These notes were from a talk at the annual luncheon of the Art School League. It is like all private parties who are trying to acquaint as large a number of pupils as possible with the museums. They have adopted a Docent, a very capable Boston Girl. Mr. Alexander said that when she was hired nobody knew what a Docent was but they had faith that it was something they needed. In the article on art teaching he took a trip with her both to the Metropolitan and Brooklyn museums.
