PUBLICATIONS BOARD ELECTS EDITORS FOR ENSUING YEAR

R. H. Demmler, C. C. Taylor, and W. A. Risher to Head Staffs of Publications

At a meeting of the Publications Board, held in Alden Hall last Thursday afternoon, the editors for the Campus, the Kaldron, and the Literary Monthly for next year were chosen.

Mr. Ralph H. Demmler, who was News Editor of the Campus this year, was elected Editor-in-Chief of the same publication for next year. Mr. John M. Pratt, at present Society and Alumni Editor, was made Managing Editor. In addition three Assistant Editors were chosen, Miss Eleanore Taylor, Mr. William A. Risher, and Mr. Charles C. Taylor.

Following a practice established last year, the offices of Editor and Manager of the Kaldron have been combined into the executive position of Chairman. This office will be filled next year by Mr. C. C. Taylor. Mr. W. A. Risher will be Editor-in-Chief of the Literary Monthly. The holders of subordinate positions on the various staffs will be chosen at a later date.

Although candidates for business managerships were interviewed, no elections will be made until May 26, when the work of the year will be finished.

The Publications Board consists of

COACH DAVIES BECOMES ACQUAINTED WITH TEAM

NEW FOOTBALL MENTOR IS A GUEST OF GRADUATE MAN-AGER TOWNSEND

In his first visit since last fall, when his Geneva team lost to Allegheny in the Homecoming game, Tom Davies, new Allegheny football coach, made a preliminary survey of the ground last week when he was here as the guest of S. S. Townsend, Graduate Manager.

Together with Townsend, Coach Davies went over the football situation thoroughly and became personally acquainted with all of the men of last year's squad. At a meeting in the gymnasium last Monday, Davies met the entire squad and outlined his plans and made it clear to the men just what he would expect of them. He also expressed his hopes for another championship team.

With Davies as McCracken's successor, the "Pop" Warner system, which has proved so successful in late years, will continue at Allegheny without interruption. Both Davies and Herb McCracken, who will take over the coaching reins at Lafayette next fall, played on the same Pitt team for several years, and Allegheny fans can look for the same brilliant style of football next fall as that to which they are accustomed.

The contemplated schedule includes either eight or nine games, eight being already scheduled. The season will open on September 27 with Dickinson in Meadville. West Virginia University, Boston College, Grove City, Thiel, and Geneva will be met away from home. Westminster and Rochester will appear at home, with the possibility of another strong team being carded for a Thanksgiving game at home.

OPEN HOUSE HELD TOMORROW NIGHT

The open house of the Philosophy and Education Club will be held tomorrow night at Cochran Hall. The time which has been set is 7:30 sharp as the program of stunts will take considerable time. Each of the ten classes in the department has planned a stunt, and from the known character of each of them they promise to be quite amusing to say the least. Since a prize is to be awarded to the class which puts on the best stunt, the competition will be keen. An important part of the program which is not to be overlooked is the serving of refreshments. Reports have it that there will be "big eats"; so come prepared to do them justice. Everyone taking courses in the Philosophy and Education departments is invited.

FACULTY MEMBER JOINS RANKS OF BROADCASTERS

DR. ELLIOTT TO SPEAK FROM SPRINGFIELD ON FRIDAY,
MAY 23

Allegheny's students, faculty, alumni, and friends everywhere will have an opportunity to listen to one of our faculty members, Dr. W. A. Elliott, speak over the radiophone when he reports the day's events at the Methodist Conference, Springfield, Massachusetts, Friday evening, May 23, at 10 P. M., eastern standard time.

Every evening at this time some member broadcasts a resume of the work accomplished during the day. WBZ, the Westinghouse station, from which Dr. Elliott will speak, operates on a 327 meter wave length.

These conference reports have been heard as far South as Florida and farther West than Chicago, so if conditions are favorable and Dr. Elliott has a good "radio voice," clear reception of his report should be heard here. Occasionally during the day time, conference work of general public interest is broadcasted.

A peculiar coincidence presents itself on this occasion. Dr. Halford E. Luccock, a son of Bishop N. Luccock who was a professor at Allegheny from 1885-8, is in charge of all broadcasting done by the conference, while Mr. Arthur S. Eisenman, ex'21, is radio technician at station WBZ.

