219 MADISON AVENUE

April 6, 1917.

Dear Miss Tarbell:-

Your book came and I read it with immense pleasure. I sent copies of it to various people and you will be amused to know that I wound up by sending one to a lady who told me that being "Standard Oil" she was not inclined to read it. I said "All right, I like it because it is so optimistic." She then said she would like to try it, and four or five days afterwards told me that she was delighted with it and would send copies to four or five of her friends.

I am so sorry to hear from Anne that you are not well. Hoping that you will be all right soon,

Gratefully and cordially,

Faith L. Morgan
