Dear Miss Darbell:

On going home to lunch today from my downtown "dece" I was delighted to read your letter arrived by the morning mail.

After mentioning the "Baptism" to you, the thought came to me in the night that I ought to write up that story; so I got up and did it before 6 o'clock. I've told it many times but never put it in writing like this. Once I mentioned the incident of the Steers in harness in a newspaper article, but this is practically a new story.

I feel sure it will interest you, and you may think one or more of the incidents possess a "boy scout" idea.

Maybe you could suggest a place to send it, or hand it to some editor.

I'll answer your good letter soon.