R. E. BROWN TO SPEAK AT COMMENCEMENT VESPERS

ALUMNUS FROM BUFFALO TO BE AT ALLEGHENY ON COM-MENCEMENT SUNDAY

One of the more informal and popular features of the Commencement program is the Vesper Service which is held on the Campus, and for which some distinguished Alleghenian usually delivers the address. This year, the Reverend Robert E. Brown, D. D., of Buffalo, N. Y., will be the speaker, and the service will be held at 4:30 Sunday afternoon, June 15.

Although Dr. Brown attended Albion College one year, he completed his college course at Allegheny with the class of 1901, and is counted as one of the College's favorite preachers. His first pastorate was at the Grace M. E. Church of Meadville, where he preached while he was still a student.

The year following his graduation, he went to Fredonia, N. Y., and preached there for three years, after which he was pastor of the Methodist Church in Franklin, Pa. From 1912 to 1920 he held the Asbury Church at Rochester, N. Y., and since that time he has been at the Richmond Avenue Church of Buffalo, N. Y.

His rise in the Church has been steady, and he is a trustee of the Genesee Wesleyan Seminary of Lima, N. Y. At present he is representing the Genesee Conference, of which he is a member, at the General Conference of the Church, which is being held at Springfield, Massachusetts.

Dr. Brown received his degree of Doctor of Divinity from Allegheny in 1912, and has been a frequent speaker at the College. Three years ago he gave a series of lectures here, and the most recent occasion on which he appeared here was at one of the monthly Vesper services last year, for which he delivered the sermon.

GIRLS' GLEE CLUB TO STAGE JAPANESE GIRL

QUAINT OPERETTA TO BE PRE-SENTED IN CHAPEL ON THURSDAY NIGHT

"Japanese Girl," an operetta in two acts, will be presented by the Girls' Glee Club in Ford Memorial Chapel on Thursday evening, May 22. Great progress in perfecting the presentation of this operetta has been made by the women who have worked consistently since Easter vacation.

The operetta is based on a quaint custom prevalent among the Japanese people. When a near relative is to be absent from home for an extended period of time, he leaves a young tree or a singing bird behind, which is regarded as a substitute and is named for him. This object is cared for conscientiously, since it is considered a most sinister omen to the person whom it represents, should any injury befall it during his absence.

Production of this play is under the management of Miss Elizabeth Arnold. The cast includes Marian Whieldon, Alice Townsend, La Roux Rassel, Naomi Reisacher, Marian and Marguerite Cook, and Elinor Van Scoten. Besides the principal characters, the chorus will be composed of the remainder of the Glee Club which numbers nearly thirty-five members.

The action of the operetta is to be set among scenes of cherry blossoms and other quaint Japanese surroundings which will give the play a genuine Oriental atmosphere.

Under the capable direction of Prof. Lee Hess Barnes the cast is now hard at work putting the finishing touches on this operetta which is the most difficult presentation yet attempted by the Girls' Glee Club.

William W. Ellsworth is Chief Speaker at Pi Delta Epsilon Banquet at Saegertown Inn

Mr. William W. Ellsworth was the chief speaker at the initiation banquet of Pi Delta Epsilon, that was held at Saegertown Inn Wednesday evening, May 14. Prior to the banquet seven men were initiated into the fraternity in recognition of their work in the field of journalism at Allegheny. They are John Pratt, Robert McCollum, Karl Riemer, Allison Rupert, Alfred Palmer, Howard Taylor, and Edgar Dehne.

Following the good Saegertown dinner, Charles W. Havice, acting as toastmaster for the occasion, called upon several of the members of the fraternity. Mr. Ellsworth's talk was, of course, the feature of the program. He began very informally with a discussion and exposition of the relation of journalism to authorship. He named many prominent authors who began their careers as journalists. In fact, journalism sends more men and women to the ranks of authors than any other profession.

Mr. Ellsworth then followed with several anecdotes about authors with whom he was acquainted. These included Christopher Morley, Robert Louis Stevenson, General Grant, and Edward Bok. He concluded with a most intriguing incident concerning an interview with the German Kaiser and which is unknown to all except a very few members of the Century Publishing Company.

