely editorials that appear in this magazine have established for it an enviable position in amateur journalism.

Washington and Jefferson and Ohio Wesleyan have adopted the Honor System as practiced in many schools. The plan may be a good one, and doubtless succeeds in many cases, yet we think that the introduction of the informing habit into any college would be a great detriment to the characters of its students. Nothing is so diametrically opposed to student honor as tale-bearing. Those principles of honor are simply invaluable. The harm done by encouraging or countenancing tale-bearing would, it seems to us, far outweigh any beneficial results that might recur from the adoption of the Honor System.

College Men in Demand.

SHAKESPEARE'S COUNTRY.

Scenic England has none of the molten architecture of a Niagara, or the massive sublimity of the Rockies, yet there is a distinctive restful beauty in the gentle monotony of its hedge bordered meadows and park-like estates. The vine covered cottages nestling in the midst of old fashioned gardens, and imposing old mansions ensconced behind the high wall of literal and figurative conservation augment the picturesque beauty of the wonderfully cultivated rural districts.

Down in the heart of Warwick county, in the midst of feudal castles, and historic ruins, lordly estates and hamlets of thatched roofed cottages, lost in a maze of primrose dotted meadows and forests of sturdy oaks, slumbers the quaint little town of Stratford, on the banks of the placid Avon.

Centuries ago Stratford produced a genius, the immortal playwright, Shakespeare, and with a drowsy sense of satisfaction and duty well done, she noddingly muses on the renown of her offspring, well content with his achievement.

From the stone bridge over which entrance is gained to the town, the tall spire of Trinity church may be seen, clustered about by huge oaks. Just inside the chancel rail of the dim old church rest the bones of the great dramatist. The grave is covered by a simple, crumbling slab of stone, bearing the name of Shakespeare, and a verse that begins,

Kind friend for Jesus sake forbear,
To disturb the dust that rests beneath.

Thrice blest be he who minds this well,

And curs'd be he that molested hath.

Beside the tomb of Shakespeare, rests his wife, Anne Hathaway. A feeling of great awe stole over those in the church, as they stood silent in the magic presence of a mighty genius, and went away wondering and admiring more than before.

Farther up the Avon towards the famous Clopton bridge stands the magnificent Memorial Theatre and monument. The theatre is a beautiful piece of workmanship, a model of modern architectural art. What a contrast to the rude structure in which Shakespeare first played!

In a retiring and modest quarter of the town—Windsor Place—stands a queer gabled old house, with diamond latticed window panes, and its first floor is furnished with extremely old fashioned furniture, not, however, Shakespearian. The rooms are bare and unfurnished. On the second floor a guide points out the room where the great genius first saw the light of day. In the same room a pedestal marks the spot where the death-bed stood.

Numerous inscriptions mark the rough plastered walls, autographs of the most famous actors and literary geniuses. The window bears the name of Sir Walter Scott, and just below the autograph of Thomas Carlyle, and so on through the list of American as well as English celebrities.

In another part of the house a museum and library contain numerous interesting relics of the Shakespearian family. Many documents and early dramatic editions are collected here, together with furniture and odds and ends. Here are autographs of Richard the Third and scores of other royal personages. Portraits and statuary adorn the walls and cabinets. In one corner of the museum stands a battered whittled old wooden desk at which Shakespeare sat in school. The rough beams overhead add the final touch of antiquity to the quaint old house.

Just outside of the village one may find the cottage of Anne Hathaway. Old-fashioned and thatched-roofed, the cottage is almost hidden in a mass of flowers and hedges, shrubbery and clinging vines. Around this home hangs the romance of Shakespeare's youth. Certain American tourists, the guide relates, when assured that here Shakespeare wooed the beautiful Anne Hathaway, fell down on their knees and thanked God that they had been permitted to visit the place.

Away to the north stands the picturesque ruins of Kenilworth Castle. As the majority of the Shakespearian pilgrims leave for the north, Stratford settles down in peace for a quiet afternoon nap. Ten miles through the wonderfully beautiful country of Warwick finds us at Kenilworth, the old feudal castle made famous by the novel of Scott.

It is hard to picture in the peaceful ruins of to-day, the warlike castle of centuries past. The peace loving ivy climbs the crumbling walls, and spreads its foliage over the war-scarred masonry. Down in the moat bloom beds of flowers, fragrant and rich in blending of color and shade. Climbing the watch tower of the keep, I stood looking through the narrow barred look out, over the moat and outer wall below. Again in fancy, armies cross the plain yonder, and storm the battlements. The clash of steel on steel and the hoarse cry of the warriors, sound out in vivid reality. The polished armor and steel flash and glitter in the sunlight; the groans of the dying blend with the shouts of victory. A moment and the victory is won, and shouts of triumph drown the sounds of battle. With the din of the conflict still strong on my senses, I descended the circling stone stairs into the dungeons below, and again out into the grassy court.

