My dear Mrs. Sabin:

I have just come into town and find your note of July 25, asking if I could write something for your organization.

If I should see anything which seemed to me would be useful for you, I would try to do it. Just now I do not.

If you want some expression from me, I think possibly the best way would be for you to make a little pamphlet out of the magazine articles that I have done. If the magazines give their consent, which they would if you were willing to credit them, this would cost you only the printing.

When I get back in the fall, I want to come in and talk with you again. It may be that your organization will have stirred up something that I could handle.

Very sincerely yours