MISS TARBELL DONATES TO HULINGS PIANO FUND

LOYAL ALUMNA SENDS CHECK TO HELP PAY FOR CHICKERING
AMPICO

In spite of business and cares enough to occupy every minute of her day, Ida M. Tarbell has remembered Hulings Hall and has found time to send a check to aid toward increasing the piano fund. Thus does the money needed to purchase the piano slowly but surely increase, for, although the girls have helped by attending an attractive dance given for the purpose in the gymnasium, yet it is from the generous alumnae that help is needed to make the venture a success.

Checks have been received from the following: Dorothy Evans, Helen Shuster, Varine Collins, Katherine Simmons, and Ida M. Tarbell.

EVANGELIST ARRANGES FOR STUDENT SERVICE

MEETING FRIDAY NIGHT IS GIV-EN OVER TO COLLEGE

Students of the College will have charge of Friday evening's program at the Tabernacle that is being used for the "New Crusade" under the leadership of Dr. George Wood Anderson. Arrangements are in charge of Mr. C. B. Hartman, and the Men's and Women's Senates, and both the Y. M. C. A. and the Y. W. C. A. of the College are backing the proposed meeting.

As Dr. Anderson puts it, the students will be the "guests" of Friday evening, and the program will be entirely in their hands. There will be cheering and organized singing. The quartet of the Men's Glee Club will assist in making this evening one of the best of the six weeks of the evangelistic services.

The main feature of the evening will be, of course, the address of Dr. Anderson. He is planning an exceptionally interesting talk for this meeting, because as a college graduate, he knows the mind of a student and what will be entertaining as well as beneficial.

NEW SENATE CHOSEN IN ELECTIONS LAST WEEK

W. A. RISHER AND F. E. REED SE-LECTED AS ATHLETIC BOARD MEMBERS

One student from each social fraternity on the hill was elected to a position on the Men's Student Senate at the general elections in Bentley Hall last Wednesday, May 14.

The new members from the various groups, all of the class of 1925, are as follows: J. W. Morrissey from Phi Kappa Psi, W. J. Dale from Phi Gamma Delta, R. E. Piper from Phi Delta Theta, W. F. McGill from Delta Tau Delta, G. C. Jones from Alpha Chi Rho, L. E. Ross from Sigma Alpha Epsilon, J. R. Farrell from Phi Alpha Kappa, and F. W. Mason from Beta Upsilon.

Chase R. Gage, retiring president of the Senate, officiated at the election.

No definite date has been announced for the installation of the new members, although it will be an event of the near future. Following the installation, the new Senate will choose its own officers for the ensuing year.

Appearing on the same ballot with the nominees for the Men's Senate at the election last Wednesday, were the names of the student candidates for the Athletic Board of Control.

Of the four men recently nominated by the Men's Senate, F. E. Reed and W. A. Risher were chosen to occupy the enviable positions during the following year.

COMBINED GLEE CLUBS TO SING ON JUNE 13

COLLEGE CONCERT TO BE GIVEN
INSTEAD OF SHAKESPEAR-EAN PLAY

Instead of the Shakespearean play which was to have initiated the Commencement program this year with an open-air performance, the combined Men's and Girls' Glee Clubs will give a concert in Ford Memorial Chapel at eight o'clock Friday evening, June 13.

Professor Lee Hess Barnes has chosen the most promising talent from both clubs with the result that a group of sixty voices will participate. The clubs will largely retain their identity because in only one number will they be entirely merged. In other numbers a part of each club will participate, and each organization will sing some pieces separately.

Last year "A Mid-Summer Night's Dream" was staged by a company of Shakespearean actors from New York on the campus just south of Bentley. This form of entertainment was not deemed feasible this year, and the concert which will take its place will prove as popular.

Ohio State University women will soon compete in track, tennis, baseball, and archery to decide the inter-class championship.

WILLIAM W. ELLSWORTH GIVES THREE LECTURES AT COLLEGE

Publicist Reveals Rich Experience in Talks on Literary Subjects

William Webster Ellsworth, noted publisher and lecturer, visited the College May 13 and 14, Tuesday and Wednesday of last week, during which time he delivered a series of three lectures to the student body. Tuesday evening, Mr. Ellsworth gave an illustrated lecture entitled, "Moliere and his Times." Wednesday morning he spoke at the chapel services on "The New Poetry," and the same afternoon he delivered an informal talk on "The Joy of Writing." All the lectures were held in the Ford Chapel, and in every case the hall was well filled with students and townspeople. The visit of Mr. Ellsworth was made possible by the Sturtevant Memorial Foundation.

