Autobiography:

Among the personalities to be included must certainly be Mr. Ford. I think I have made a note of this before. I find that in the filing case marked "Ford" at the Farm there are the notes on which I was to use in the proposed book. There is also there a letter from Frank Cobb who had written I do not know what about Ford and had received a large number of letters from dealers who felt themselves victimized as a Ford victim.

I should look into this.

Autobiography:

I can think of nothing which would have given me a sterner realization of how little I knew of the period in which I had spent most of my professional life than undertaking this volume in the American Civilization Series. From start to finish I have been stalled by what I had forgotten, by what I had missed as I went along of the meaning of things and over-whelmed, too, by my difficulty in caring, in reviving curiosity.