Setting off through the gathering twilight, we follow the road to Edge Hill, over whose falling towers and rough ridges hang stories of the great Cromwell and his intrepid Round-heads. Late in the evening we enter Banbury, violating tradition by neglecting the orthodox rocking horse.

THE COLLEGE EXAM.

There is ample proof that the "old boys" resented the ever threatening curse of "exams." The opening editorial of the Campus, dated May 2, 1893, reads as follows:—

In a sketch of Rev. John Barker, the fourth president of Allegheny College, we find the following significant sentences:

"His useful work was brought to a sudden termination by his death in the midst of his labors.

He had passed the evening in examining the papers of his class, and after retiring was stricken with apoplexy, and shortly after quietly breathed his last." Can we ask a stronger proof of the harm of examinations? How long will our faculty continue to jeopardize their lives in this manner occasion. Lunch was served by the young ladies in the dining room of the cafe, and added materially to the enjoyment of the evening.

ENTERTAINED BY KAPPA ALPHA THETA.

The party returned home about eight o'clock, with their hearts full of praise for the happy way in which Kappa Alpha Theta entertains.

THINGS TO BE NOTED IN PASSING.

That applications for a second examination must be made within the first two weeks of each term. It is especially important that candidates for athletic teams bear this in mind.

That you will get out of college life just what you put in it. Don't knock because there is a lack of college spirit unless you give some of your own enthusiasm.

That now is the time to begin to grind for the term examinations.

Miss King rendered a beautiful solo, "The Triumph of Life" at the twenty-fifth anniversary of the Woman's Home Missionary Society of the First Methodist Episcopal Church held in the parlors of the church Friday afternoon, and Miss Edith Thompson gave very pleasing instrumental numbers.

ALLEGHENY PLAYS EXCELLENT GAME.

rage the Allegheny players and from this point on the game was ours. Stidger received the kick off, fumbled recovered the ball, and by dodging carried it down the field for thirty yards. A trick kick was then used and Capt. Ginn recovered the ball for a gain of forty yards. Two line plunges from formation gained ten more yards and the whistle blew.

Thus Allegheny opened her football season with a great victory, by holding the best team State has had in years, down to twenty-six points, a score of which Allegheny's supporters can justly be proud.

Every man on the team played with every ounce of energy he had. Benedict who can always be depended on, played the best game of his Allegheny career and repeatedly gained through State's line. Col. Nelson and Ginn, several times saved a touch down by clever tackles in the open field. The new men, Hickernell and Ball at guard positions and Eval in the back field played good football and will undoubtedly strengthen Allegheny's line up during the coming season.

The forward pass was tried once but Stidger fumbled and lost the ball. As soon as this play is perfected it will make a great ground gainer for Allegheny has a trio of speedy backs. "Billy" Cole won the applause of the ladies in the crowded grand stand by a difficult tackle from center position.

Brown and Robinson played their usual game at tackle position; and Stockton nailed everything that came his way.

The coach is pleased with the showing made by the team; there is the best of feeling, along with an optimistic spirit, for the season promises a victorious future for Allegheny.

And with all this fighting spirit among the players and the outlook so bright, it's up to Allegheny students to furnish the enthusiasm that backs a winning team.

The psychological moment is here and the future of foot-ball in Allegheny lies in the hands of the students. Support the team and the team will win, if winning is possible.

The line-up was as follows:

State—26. Allegheny—0

Center—Cole.

Right Guard—Hickernell.

Right Tackle—Brown.

Full-back—Braymer—Evaul.

Right Half-back—Evaul—Stidger.

GYMNASIUM WORK TO BEGIN SOON.

developing a strong physique. Every muscle is taken into account. Enlargement is not aimed at so much as suppleness and general usefulness. The purpose is to develop a graceful, muscular, active body.

Prof. Werner is kept busy giving the new students a physical examination and pointing out to each individual his defects and outlining for each a course of beneficial exercise. A very extensive and elaborate card system for keeping a record of physical examinations has been secured. This system provides space for four examinations; one on entering college, and the others in successive years so that by careful inspection it will be noted whether any improvement is made or not. All new students are required to take the first examination. This work, in progress now, will take about three weeks, after which classes will begin.

As the preparatory school's gymnasium has not yet been completed, the preparatory classes will be held on the college gymnasium floor under the direction of Mr. Shontz. The latter will be of splendid assistance to Prof. Werner, as he has had considerable experience as gymnasium instructor for the Franklin Y. M. C. A. Prof. Werner is indeed glad to have an assistant, as he says, this will give him much more time to devote to individual instruction. He also plans to give the college men special training in heavier work than the preparatory students will receive, as they are better prepared for the advanced work in gymnastics.

IN THE SCIENCE DEPARTMENT.

The Meadville papers have printed in full Dr. Breed's Bacteriological examination of public water supplies. It shows a very thorough investigation of the conditions and contains some very valuable hints for the improvement of conditions. Mr. Irwin of the senior class began the bacteriological examination last November and continued it under Dr. Breed's direction throughout the winter. The results as shown in the tables are interesting and represent the careful and systematic work carried on by Mr. Irwin.