Tuesday Evening

The lecture Tuesday evening, that on "Moliere and his Times," was made doubly interesting by the use of stereopticon slides.

He began with a short account of the birth and early life of Jean-Baptiste Poquelin, who later was known as Moliere, and in doing so gave a good picture of the childhood and education of a seventeenth century boy.

Before continuing with the life of Moliere, Mr. Ellsworth at this point digressed in order to outline the development of the drama up to the period contemporaneous with the young actor. He stressed the influence of the miracle plays and the Italian comedy on Moliere's production but made it clear that Shakes-

EVANGELIST FROM TABERNACLE
TWO MEETINGS

Dr. George Wood Anderson, who, as leader of the "New Crusade," is conducting the meetings at the Tabernacle, addressed the students of the College at the Chapel services both Thursday and Friday mornings. Dr. Anderson was also scheduled to speak Saturday but was prevented because of illness.

The theme of Thursday's talk was knowledge as a source of power. "Knowledge is always power. If a man knows, he can do," the speaker said. Power, however, brings responsibility. "Assume God-like responsibilities and do team-work with God. Concentrate your strength to work with Him, because the one who goes God's way finds it the easy natural path of life."

A life spent doing team-work with God will of course build up a good character, and the noted evangelist gave instances from his own experience of the influence of a good character. Not only will the character of a person govern his own life but also those with whom he comes in contact. A good character can change a hell on earth to heaven and a bad character will have just the opposite effect. Dr. Anderson warned his audience that the foundations of a good character must be laid in youth, and one slight slip will mar it forever.

The subject of the Friday morning address was the value of the little things in life. "The persistency of character looks after the little things that are important," Dr. Anderson said. We are prone to overlook the small things of life in our attempts to reach the bigger and more enticing things. That must be avoided, for we reach the big things by first taking care of those that seem less important and are uninteresting. The speaker gave as an example the case of Steinhilber, the great scientist, who worked out his mathematical computations to the twentieth decimal point.

Dr. Anderson closed with the remark that there is not an unimportant thing in God's word, the Bible. A thorough and conscientious study of the Bible will lead to that good character which we are all desiring.

peare was not known by the French at this time.

The young actor began at first with tragedy but could not find in it the freedom and flexibility that his nature demanded. He later formed his own company and wrote some original comedies. But for twelve years his troupe met with little success. Finally, however, he won the favor of Louis XIV, and became the chief of that lavish king's many entertainers.

Moliere was not only one of the foremost comedy-dramatists of the world, but also actor, manager, and producer. His great power lies in the fact that his comedies make ridiculous the foibles and petty vices of the times, and are equally applicable to modern times as well.

The lecturer read extracts from the most famous of Moliere's works and discussed them in some detail. In addition to the enlightening account of the life and works of Moliere, Mr. Ellsworth's lecture and illustrations gave a great insight on the various institutions for which seventeenth century France is famous. Among these were the Hotel de-Rambouillet and the court life at the king's palace at Versailles.

WEDNESDAY MORNING

In Chapel on Wednesday morning, Mr. Ellsworth discussed the subject, "New Poetry," and under this caption he summarized the chief works of the modern authors in this field.

After a short introduction, the speaker told of the coming of the free verse movement some ten or twelve years ago. It was first definitely started by Miss Munroe, who is considered one of the forerunners of the movement.

Most daring and original among the new poets is Vachel Lindsay who goes about the country singing and reading his poems. Edgar Lee Masters one of the early men in this movement is best represented by his well known work, "Spoon River Anthology."

Robert Frost, who recently visited Allegheny, is also included in this class. Mr. Ellsworth believes his poem, "The Pasture," to be typical of Mr. Frost's style the principal element of which is an able use of common words in painting picturesque scenes. Amy Lowell is a great lover of free verse, and her poems have rhythm and cadence that is unequalled. Sarah Teasdale is noted especially for her varied themes and short poems. Christopher Morley is the author of several modern poems which are reputed to be translations of the Chinese. One was read by Mr. Ellsworth as an example.

Mr. Ellsworth concluded his lecture with a discussion of the English poets in this new movement, chief among whom are John Masefield and Alfred Noyes. Sailors and stories of the sea fill the books by Masefield, for he himself has lived the experience.

As a tribute to their success, the Men's Glee Club will attend a dinner given by the Rotary Club tomorrow noon at the Lafayette Hotel.

The Rotarians have had the pleasure of hearing the Club on several occasions and as a result have extended this invitation. After the dinner, which is planned for twelve-thirty o'clock, the men will sing several selections from their regular program.

Definite arrangements are being made for the downtown concert which is to be given in the Academy Theatre, but the date has not yet been decided upon.

TO RALPH H. DEMMLER AND HIS STAFF

The position of editor-in-chief is a worthy consummation of Ralph's three years of faithful and capable competition on the Campus. First as a freshman reporter, then as an athletic and news reporter in his sophomore year, and this year as editor of the news department, he is well fitted to assume the responsibilities which are now his. Affiliated as he is with practically every phase of Allegheny life, he will be able to portray this life to his readers in a broad way. It is not at all difficult to predict that the Campus, under Ralph's supervision will have a remarkable and entirely successful year.

The managing editor and the assistant editors have also been elected, although the subordinate positions will be appointed by the new editor during the week. John M. Pratt is managing editor, after two very intensive years of service, from reporter to editor of the social, alumni, and feature department. He has had much experience in making up the paper, and the special alumni issue of last winter shows his ability. He will have entire charge of the make-up policy of the Campus. William A. Risher, Charles C. Taylor, and Eleanor Taylor, will be assistant editors, at the same time holding responsible offices in other activities.

The staff is strong and able in every case. The members on it represent those who have successfully met unusually keen competition. They have worked hard and have made the Campus their principal extra-curricular activity. It is most satisfying to introduce the staff which will publish Allegheny news for the ensuing year, and the out-going staff wishes them the very happiest and most fruitful experience.

AND NOW IN CONCLUSION

A year of most happy association with you on the Campus now comes to a close. It has been an eventful year, a year in which Allegheny has taken big strides. To have had the opportunity of announcing her progress to you from week to week has been a privilege which I cannot forget. I cannot forget it because it has allowed me to see a greater Allegheny than I ever knew before. But this will have been a selfish advantage if these columns have failed to impart to you something of the spirit of this Greater Allegheny. If your paper has made it just a bit easier for you to see the Old College towering above its all-too-many organizations, its petty rivalry and friction, its lesser parts; if it has breathed out to you the spirit of a fine and noble institution which is something more than a plant for equipping men and women to fill five-thousand-dollar-a-year jobs, then I shall feel satisfied.

Your cooperation has been real. The loyal support you have given throughout the year has made working with you a pleasure which has more than compensated for the tasks involved. There have been few mails which have not brought expressions of interest and good-cheer from you who have already gone out from the College. I shall probably never meet all of you, but there does remain this poor way of thanking you, as I leave to join your ranks, for your encouragement and help.

So, with the conclusion of our year together, I can leave with you no more earnest words than those of a benediction, for benediction means to use words of good omen. The words that I can use are merely being borrowed from you; it is you who have exemplified them and given them assurance. There is a richness and greatness of life in store for everyone who has caught the spirit of Allegheny, and this life is his who is willing to flame his torch at the shrine of the Old College on the Hill!

Disaster Brings Obadiah Home After Three Weeks Wandering

Obadiah, the prodigal groundhog, has returned to his abode in Alden Hall after being absent without leave for about three weeks. Last Tuesday he came around and whimpered to be taken in by his former masters.

Obie looked a little the worse for wear and tear, and from all appearances it seems that he must have been doing the Dempsey act with a dog. Although he was restless before running away, he now seems to be quite satisfied with his home after a fling at sowing his wild oats. While the groundhog had been fed with a bottle and otherwise pampered, he perhaps found that roughing it was rather uncomfortable, and accordingly he decided to come back where his meals and sleeping quarters are provided for him. Before running away, Obadiah was particular how people handled him, and when let out of his pen he would return only after much persuasion. Now, however, things are different, for he craves sympathy, and when allowed out of his pen he always gives a sigh of relief when the door is shut behind him, and he is perfectly safe. When asked what his plans were for the future, Obadiah replied that he was considering the writing of a book entitled, "Why Groundhogs Leave Home."

New Books on Our Shelf

There have been many and exhaustive biographies written of Robert Louis Stevenson, but there could hardly be one more personal than Lloyd Osbourne's "An Intimate Portrait of R. L. S." Mr. Osbourne, Stevenson's step-son, lived and worked with him for many years; therefore, his knowledge of Stevenson is far more intimate than could be had by the most faithful biographer who has not had the advantage of kinship. Yet the portrait is quite impartially drawn and the writer gives more fact than opinion—a safe method for one in his position. Because of Osbourne's intimate connection, the book contains not only many personal elements but new information about Stevenson. The chronological order in which the biography is constructed is pleasing and unifying.

"An Intimate Portrait of R. L. S." may be secured from Charles Scribner's Sons, New York, for $1.50.

PHI ALPHA KAPPA PARTY

Phi Alpha Kappa held its annual Spring Dinner Dance at the Bartlett Hotel, Cambridge Springs, on Friday evening, May 16. Alumni returning for the dance included I. B. Estep, '23, R. M. Powell, '23, and E. Luse, ex '24. The chaperones were Dr. and Mrs. H. W. Church and Mr. and Mrs. Donald Thompson.

Campus Filings

1921.

The entire faculty and student body went over the top in the campaign for the Second Century Endowment. Every fraternity, sorority, and group on the Hill, reported over 100 per cent.

Allegheny defeated Grove City in the first tennis match of the year. Carnegie Tech walloped the Blue and Gold track team at Pittsburgh by a score of 87 to 39. Congestion and a heavy field proved too much of a handicap for our team.

The Chess Club of the University of Pittsburgh defeated the Allegheny Chess Club in a tournament played in Cochran Hall. The final score was 9 1-2 to 2 1-2.

An oratorical issue contained a summary of the forensic activities of the year. It was said to be the most successful season in the history of the oratorical association. Victories were scored over Cornell, Syracuse, Bucknell, Wooster, Pitt, Dickinson, Dennison, W. & J. and Kenyon. Much of the credit for the success was given to Miss Alice Huntingdon Spalding who coached the various teams and speakers.

Although Foreman, the Allegheny pitcher, struck out eighteen men, the varsity lost to Washington and Jefferson by a score of 6 to 5.

The same week Oberlin defeated Allegheny's nine on Athletic Park, 7 to 4.

1906.

The fraternities held the annual pan-hellenic banquet at Hotel Halsey. The members of the various Greek letter societies, seventy strong, met in front of Bentley Hall at seven o'clock in the evening and marched to Water and Chestnut Streets where they performed a war dance, and then proceeded to the hotel.

Students and faculty enthusiastically responded to the call and subscribed over six hundred dollars to the support of Mr. W. C. Shearer, '95, missionary in Korea.

DR. BEILER PUBLISHES ARTICLE ON CHRIST AS A TEACHER

"Jesus Pre-eminently a Teacher" is the title of an article written by Dr. Irwin Ross Beiler which appears in the May issue of the Sunday School Journal.

By citing passages in the Gospels Dr. Beiler shows that Jesus was first of all a teacher. However, he was not a schoolmaster as we understand the word today, for he rarely taught in any way but by informal discourse. In comparing Matthew's Gospel with that of Luke Dr. Beiler explains that the five rather formal discourses of Jesus in Matthew were most likely compiled from almost a score of informal conversations that "were originally much more after the manner of the teacher than a formal speaker."

Jesus manifested an inherent trait of a teacher when he showed his willingness to instruct regardless of his surroundings or the number of people with him.

Even Mark demonstrates Jesus' ability to use a casual incident or conversation as a vehicle of truth and concrete examples as object lessons to impress his hearers.

Jesus preferred that his listeners should do their own thinking and judge for themselves; thus he replies to them in questions rather than in assertions. He was an ideal teacher in that he worried little that his followers might not reach his conclusion, for he had sublime confidence in the truth and in the response the human mind in the long run will make to it.

Jesus was never content to leave his hearers as he found them, but by teaching he won them to better motives and a better life. He believed that men were born again by his teaching, and that, contrary to later belief, a regeneration beyond that of their changed point of view was unnecessary.

In conclusion Dr. Beiler asked if a visitor from Mars would find from a study of our religious methods and organizations that, as Professor Kent has written, "By Virtue of the example of its Founder, Christianity has from the first been a teaching religion?" Is it possible that lack of faith in Jesus' method expresses a lack of faith in him?

ELLSWORTH LECTURES

ences of which he writes. Noyes' style is real, and his poems are always written and read with considerable feeling.

WEDNESDAY AFTERNOON

In his lecture on the "Joy of Writing," Wednesday afternoon, Mr. Ellsworth discussed the value of college training to the young writer. "Some of you may have genius," he said, "it is from your generation that the authors, playwrights, and editors of the future will come, and you may be one of them."

While he was still a young man, Mr. Ellsworth became associated with James T. Field who published the works of Longfellow, Emerson, and other New England writers. Through this connection he became acquainted with many famous writers, among them Harriett Beecher Stowe.

He mentioned the genius of Robert Louis Stevenson, who wrote twenty-nine books in sixteen years, and said that we love Stevenson because he is so human.

Mr. Ellsworth spoke of his admiration for the beauty of Keat's work, and his use of words. There is more in words than just their meaning. A poet gets sound effects just as an artist gets color effects. Next to writing Mr. Ellsworth said that he esteemed publishing, because a publisher meets so many interesting people. He related interesting stories concerning Mark Twain, Conan Doyle, Rudyard Kipling, and other literary men.

"Style is what makes literature," declared Mr. Ellsworth, and he advised his audience to read aloud to discover style. "Publication is far from being an end in writing," he said, "and to write stories as a means of support is not very worthy."

In conclusion he said, "If you learn to write, and learn to love literature, you have something which will give you joy all your life."

The only handicap to the fullest enjoyment of Mr. Ellsworth's lectures was his rather indistinct enunciation occasioned by his deafness.

Mr. and Mrs. Dana B. Reid announce the arrival of a boy on Thursday, May 8.

68 2-3—57 1-3 VictoryIn the only home track meet of the season, held on Montgomery Field last Saturday, Allegheny defeated the University of Rochester by a score of 68 2-3 to 57 1-3. The visiting team took seven first places to Allegheny's six, but the Blue and Gold athletes scored enough seconds and thirds in addition to gain the verdict.On the track the New Yorkers had a slight edge. In the field events, however the Allegheny stars were clearly superior. By taking every place in the shot put and in the discus throw, and by doing good work in the otherfield events, the locals practically cinched the meet.Judd was one of the stars of the afternoon. His most outstanding accomplishment was the breaking of the College record for the pole vault, formerly held by Louie Wells, '14, at 11 feet, 3 inches. Judd bettered this mark by one inch. Captain White, of Rochester, was the star for his team.

ALLEGHENY TRACK SEASONINTERFRATERNITY TRACK MEET
TO CONTINUE AS MOVING-UP DAY CUSTOMThe Allegheny track team closes its abbreviated season on Friday, when it journeys up to Alfred, New York, for a dual meet with Alfred University. Although this is the last inter-collegiate number on the track schedule, nevertheless the runners will have a final chance to show their wares in the annual inter-fraternity championships which will be held on Moving-up Day, June 3.The Alfred meet should prove to be an appropriate windup for Allegheny's season. The New Yorkers are rated highly this year and boast of some splendid athletes. This is especially true in the distance events in which Alfred has some phenomenal entries. Alfred has been going strong thus far this spring and only recently they scored a win over St. Bonaventure College, their old rivals.The success of Allegheny's season hinges on this meet. To date, two dual battles have been waged and these have netted one victory and one defeat for Coach Hammett's men. If Alfred can be beaten then the team can consider its season a success. The old boast that an Allegheny track squad has not suffered more than a single defeat a season for the last several years will then be maintained.Preliminary notices are being posted in the gymnasium and elsewhere concerning the inter-fraternity meet. This battle of the Greeks has been an annual Moving Up Day feature for years and will again be staged this spring. All of the other regular track events will be held and in addition a two lap relay will be run off. Preliminaries in the hurdles and dashes are scheduled to take place on Monday, June 2. All entries are due before 6 P. M. Saturday evening, May 31. Further information is available from Coach Hammett.EXAM SCHEDULE
